Pro-Labor Daily Asks Resignation Of Attlee

Coalition Possibility Debated in London As Economic Crisis Continues to Grow

London, July 28 (AP).—Politicians and voters weighed tonight the chances of Britain's Labor government weathering the nation's growing economic storm after the pro-Labor Daily Mirror called on Prime Minister Attlee to resign.

Attlee summoned his top-ranking Ministers—including Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Herbert Morrison, government leaders in the House of Commons—to a conference this evening at No. 10 Downing st. to discuss economic policy.

The same subject is expected to be discussed Wednesday when Attlee meets with Labor members of Parliament in a caucus. The Mirror said the invitation extended Attlee to attend the caucus was "more in the nature of a summons."

Resignations Demanded

In its editorial, the first of its kind from any strongly pro-government newspaper, the Mirror called for the naming of a new Labor Prime Minister and said:

"There is no constant, central control of government. Mr. Attlee leaves it to others. . . . His cabinet system should go. So should Mr. Attlee."

The Prime Minister's residence declined comment on the editorial.

These questions occupied the attention of political circles:

1. Will Attlee's Government be driven by economic necessity to take Conservatives and Liberals into partnership, as did the last previous Labor government under Ramsey MacDonald in 1931?

2. Or will Attlee's cabinet, accepting its heavy majority in the House of Commons as a five-year mandate from the people, continue to shoulder the burden of post-war recovery by itself until its term of office expires in 1950?

Coalition Rule Debated

Some Conservatives said publicly they expected 1931 to repeat itself and the possibility was recognized in a weekend speech by Bevin who begged the nation's workers not to let this happen.

For the past two weeks political columnists have discussed the possibility of a coalition government. Conservatives have no united policy on this subject. Some want a coalition, others want no part of the present government's troubles and still a third group would prefer a general election in the hope of reducing the Labor Party's majority of returning to power themselves.

The prevailing non-partisan opinion was that Labor could "carry on" alone or call a general election, perhaps before the end of this year, rather than call on its opposition for help.

Conditions today are vastly different—in some cases exactly the opposite of what they were in 1931.

Roosevelt's Death Blamed on Rapid Mercury Changes

Chicago, July 28 (U.P.).—Dr. William F. Peterson, director of clinical research at St. Luke's Hospital, said today that rapid temperature changes have been responsible for the breakdown of many persons—including the late President Roosevelt.

"Sharp changes in temperature hastened the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt," he said. "And the life of Calvin Coolidge also was shortened by a sudden cold spell, followed by hot weather."

In the case of Mr. Roosevelt, Petersen said, he had traced the weather record at Hyde Park, N. Y., where the late President reportedly suffered a stroke March 25, 1945. He found that the mercury had gone above 80 in mid-March, dropped to freezing by March 22, and then shot up again.

Mr. Roosevelt was rushed to Warm Springs, Ga., where he died on April 12.

Beetle Hora[illegible] 'orn Crop

By O. B. Troup

PESTS WORST IN YEARS—Record corn crop losses are threatened in Maryland, where infestation of Japanese beetles is the worst in decades. Above at left, about 25 beetles cluster on an ear of corn on the farm of Maurice Weaver, near Alta Vista, Md. The beetles eat the corn tassels, thus preventing pollinization and arresting growth of the ear. At right, Montgomery County agent gathers a handful of beetles from a single stalk of corn

Dutch Claim 100-Mi. Sweep In Sumatra

Indonesians Also Report Victories; India to Take War to U. N. Today

Batavia, July 28 (AP).—The Netherlands army said today Dutch military columns, driving 100 miles in a week, had captured important coal and oil areas in southern Sumatra.

Other Dutch troops knifed through western Java in an effort to isolate another big section of Indonesian territory, it was announced.

The Indonesian army also reported successes, declaring that Republican troops had captured a Dutch force of 763 men with all its weapons at Soekaboemi, near Bandoeng, and had penetrated the southern outskirts of Bandoeng, in western Java, and there "engaged the Dutch forces in street fighting."

[In Washington, the State Department confirmed Batavia reports that, prior to the outbreak of the conflict, the United States had appealed to the Indonesian Republican government not to sabotage oil fields owned by Americans.

[Officials said the Indonesians replied vaguely but insisted that any damage caused to American property should be blamed upon the Dutch because they were starting hostilities.]

Occupy American Oil Field

The Dutch, in two communiques, said their troops in Sumatra had captured, virtually intact, the rich oilfield town of Batoeradja, 80 miles southwest of their jumping-off place at Palembang, and also the Boekit Assam coal mines, 20 miles farther on.

The announcement said occupation of the Shell and Standard Vacuum oil holdings at Batoeradja was being consolidated and that the attitude of remaining oil field personnel appeared "favorable."

Two oil well fires in the Standard Vacuum Maatschappy field in South Sumatra, 70 miles southwest of Palembang, were reported by a company official tonight to have been extinguished. He said the fires were put out after burning from early Saturday afternoon to midmorning Sunday. He said he

Record Loss Threatened by County Pests

The possibility of record-breaking corn crop losses in Montgomery County because of a record-breaking invasion of Japanese beetles loomed last night.

Montgomery County Agent O. W. Anderson, looking back on 21 years of service in that office, said this year's horde of beetles was worse than ever before. Last year, $250,000 was lost by the county's 1300 farmers because of the pests.

Having finished with foliage near homes and field, the beetles are now concentrating on the corn crop, largest in the county's history. In Prince Georges County and across the river in Fairfax County, Va., county agricultural agents reported similar attacks.

Chewing on Silk

Anderson said it would be two weeks before the extent of damage to the crop could be determind.

"Right now, there are handfuls of beetles on most ears, chewing on the silk," he said.

"If they eat away the silk, pollenization of the ear will be stopped and the ear will be lost. Some ears have as many as 50 on the silk, cutting the corn to death."

The agent said the peak of the beetles was reduced by intensive spraying of DDT, but that the number that remained constituted a serious threat to the corn crop—"enough to do considerable damage."

Farmers who followed recommendations that they ring their corn fields with soy beans, which are more attractive to the beetles, are relatively free of the pests, he said.

"The beetles eat the beans, which are soaked with DDT, and never reach the corn," he explained.

Prince Georges Record

In Prince Georges County, P. E. Clark, agriculture agent, said this year's invasion of the beetles set a record for volume.

"They are working on the corn and truck crops such as eggplant and beans," he said.

In Fairfax County, J. E. Beard, county agent, said beetles were "much heavier this year than last year" and are covering more area. They have attacked soy beans and corn—feed for the fowl and livestock.

Congressional Probe of Police Is Ordered

Investigators to Dig Into Plan of Hiding Crime Complaints

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Congressional investigators will dig into the Metropolitan Police practice of hiding crime complaints after all.

The House Appropriations Committee has ordered its staff of investigators to report on the administration of Washington police. The prob ewill try to determine the efficiency of all police forces in the District as well as overlapping functions.

Part of the check to determine efficiency will be an examination of police records and methods employed in compiling statistics of crimes reported and closed, The Washington Post was told yesterday.

Chief Investigator Robert E. Lee, formerly of the FBI, declared:

"Our investigation will be thorough and reach into every phase of efficiency in all police departments (in the District), including crime statistics."

Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) said the investigation staff had a "tremendous" backlog of probes into Government spending. But "we'll establish a system of priorities this week," he declared. He predicted a lapse of several months before the start of the investigation.

23 Are Killed As Nitrate Ship Blows Up in Brest

Paris, July 28 (U.P.).—The Norwegian ship Ocean Liberty, laden with ammonium nitrate, blew up in Brest Harbor at 5:45 p. m. today and, according to unofficial reports late tonight, up to 23 persons were killed and 100 seriously injured.

Though the official French press agency put the number of dead at eight in one hospital, reports from Morlaix said 23 were known dead. Up to 900, according to reports from Morlaix, suffered slight injuries.

Hundreds of townspeople fled to the countryside, fearing a spread of the fires and new explosions, as in the Texas City catastrophe.

Truman Tour Of Country Being Urged

Advisers Favor 'Inspection' Trip To Stress Projects Neglected by GOP

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman is being urged by inner circle advisers in the Demeocratic Party to make a coast-to-coast "inspection tour" of the country in September.

If he takes their advice, he will leave the Sacred Cow behind, and make the trip on a train "as slow as the one that ran through Arkansas."

He would highlight the No. 1 failures of the Republican Congress by "inspecting" flood control areas, irrigation and reclamation projects, major dam sites and soil conservation progress.

School Visits Listed

He would visit schools needing help from the as-yet-unenacted Federal aid to education legislation, talk to teachers, and check up on the school lunch program.

In fact, it would be almost an exact replica of the late President Roosevelt's 1940 and 1944 campaign "inspections" of defense plants, with this exception: Truman would be studying at a more leisurely pace the Nation's resources, not military installations.

The proposed tour would be as obviously political as Thomas E. Dewey's recent cross-country "vacation" and Robert A. Taft's projected coast-to-coast trip in September. The President's slow train trip, if he makes it, would be the Democratic answer to both.

Opportunity to See People

Intimate White House advisers are known to have broached the idea to the President several times. Until recently, Mr. Truman had felt he should never travel out of easy flying distance to the bedside of his mother. The suggestion has obviously not been renewed since her death, but it has not been abandoned. Friends of the grief-stricken President said yesterday they thought such a trip would be a tonic and "help him to forget."

The "slow train" idea is designed to give the country a good look at the President and to let him get out and mix with people.

One White House confidante told Mr. Truman:

"You leave that darn plane here in Washington. It doesn't give anybody a chance to see you. You are at your best when you are

Influence for Hughes Flying Boat Contract Puzzled Air Advisers

Senate Witness Denies Pressure By White House; Experts Ignored

Post Reporter

Two of the Nation's top wartime aviation advisers yesterday admitted they were baffled at the mysterious Washington "influence" which watched over the fortunes of Howard Hughes and his "Flying Boat" which has never yet been in the air.

Grover Loening, former special WPB consultant, told the Senate War Investigating Committee that even a War Production Board directive to cancel the Hughes contract did not stick.

Volunteering a prepared statement, Loening stated that he had "never encountered any pressure from the White House" to reverse WPB recommendations in regard to the contract.

Immediately Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) said he had noted newspaper references to possible influence on the part of Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late President.

Only Such Situation

"Please refer to my statement," Loening replied. "I said I never encountered any pressure from the White House, period."

Merrill C. Meigs, vice president of the Hearst Corp., former deputy director, aircraft division, WPB, testified he had never encountered any other situation in WPB where the recommendations of the technical experts had been ignored.

Meigs said that in war some chances were naturally taken in the hope of securing new weapons, but he added, those chances were taken only on the advice of technical experts in the field.

For example, he pointed out, the scientists and professional men had agreed that there was a good chance of developing the atom bomb, and that therefore the experiment was worth the expenditure of taxpayers' money. In the case of the flying boat, he insisted, the advice from all the armed services and Government experts was against the venture.

Loening and Meigs agreed it was the high-pressure publicity campaign put on by Henry J. Kaiser, West Coast industrialist, which originally forced WPB to give consideration to Kaiser's proposals for the construction of giant cargo planes.

Tells of Warning

Finding aircraft designing experience necessary, Kaiser took Hughes in with him, and they formed the Kaiser-Hughes Corporation. Later, Kaiser dropped out, and Hughes continued alone.

Meigs termed the plan "completely fantastic" and said he warned Hughes that Kaiser would drop out, leaving the young aviation enthusiast to be held responsible for failure.

The Kaiser-Hughes Corporation agreed to produce the "Flying Boat" at cost without profits. Subcontracts were in the hands of the Hughes Tool Company, the only really profitable venture with which the Hollywood sportsman

Truman's Mother Laid to Rest After Simple Rites in Cottage

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Kansas City, Mo., July 28.—Mrs. Martha Ellen Truman was laid to rest today in the Missouri earth which had nurtured her for 94 years.

In all that time President Truman's mother never lived more than 80 miles from the spot where she now lies beside her husband in Kansas City's Forest Hill Cemetery. For 85 years her home was no more than 10 miles from the grassy plot with the fresh-turned clay which is now her grave.

At 5 p. m. (EDT), funeral services, as simple and unpretentious as her own life had been, were held in the living room of her white cottage at Grandview, Mo., 10 miles from here. The silver-gray casket in which she lay, dressed in a navy blue dress which she had proudly bought for a visit she never made to her son at the White House, was in the adjoining bedroom. The casket was covered with flowers sent by members of the family.

Only about 35 members of the immediate family and Mrs. Truman's two doctors, Dr. Joseph M Green of Independence and Brig Gen. Wallace H. Graham, White House physician, were present.

The President and his family sa at the rear of the dining roon which adjoins the living room, while others sat in the living room on folding chairs. The minister stood between the two rooms facing the bedroom.

There was no eulogy. The minister said Mrs. Truman would not have wanted anything said about her which would have held her up as an example.

For his text the Rev. Welbern Bowman, Mrs. Truman's pastor for many years, chose the familiar Twenty-Third Psalm with its wealth of promise and comfort:

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.

"He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake."

"Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies, Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

"Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my

Taber Informs Bradley Of Committee Action; Cost Held Excessive

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee has definitely decided that the new Greater Washington veterans hospital must not be built on the Nevius tract, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Decision to kill the year-old project, scheduled for initial construction this fall, was voted by the committee in closed session Saturday.

Not until yesterday, however, was word of the action conveyed to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, administrator of veterans affairs, in a letter signed by Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the committee.

The committee resolution stated, in effect, that the cost of the Nevius tract, 25 acres of woodland on the Virginia side of Memorial Bridge, was too high, "having in mind the cost of the proposed site as compared with other available property."

Decision Has Effect of Law

The decision of the committee has the effect of law inasmuch as the House Appropriations Committee was authorized by Congress several weeks ago to investigate the controversial site and either approve or reject it.

VA officials said the committee's decision would delay by a year the completion of a 15-million-dollar 750-bed veterans hospital here. It will also cost VA over $100,000 in surveys and plans carried out for the Nevius site.

Located at the intersection of Lee blvd. and Arlington Ridge rd., the Nevius tract, was personally selected last August by General Bradley and his medical director, Dr. Paul R. Hawley, after VA had surveyed approximately 100 sites in the District.

The Nevius site was approved by the Federal Board of Hospitalization, Fine Arts Commission, and Coordination Chosen Task Of Forrestal

Secretary Hints He'll Leave Detail Work to Services

By The Associated Press

James V. Forrestal, the Nation's first over-all Secretary of Defense, hinted yesterday that his idea is to confine the job to top-level coordination of the services and stay out of operating detail.

The indication of his intentions emerged indirectly in a news conference in a discussion of finances.

Forrestal said that at first the unification of the armed forces under a single Cabinet officer, provided for in a new law signed Saturday, will add to rather than reduce the cost of the military establishment. Then he added:

"I hope the added administrative expense will be nominal.

"It is my hope that it will not add a large number to the Federal payroll because I think to some extent the success of this job will be reflected in the smallness of its administrative staff."

Needs People First

The new Secretary's indication of plans to restrict his setup was taken as indicating a good deal of autonomy for the three coordinate branches of the armed forces, on the theory that the deeper he goes into direct administrative affairs the bigger force he will need.

Yet to be picked are the three non-Cabinet secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air who will take over those phases of the Nation's defense business. Forrestal apparently was talking mostly about his own staff, however, when he commented that the first big job in making the new setup work is to "get people."

"In the new post Forrestal will be responsible for the master defense plan of the United States, but he cautioned at the news conference that the task of piecing together a general military policy will be a long time.

"It can't occur overnight," he said, adding that the unification

Heat Kills Baby In Closed Kitchen As Parents Swim

The death of a 6-week-old baby, left unattended for four hours in a 108-degree, oven-heated kitchen while her young parents went swimming, was reported yesterday in Mount Rainer, Md.

The infant, Meryl Glenn, daughter of Joseph B. Glenn, jr., 21, and Jane Simon Glenn, 17, of 2501 Arundel rd., was found dead in her bassinet upon their return from swimming Sunday evening.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner, issued a certificate of death by stroke due to excessive heat. The couple, he said, told him they had turned on the oven to dry out two cats they had washed.

The cats and baby were left in the small, closed-in kitchen while the parents swam in Chevy Chase Lake. Dr. Boyd estimated the room temperature at 108 degrees Fahrenheit.

Office-Seeking Pleas Noted In Half of Lincoln Letters

Americans Differed Violently Over Lincoln's Election

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Abraham Lincoln's election to the Presidency in 1860 was greeted with mixed reactions by Americans of that day.

This was brought out further yesterday as the Library of Congress revealed more details of the Robert Todd Lincoln collection which was officially opened to public view last Saturday.

To one member of the Republican National Committee, George G. Fodd, Lincoln's election signified that "The friends of constitutional liberty—of 'free speech, free labor, a free country, and free men,' have triumphed. To your hands are entrusted the most important revolution of modern times."

But from the South, Pensacola, Fla., "A Citizen" wired the new President to inform him that he had been hung in effigy on the night of his election. A Bostonian said that he supposed the new President "will now leave off splitting rails."

A Hillsboro, Ill., girl, Helen P. Haskell, wrote to Lincoln:

"I hope too, the South will soon learn that they can trust a Northern man to be President, and that the States and the people will be happy under your government."

Former Congressman Bitterly Declines Job at Valparaiso

By Carl Sandburg

What now in politics is often termed the Gravy Train was known in Lincoln's time as the Hog Trough and the proper petitions and improper shennanigans, wheedling, groaning and griping of it runs through about half of the letters in the papers newly opened to the public in the Library of Congress.

Among the groaners and gripers was former Congressman William Kellogg of Canton, Ill., and the latest revelation of his course of conduct is in a letter of April 8, 1863 from his home city. On the envelope in what seems to be the handwriting of the Secretary John Hay is a notation:

A bitter letter from Hon. Wm. Kellogg, Ill., declining the post of Consul at Valparaiso.

Below this in the handwriting of Lincoln is the comment:

The species of polite importunity and whining balderdash that Lincoln had grown tired of hearing from Kellogg are in a sentence from the long drawn letter, as follows:

"At the time I was indiscreet

Swindlers at Work

'Money-Making Machine' Nips Filipino Grocer for $8010

A Filipino grocer who thought a painted pickle jar was a money making machine was short just $8010 yesterday.

This victim of the money-duplicator—an old faithful of Washington's swindling fraternity—is Hilarion Yoro, who operates a store at 1819 15th st. nw. The swindler, according to the District grand jury, is Samuel M. Goines, 52, who was arrested recently in Baltimore and was indicted yesterday for grand larceny.

Because of the pickle jar, Yoro has lost a half-interest in his business, is in debt to his friends, and is an unhappy man indeed.

Let us see how Yoro said he got into this fix:

He was in his store May 20 when a man came in and announced, "I know a better way of making money than by playing the numbers. Here is a $10 bill I just made. Just wait here until my friend comes."

Then, who should walk in but Goines, with a little tube, Yoro said. Goines very quickly demonstrated his wares. He inserted two pieces of paper and a $10 bill in a tube. Then, with no abracadabra at all, Goines poured a liquid into an ashtray and lit it. Goines waved the tube with the money over the flames, scorching the wrapper. Then, he removed the burnt wrapper.

And what was inside? Why, two $10 bills, of course.

Yoro said he was convinced enough to give Goines $200 to buy some more "acid" to burn up wrappers with. Yoro said he didn't

British Ignore Irgun's Threat, Plan to Execute Trio Today

Jerusalem, July 28 (AP).—In the face of a Jewish underground threat to exact "blood for blood," the British announced tonight that three condemned members of Irgun Zvai Leumi will die on the gallows at Acre Prison tomorrow.

A Jewish underground source said earlier in Tel Aviv that two kidnaped British sergeants had been placed on trial for their lives by an Irgunist "court," adding: "It is unlikely that they will be executed until the final disposition of the case of our three soldiers."

An underground source said tonight the kangaroo court, composed of former Polish lawyers, convicted the sergeants and sentenced them to death. The sentences were affirmed by Menachem Beigin, Irgunist commander in chief, the source added.

The three Irgunists—Meir Nakar, Yacoub Weiss, and Absolom Habib—were convicted on charges that they took part in the May 4 prison delivery at Acre, in which 251 prisoners were liberated and 16 persons killed. Two other Irgunists were sentenced to life imprisonment on the same charges.

The British announcement came as the army conducted widespread new searches for the two sergeants—Clifford Martin and Mervin Paice.

The decision apparently was taken despite clemency pleas of relatives to a United Nations special commission and to Pales-

Eisler Admission Bared by Witness

His Own Story at Enemy-Alien Hearing Now Turned Against Reputed Red Agent

A Justice Department official testified yesterday in the District Court trial in which Gerhart Eisler is charged with passport fraud that:

1. Eisler admitted last March 31 at a New York enemy-ailen hearing that the German Communist Party financed his first trip to the United States in 1933.

2. Eisler "confessed" further at the same hearing that the Communist Party in the United States made "$120 or $130 a month" available to him while here.

Eisler, a stocky, bald Austrian, has been labeled by the FBI the chief Kremlin agent in the United States.

James M. McInerney, first assistant to the Attorney General, one of the Government's final witnesses in the trial now entering its third week, told the jury Eisler not only admitted at the hearing but gave three reasons for coming to the United States in the mid-30s.

The reasons, McInerney said, were: (1) to enlist financial support for a fight against Hitler; (2) to create "sympathy" against Hitler, and (3) to obtain an American passport for use in Europe.

McInerney testified Eisler, at the hearing, said he had used "Gerhart" as a "nom de guerre" or party name in Germany and Moscow and had used the name "Edwards" for "introductions" in the United States.

Eisler admitted further, McInerney related, that he had been a member of the German Communist Party and had served on a party district committee, on the German party's central committee, and on the Communist International's Anglo-American Commission in Moscow.

The German party supplied him $800 in France for his early trip to the United States, the Justice Department official said he admitted. After arriving here, he took a small portion of the anti-Hitler funds he raised for his own use and a total of about $1000 of the funds made available to him by the American Communist Party, McInerney quoted him as saying.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz said he expects to rest the Government's case against Eisler today.

life, and I will dwell in the House of The Lord forever."

The Rev. Mr. Bowman, pastor of the Grandview Baptist Church, then read a brief obituary composed by Miss Mary Jane Truman, the President's sister, who lived at Grandview with their mother. This he followed with the first 10 verses of the Ninetieth Psalm:

"Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations.

"Before the mountains were brought forth, or even Thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, Thou art God.

"Thou turnest man to destruction, and sayest, return ye children of men.

"For a thousand years in Thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past and as a watch in the night.

"Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as asleeping in the morning; they are like grass which groweth up.

"In the morning it flourisheth and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down and withereth.

"For we are consumed by Thine anger, and by Thy wrath are we troubled.

"Thou hast set our iniquities before Thee, our secret sins in the light of Thy countenance.

"For all our days are passed away in Thy wrath; we spend our days as a tale that is told.

"The days of our years are 3 score years and 10; and if by any reason of strength they be 4 score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow, for it is soon cut off and we fly away."

Privacy Respected

There were very few people near the home, the President's wish that his mother's funeral be altogether private having been respected to the fullest degree. Neighboring families sat on their lawns until the funeral procession left and then stood with bared heads in the 102-degree heat until it passed.

At 5:22 p. m. (EDT), the casket was borne from the house preceded by five large floral pieces. The procession formed in 12 automobiles and moved slowly off through the barriers which were taken down by Jackson County sheriffs deputies.

The first automobile contained the pallbearers, four grandsons and two nephews of Mrs. Truman, and was followed by the hearse.

Immediately behind the hearse was an automobile containing Mr. Truman, Mrs. Bess Truman, their daughter Margaret, and Miss Mary Jane Truman, the President's sister. A Missouri State police car led and two brought up the rear.

Neither Mr. Truman nor any member of his family made any display of emotion, though the President's grief was evident in his drawn and somber face.

Buried Near Birthplace

The procession then moved sedately along scorching-hot Highway 71, turned left at Truman Corner and continued on to Forest Hill Cemetery here, 10 miles from Grandview and only three from the site at 36th and Prospect sts., where Mrs. Truman was born.

At the grave the casket was placed under an awning with the family seated facing it while Mr. Bowman, on the other side, intoned the words, "Ashes to ashes . . ." After a brief prayer the family left for Independence and the casket was then lowered into the grave.

Mrs. Truman was buried between her husband, John Anderson Truman, and her granddaughter, Callie Louise Truman, daughter of J. Vivian Truman and twin sister of J. C. Truman. The grave is in the Young family plot, established by Solomon Young, Mrs. Truman's father, and lying on a grassy hillside under the shade of ancient oaks and elms. There is one monument in the plot, a small sandstone shaft mounted on sculptured logs in the shape of a pioneer cabin and dedicated to Solomon Young.

The President spent the early morning at his Independence home, leaving for Grandview at 2:30 p. m. (EDT). With him were Mrs. Bess Truman, and their daughter Margaret. During the morning Mr. Truman was visited by Mexican Ambassador Espinosa Delos Monteros and Eugene Anzorena, secretary of the embassy. They arrived here last night by air from Washington at the express wish of Mexican President Miguel Aleman to convey his condolences to the President.

Monteros told Mr. Truman he was commissioned by Aleman to call and convey the deepest sympathy from himself and all the Mexican people. The President expressed his appreciation for this thoughtful act and asked Monteros to convey his appreciation to Aleman.

After chatting with the President about half an hour, Monteros said he wanted to call on the mayor of Independence.

Accompanied by Anzorena and Charles G. Ross, press secretary, he found the mayor, Roger T. Sermon, in his downtown grocery store. After an exchange of amenities, Sermon put on his hat and escorted the Mexican diplomats on a tour of the town, pointing out especially the old log courthouse which stands behind the present modern building.

Monteros and Anzorena did not attend the funeral, since it was the President's wish that no one be there except the family and the two physicians who had attended his mother for so long.

Message From George VI

Ross said Mr. Truman had received additional hundreds of messages of sympathy, including one from the King of England and one from the president of Colombia, both addressed to the White House.

The King's message was:

"The Queen and I send you our deep sympathy in the sad loss that you have sustained through the death of your mother." It was signed "George RI."

President Mariano Ospina Perez of Colombia telegraphed:

"On behalf of the government and the people of Colombia and in my own behalf, I express to Your Excellency and to your distinguished family the sentiments of my deep condolence for the regrettable death of your mother. I am with Your Excellency in spirit and reiterate my loyal friendship and cincere esteem."

Pope Pius XII has sent a telegram of condolence to President Truman, it was announced at Vatican City.

Survivors of Mr. Truman's beloved Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, which he commanded in World War I, sent a brief letter of condolence to their captain.

"We extend to you the deepest of sympathies," they wrote. "Your mother, during her lifetime, often expressed herself in the belief that flowers were for the living. With this thought in mind, we have sent flowers in Mother Truman's memory to the most forgotten ward in our general hospital."

Ross said Mr. Truman and his party would leave Grandview in the presidential airplane tomorrow at noon, arriving in Washington about 5 p. m.

Russians Loose Reins in Austria, Official Reveals

Vienna, July 28 (U.P.).—A high source in the provincial government for the Soviet zone said today that Soviet interference in Austrian internal affairs has decreased markedly.

As a result, he said, the Austrians obtained the resignations of two more Soviet-appointed district administrators, leaving only one Communist in office. Until recently, he said, Communists headed six of the 10 districts in the Soviet zone.

The Austrian official said that in addition to reducing their armed forces from 60,000 to less than 15,000, the Russians also closed down several district headquarters.

8 Dead, 15 Hurt In Shanghai Police Clash at Theater

Shanghai, July 28 (AP).—A jurisdictional riot between city and military police in a movie theater took eight lives and wounded at least 15 persons last midnight and led to this series of developments today:

City police went on strike, but most of them were talked out of it by the mayor;

A "vengeance squad" of city police returned this afternoon and wrecked the theater where the fight had occurred;

Municipal officials gave this version of events:

The Golden Castle Theater was showing a film called "Wedding Night" to a packed house when three Chinese tried to enter on two tickets. A quarrel with ushers ensued. City police were called.

Some gendarmes from the Shanghai-Woosung garrison also showed up, but the city police told them to leave. A noisy altercation resulted. About 30 steel-helmeted soldiers with rifles and submachine guns answered a call for reinforcements and opened fire.

Six of the dead were city policemen, who, according to their superiors, were not armed.

Hughes 'Influence' Baffling, Say Former U. S. Air Advisers

Kaiser Appears Today

Kaiser will appear this morning in his own defense.

Loening said he believed Hughes' "Hercules" will "probably fly," and in so doing break many world's records.

After pictures are taken of plane and the crew "with Mr. Hughes looking very tired and being heroic, it will probably be run up on the beach and left like any other movie set," Loening commented.

He declared he did not believe the plywood construction, glued as it is, is at all practical.

Finds No Fraud

Of the Hughes contract, Loening declared:

"I never found any fraud or bribery, in my opinion, just poor judgment, stubbornness overoptimism, and in Kaiser's case a surprising preoccupation in publicity effects. I never encountered any pressure from the White House to change recommendations or from the industry to hurt Kaiser or Hughes."

He said he was given a genuinely "free hand" in all of his recommendations by Donald Nelson, Charles Wilson and Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, successive heads of the WPB.

Startling the committee, the 58-year-old aviation expert added:

"I never used the courtesy extended only once by John Meyer as I had my own girl friends in Hollywood with which to pass those necessary relaxing moments that any normal man should do to keep a good sane balance on his health and his work."

Meyer to Return

It was the hearing's first reference to Meyer, publicity agent for Hughes, who kept elaborate expense accounts featuring the $100 or $200 he paid girls to entertain Government bigwigs.

Meyer, Hughes' attorney, disclosed yesterday, is now in France but, weather permitting, will be back here to testify Thursday.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked why Loening mentioned Meyer and the girls.

Explaining that during his lifetime he had appeared some 38 times before congressional committees, the aviation expert said he was just anticipating the question from reading the papers.

Thought Offer Courteous

He said he had considered Meyer courteous in offering entertainment and added, "I consider it quite proper to be enterained at dinner if you have nothing else to do."

He said that he had first met the Hollywood press agent, who once was a character witness for Errol Flynn, in January of 1943.

"He soon learned I had my own friends in Hollywood," Loening said, adding that since he was so independent it hadn't been necessary for Meyer to arrange entertainment for him.

"I believe you also said you met Elliott Roosevelt in 1943," interjected Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.).

"I haven't mentioned Elliott Roosevelt this afternoon," the witness retorted drily. Later Pepper questioned him directly about Elliott.

Brewster Admits Ride

In another letter yesterday, Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the full committee, acknowledged that he had accepted the use of Howard Hughes' private airplane.

He said he had done so only because Hughes had asked him to hurry back to Washington from a Midwest speaking tour for a conference here.

In an open letter published in the Los Angeles Examiner, Hughes demanded:

"And, incidentally, since you think it is so horrible for anyone to accept my hospitality, why don't you tell about the $1400 worth of airplane trips which you requested and accepted from me?"

Hughes said the $1400 referred to the "regular charter price for those flights."

Hughes said that he had lost 14 million dollars in his 13 years in the airplane business and added, "so I don't think I have been defrauding the Government."

Cites TWA Challenge

In the letter to Brewster, Hughes urged that he tell "when this investigation was really born."

"Why not tell," the Hollywood sportsman demanded, "that this investigation was really born on the day that TWA (Trans World Airlines) first flew the Atlantic? 'On the day when TWA first invaded Juan Trippe's territory—on the day when TWA first challenged the generally accepted theory that only Juan Trippe's great Pan American Airways had the sacred right to fly the Atlantic?"

Hughes is heavily interested in TWA while Brewster has long advocated "the chosen instrument policy" for global flying favored by Pan American.

VA Hospital Site Rejected

the White House. The Federal Government, meanwhile, offered $850,000 for the land, and when turned down, took title by condemnation.

County Owns an Acre

Except for one acre owned by Arlington County, the site was owned by a private business group, of whom Avon M. Nevius, vice president of the Riggs Bank, was the principal owner. Owners of the tract have steadfastly contended that the site is worth far more than offered by VA.

There appeared some doubt last night that the tract would revert to the original owners. At VA, officials said the tract would have to be turned over to War Assets Administration for disposal.

When The Washington Post disclosed last August 8 that the Nevius site had been selected for the new hospital, Arlington County officials protested vigorously. They asserted that a multi-million-dollar apartment house and hotel project was being planned for the site by a private syndicate, a project which would bring a large tax revenue into the county treasury.

tive Howard Smith (D., Va.) ob-

Several weeks ago Representa-tained special permission from the House Rules Committee to seek elimination of the Nevius site during a House vote on the appropriations for all VA hospitals. Smith succeeded in having the Nevius operations held up until the House Appropriations Committee took action.

$625,673 Estate Must Go to Home For Maiden Ladies

A proposed Retreat for Friendless Maiden Ladies here is to receive a $625,673 trust fund established by the late Miss Anna R. Shoemaker, the United States Court of Appeals decided yesterday.

The ruling deprives of a share in the estate 138 relatives of Miss Shoemaker. These relatives, mostly cousins, sought to have the trust set aside and distributed among Miss Shoemaker's heirs. She died here May 4, 1927.

In her will, Miss Shoemaker ordered the home to be built at Brandywine st. and Wisconsin ave. nw.

After some delay, due in part to the war, trustees decided that site wasn't appropriate for a maiden ladies home. They secured court permission to build in a quieter area.

World Bank Expected To Make 2d Loan Soon

By The Associated Press

The World Bank is expected to grant its second loan within the next few weeks—a credit of 150 million dollars to 200 million dollars for The Netherlands.

Diplomatic officials said yesterday that consideration of the Dutch application is far advanced with only relatively minor details standing in the way of approval. The loan would represent about one-third of the amount The Netherlands is seeking to finance a three-year program of reconstruction.

Ruhr Coal Output Talks Due Soon

British-American Discussions, Limited To Production Aids, Likely This Week

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

The State Department said yesterday that British-American discussions on ways to increase Ruhr coal production probably will begin late this week.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, told a news conference he understood the agenda for the talks would be limited to questions directly related to the problem of how to boost the output of the German coal mines.

An Anglo-American disagreement on this point had delayed the beginning of the conversations. The British had suggested including discussion of finance, level of industry and other topics, but the State Department had declined to talk about these.

White said he knew nothing about a report that British Foreign Minister Bevin would visit Washington in September.

Importance Emphasized

The British-American discussions aimed at boosting Ruhr coal production comprise the first United States effort to contribute, with Britain's help, to European recovery under the Marshall Plan.

Secretary of State Marshall is known to consider these talks of prime importance on the ground that the extent of European recovery will be governed largely by the quantity of coal available from the Ruhr mines. They now are producing far below their prewar normal.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the latest row between the State Department and Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, has revived official talk of replacing American military control in Germany with a civilian administration.

The newest Clay-State Department split arose over an order from Marshall delaying a Berlin announcement by Clay and his British counterpart of a new increase in the German industrial level for their two zones.

Marshall acted after bitter French protests were received. His main objective was to prevent French Communists from disrupting the Marshall Plan by capitalizing on charges of an American-sponsored revival of Germany.

If a civilian government were set up in the American Zone in Germany, it would leave the Army only a police role.

The War Department on various occasions has asked the State Department to take over, but Marshall's diplomatic advisers have hesitated to jump into a disagreeable and extremely complicated task.

The military-civilian splits are attributed by diplomatic officials at least partly to the cumbersome method by which the State Department is responsible for over-all German policy, but can deal with Clay, the operating head in Gemany, only by going through the War Department. The War Department, having no final right to override the State Department, nevertheless controls money allotments to the German zone.

Socialization Demanded

Essen, Germany, July 28 (AP).—The German coal miners' union, in a statement issued on the eve of the British-American Ruhr coal talks in Washington, called today for socialization of the German coal industry.

The statement said:

"The miners maintain their demand for socialization. Fuel supply difficulties threaten to become insurmountable this coming winter if the Ruhr mines and the German coal mining industry in general is not organized in the form of its own democratic coal agency, with equal participation of the workers."

Step Now Ruled Out

Berlin, July 28.—Socialization of major industries in the American zone of occupation will be banned until either a central German government or a separate western state in Germany has been established, it was learned today. This is the interpretation given by leading American occupation authorities to the socialization clauses included in the new Washington directive on occupation policy.

In addition, the Americans will urge the British associated with them in seeking to make the two fused western occupation zones self-supporting to postpone socialization of any major industries in their zone until Germany's boundaries and future government are clear.

Major industries, in the view of the American Military Government, are those which have an economic importance extending beyond the locality in which they happen to be situated. Coal mines, for instance, have a vital importance for Germany as a whole.

Royall Flies Today To Confer With Clay

By the United Press

Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall will leave here by plane today for a European conference with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor in Germany, in an apparent attempt to iron out the long-standing feud between Clay and the State Department.

The War Department said merely that Royall would spend seven days in Germany, during which he would inspect military establishments and confer with Clay, as well as other "leading military government officials." he will return here on August 4.

India to Put Indonesian Case to U. N.

New Delhi, July 28 (AP).—India intends to bring the Indonesian problem before the United Nations tomorrow morning and press for an end to the fighting in the East Indies, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, vice president of the Indian interim government, announced today.

At the same time, he told a news conference that India would bar Dutch aircraft from Indian airfields and from fying over India "almost immediately" and was contemplating closing Indian ports to all Dutch shipping. He said India "certainly" would bar the aircraft of any country attempting to carry supplies to the Dutch.

Nehru declared emphatically that India intended to take no steps which might lead to war.

India's goal, Nehru continued, was to bring the fighting in Indonesia to an end as swiftly as possible and to assure that justice is done.

In presenting the Indonesian case to the United Nations, Nehru said, India expected the support of other powers. He said India turned first to Britain and the United States and later to Australia.

Diplomatic sources informally expressed the opinion that Nehru had given India a flying start toward future strong leadership in Asia by his vigorous steps to force great power intervention in Indonesia.

The government of Pakistan—the Moslem state—cannot begin to function until the British hand over power in August but Nehru took great pains to emphasize that all he was doing was with the indorsement of Pakistan.

assumed the fires were set as part of the Indonesian scorched-earth policy.

The Dutch said that, while retreating Indonesians burned several villages on the road to Sekajoe, northwest of Palembang, large quantities of arms were captured.

Indo Claim Held "Fantastic"

A Dutch amphibious force was reported to have captured a Republican battery on Bankoed Bay, near Padang, on Sumatra's southwest coast. Indonesian sources said their troops had filtered into Medan, on the northwest coast of Sumatra, but the Dutch said this declaration was "fantastic."

The Dutch said their columns in Java and Sumatra were moving so swiftly that in some cases they outran their supply lines and had to be supplied by air.

The columns which seized the Boekit Assam coal mines, the Dutch army said, also swept through Morerara Enim and Lahat, 90 and 100 miles southwest of Palembang, thus nearly sealing off a large portion of eastern Sumatra.

Other Dutch troops, communiques said, reached Pengalengan, 18 miles south of Bandoeng and only 20 miles from the south coast of Java.

Skirmishing also was reported under way between Dutch and Indonesian forces on the terraced mountain slopes of Linggadjati, where nine months ago the Dutch and Republican governments negotiated the still unfulfilled Cheribon agreement for peaceful solution of their troubles and eventual independence for a United States of Indonesia.

The Indonesians also reported the first use of Dutch parachute troopers since hostillities began. A Republican communique said a small force dropped last Friday at Lamadjang, 20 miles south of Bandoeng, but was wiped out.

The Dutch communiques today suggested that the army's strategy was to chop up Sumatra and Java into small pieces, isolated from each other. The government's announced intention is to mop up such isolated areas, restore civil administration and get the big, bottled-up stockpiles of raw materials moving into trade channels, before going on to new operations.

The Indonesian radio broadcast renewed threats of a sweeping scorched-earth policy and Dutch air reconnaissance reported that almost every major building in the beautiful east Java resort city of Malang had been destroyed.

Malayans to Send Aid

Singapore, July 28 (U.P.).—Representatives of 19 organizations, including the Malayan Communist Party, today set up an Indonesian aid committee to organize a volunteer fighting force against the Dutch and gather relief supplies for Indonesians.

The committee also decided to appeal to British Prime Minister Clement Attlee, United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall and United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie to intervene in the war.

Nicaragua Denied Inter-American Parley Invitation

The governing board of the Pan American Union decided yesterday by majority vote that Nicaragua should not be invited to the Rio de Janeiro Inter-American Conference opening August 15.

A union official made the announcement after a two-hour discussion by the board this afternoon.

He said that a number of those who voted against extending an invitation expressed the view that the way should be left open for Nicaragua to be represented at the meeting if the Central American country has a change of government that is recognized by a majority of the American republics.

Elections are scheduled for August 3.

The current Nicaraguan regime is headed by Benjamin Lacayo Sacasa, but is generally considered to be under the control of General Anastasio Somoza, a former "strong-man" President.

Somoza engineered a coup d'etat last May 26, deposing President Leonardo Arguello.

tine's high commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham.

If carried out as scheduled, the executions will be the first in Palestine since Dov Bela Gruner and three other Irgun men were hanged at Acre April 16.

Underground informants in Tel Aviv said before the British announcement that the trial of the two sergeants was being conducted along the same lines as the British military court which convicted and sentenced the Irgunists.

They said the charges against the sergeants included: "Being a member of an armed force illegally occupying Palestine; illegally carrying weapons in the uniform of the enemy; being members of a force conspiring to oppress the rightful citizens of Palestine."

Both Martin and Paice were members of a special army investigating squad.

In Haifa, meanwhile, 800 of 1000 visa-less Jews — who arrived aboard two small vessels early today after a futile effort to run the British blockade—were sent to Cyprus detention camps. Officials said the others would be sent as soon as ships became available.

Four incidents of terrorism were reported tonight in Jerusalem. A hand grenade was thrown, without damage or casualties, at two military vehicles; an explosion was reported near an ice plant; attackers fired on a police car in King George ave. and four men sprayed automatic weapon fire at troops guarding the district commissioner's office.

In Sarafand, site of a British military camp in southern Palestine, soldiers found three unexploded phosphorous bombs.

Refugees Near France

Marseille, July 28 (AP).—Three British ships carrying 4500 Jewish refugees back from Palestine were expected to arrive in southern French waters early tomorrow, but Jewish sources predicted they would refuse to disembark.

French officials were preparing printed notices to be distributed among the refugees telling them they did not have to leave the British vessels, but that if they chose to do so, they would be assured food, shelter and medical attention.

Nearly 1000 of the refugees, most of them Polish Jews, were reported ill.

Jewish sources here said they were confident the refugees, barred from entrance into Palestine by British authorities, would refuse to leave the ships and that the British would be forced to transport them to Cyprus, where illegal immigrants to the Holy Land usually are held until they can be admitted to Palestine under the quota.

French Seize Ship

Bayonne, France, July 28 (U.P.).—Port authorities today seized the Panamanian vessel Northland, a sister-ship of the blockade-runner President Warfield, on suspicion of preparing to transport illegal Jewish immigrants to Palestine.

China's Blast At Mongolia Stirs Russia

Lake Success, July 28 (AP).—China turned down Outer Mongolia's bill for United Nations membership today with an unprecedented blast which drew a Russian retort that certain Far East parties might like to force a U. N. investigation similar to the Greek case.

Calmly announcing a certain Chinese veto on the Outer Mongolian application, Dr. Shuhsi Hsu charged in a warm meeting of the U. N. Security Council Membership Committee that the Outer Mongolian republic had carried out a "full-dress invasion with paraphernalia of modern warfare, including aircraft."

In the harshest words China has yet pronounced against a neighbor in the U. N., Dr. Hsu said the "armed invasion" of the Chinese Province of Sinkiang by the applicant state "has not ended even today." He said China had cast aside doubts last year and supported the Mongolian Peoples Republic.

Alexei N. Krasilnikov, Russian participant in the heated exchanges over Albania in the committee last week, called the Chinese statement "distorted" and "false." He said that a regiment of Chinese soldiers penetrated about 12 miles into Outer Mongolian territory and was thrust out by the Outer Mongolian soldiers, who never crossed the Chinese border.

He also declared that the bodies of five Outer Mongolian men who had been tortured were found in the area occupied by the Chinese troops.

"Such provocative actions on the part of the Chinese troops and certain incidents are to remind us of similar action on the northern border of Greece," Krasilnikov said. "It is possible there are parties in the Far East who would like to repeat what has happened in Greece, also to distract the world from the civil war in China and what is going on in China.

Dr. Hsu, who sat smiling as the Russian spoke, said he would reply after studying the text.

Hayden Raynor, United States delegate, supported by the British delegate, said there was a complete vacuum of information about Outer Mongolia and its international relations. He said it mantains diplomatic relations only with Russia and had been recognized only by Russia and China. He questioned whether it is an independent state.

As the Security Council took up the Balkans case once more, the committee passed over Albania's application temporarily.

Seven delegates, from Syria, Britain, United States, China, Brazil, France, and Belgium, supported the application of Transjordan but final action was held up for Russia to speak. Russia vetoed the Transjordan application last year.

$270 Million Arabian Improvements Planned

New York, July 28 (AP).—A New York Times dispatch from Sofar, Lebanon, today quoted Fuad Hamza Bey, new Saudi Arabian Minister of Development, as saying his country planned to spend 270 million dollars on internal projects in the next four years.

The Minister said the developments would be financed with royalties from American oil concessions, expected to reach a peak of 50 million dollars annually in the early 1950s.

Paper Asks Attlee to Quit

although Britain's economic plight is no less serious.

Then there was unemployment soaring toward three million; goods piling up in warehouses for lack of buyers; a heavy drain on the Bank of England's gold, and a world-wide slump made worse by the Wall Street crash.

Now an acute shortage of labor is the problem. Britain is far short of her export goal and her people can't buy what they want. Gold trading is strictly controlled.

There is this further obstacle to a coalition. After MacDonald formed such a cabinet, the Labor Party Congress amended the party's constitution so as to prevent any future Labor government from taking a step of this sort without the approval of the Labor Party as a whole.

Before a coalition could be formed now a special Labor Party Congress would have to be called, and it was believed the chances of getting approval for a coalition would be remote.

Both Labor and Conservative newspapers have mentioned Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin as a probable successor to Attlee in case of the latter's retirement.

Britain's economic troubles have been complicated by the fast expenditure of the dollar loan, expected to be exhausted in December, and by the nation's failure to produce enough coal and export products.

A wave of selling hit the stock market today, and the Conservative Evening Standard blamed "increasing nervousness over the economic outlook." Prices dropped sharply in leading industrial stocks.

The House of Commons scheduled a two-day debate on economic affairs for next week. Conservative newspapers said Conservative Party leaders would meet soon to decide whether to ask in debate for a vote of censure against the Government. Such a censure vote—if carried against the Labor Party's two to one majority—would compel the Attlee cabinet to resign.

law will not "produce immediate or miraculous results."

Has Support of All

Forrestal told his audience of reporters that in his judgment the armed forces unification law "constitutes the most decisive and definitive step taken by this country in the formation of a national military policy since the foundation of the republic."

"It is a law which reflects an accommodation between many divergent points of view, but it's a workable law," he said, adding that that is the "essence" of the American system.

An opponent of the closer form of service unification proposed while he was Secretary of the Navy, Forrestal said the final version has "the support and cooperation of all hands in trying to make it effective."

"I should like to observe, however, that any law will only be as effective as the administration of the people who constitute its administration, and this one will take hard work over a substantial period of time before its accomplishments become manifest," he said.

"We have a blueprint and a charter, but the blueprint and charter have to be manned by people."

He added that "in the long run I think it will be beneficial both in the operation of the military departments and in economy in the sense of getting the most out of our money."

Right now Forrestal is a Cabinet officer without office, staff or money—officially that is.

He said it has not been decided where he will have his new offices (reports have been frequent that he will move into the Army's huge Pentagon.); and that he has arranged to "borrow" money from the Army and Navy until Congress votes some for his new department when it returns next January.

Office-Seeking Pleas Noted in Lincoln Letters

enough to indicate to your Excellency a desire for an appointment to any office, for which, I was vain enough to believe I was qualified but from the position now offered I am forced to conclude, that your Excellency held a decidedly different opinion from my own on the subject, or that my political status was such that the Administration would suffer by my appointment to an office of the grade of those held by Peck, Wilmot, Olin, Fisher, Swett, Ashby and Carter and many other recent appointments."

For Lincoln students one point of interest in the foregoing is that it checks so curiously with documents made public some years ago from the Oliver R. Barrett Collection in Chicago.

Congressman Kellogg as of April 3, 1861, wrote bitterly to the Executive Mansion of his "humiliation" in the refusal of an appointment by the President.

Lincoln wrote on the reverse side of this note: "Mr. Kellogg does me great injustice to write in this strain—he has had more favors than any other Illinois member, not excepting, I think, Judge Trumbull. Is it really in his heart to add to my perplexities now?"

Garrulous Cousin Writes

Those acquainted with Abraham Lincoln's vital, garrulous, illiterate, graphic cousin, Dennis Hanks, as revealed in letters and interviews, are interested to find his tone of voice, his backwoods lingo, his capitalization and freedom from punctuation are the same as of yore:

"Aprul 5th 64

"Dere Abe I Received your Little Check for 50.00 I shoed it to Mother She cried Like a child Abe She is Mity childish heep of trouble to us Betsy is very feble and has to wait on hir which ort to have Sum person to wait on hir we are getting old We have a great Many to wait on of our Connections they will Cum to See us while we Live . . ."

"Yours Respectefuly
D F Hanks"

The farewell speech of Lincoln from a Wabash Railroad coach, to his friends and neighbors of his home town of Springfield, Ill., February 11, 1861, we have now in a text as Lincoln himself wanted it. There have been those who claimed the Nicolay-Hay text omitted a Lincoln reference to his career being "checkered," with other variants from what was actually spoken. What we have now is not merely the address as partly written by Lincoln, but the writing is the only known specimen of Lincoln working with a lead pencil on a jolting, careening Wabash train of '61.

The Familiar Handwriting

The good Jim Randall helped me in a study of this odd sheet of paper. The familiar Lincoln handwriting, with a lead pencil giving a dim gray more often than clear black, holds these lines:

"No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarted of a century and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born and one is buried. I now . . .

And at that point it would seem that Lincoln tried to write the word "leave," found it too indistinct, ran his pencil throught it and from then on left the writing to Nicolay from dictation.

Lincoln, speaking the remaining lines of that utterly solemn sentence—

"Leave, not knowing when or whether ever, I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington."

The shadow of Robert Todd Lincoln has not grown less by virtue of his decisions as to what he deemed worth while of his manuscript possessions to go to posterity. Several with whom I have talked who have been active in ransacking his heritage seem to have gotten better acquainted with the donor, with some manner of increase in affection and respect for him.

Mother's Letters Missing

The previous evidences is definite that he had in his possession letters written by his mother and he chose to include in his bequest none of these letters. His mother is represented in the collection by one lone example of her writing, with her signature merely initialed.

On the back of a telegram notifying President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton of severe injuries received by Secretary Seward in a carriage overturned by runaway horses, Mary Lincoln wrote with a lead pencil:

We will be
leave to-morrow eve 6 o'clock do wait and return with us.
M. L.

In a card catalogue of the collection I picked at ranlom five inches of cards in the category of "Republicans," though if it had been a box of D's instead of R's I would have tried "Democrats." I rambled along and found nothing you might call fresh or provocative as a subject. Yet I well know that later under some dull heading may leap forth a bright human item.

Jim Randall had a word for it last Friday before the "unveiling." He was reminded of the boy stumped by an examination islands of the Pacific Ocean."

Another article on Lincoln's papers by Carl Sandburg will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Washington Post.

Americans of 1860 Differed Violently on Lincoln's Election

congratulatory letters concerning the 1860 election in the Robert Todd Lincoln collection. Among them was a congratulatory letter from Salmon P. Chase, whom Lincoln later named Secretary of the Treasury, who wrote:

"The space is now clear for the establishment of the policy of Freedom on safe and firm grounds. The lead is yours. The responsibility is vast."

A Library of Congress official said yesterday that 28 letters to Lincoln from Gustavus Koerner, a resident of Belleville, Ill., may form an especially interesting part of the newly opened collection.

A number of these letters are dated prior to 1860, a more obscure period in the life of Lincoln. In an exchange of letters between the two men concerning the campaign of Stephen A. Douglas and Lincoln for the United States Senate, Lincoln wrote that the Douglas demonstration "is all as bombastic and hollow as Napoleon's bulletins sent back from his campaign in Russia."

Prisoner Boasted Of Pull With Japs, Navy Court Hears

New York, July 28 (AP).—A witness at the general court martial of Navy Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirshberg, 29, of Brooklyn, on charges of beating fellow prisoners of the Japanese testified today that Hirshberg told him "I had one man killed (by the Japs) and I can have another."

The testimony was given by Charles Lester Pruitt, 26, chief carpenter's mate, of Sweetwater, Tenn., who was a fellow prisoner of Hirshberg at two prison camps on Luzon.

The witness said that at Nielson Field in July or August of 1943, Hirshberg had been involved in a fight with George Garrett, an Army private of Waco, Tex., who was tortured to death by the Japs in 1944.

Pruitt said that after the fight Hirshberg had told him "he (Hirshberg) would live through it (imprisonment) if it cost the life of every man under him."

At resumption of the trial today it was revealed that Hirshberg was given an Army decoration Friday for his part in the defense of the Philippines.

And Now Berlin Sells Cigarettes To the Americans

Berlin, July 28 (AP).—Berlin's black market in American cigarettes has completed a full cycle.

For two years American personnel were selling them to the Germans at fancy prices. Then, on May 26, came a War Deprtment emabrgo ginst any further private importation of tobacco products by soldiers and civilians.

And now the Germans are offering to sell cigarettes to the Americans.

An employe of the United States military government reported he was recently approached by a German B. T. O. (big time operator) who offered to sell or barter him 50,000 cartons (10 million cigarettes) of popular American brands.

The German wanted in return either American dollars or machinery produced in the American occupation zone of Germany.

Filipino Grocer Here Swindled Out of $8010

have any more money, but would get some.

By June 12, Yoro had borrowed from his friends and sold a half interest in his store, police said, for $7810. He had the money in small bills and it made a big wad.

That evening Goines and his accomplice—who hasn't been arrested yet—visited Yoro at his home, 16 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Goines brought with him a gallon jar that looked like it once contained pickles. It had a wide top and it was coated with shiny silver paint, Yoro told police.

Goines examined Yoro's wad of bills, and then poured some of that $200 acid into the pickle jar. He carefully wrapped the $7810 in paper and while Yoro watched, placed it in the bottle.

Wait a half hour and then I'll call you up, Goines said as he left. For four hours, Yoro sat and watched the pickle jar. Then, the telephone rang and Goines said that the time was ripe. He hung up.

Yoro grabbed the jar and unwrapped the charred paper to find inside—a big wad of ashes.

He called police. Over a month later, Goines was identified in Baltimore in connection with another case. Police say he has confessed, but he claims he got only $3900, not $8010.

No record of this case was placed in the volume book at the Thirteenth Precinct, according to Precinct Detective Edward Talbot. According to police regulations, all complaints must be recorded in precinct volume books.

The swindling record here recently includes:

Mrs. Mamie Reid, of Derwood, Md., lost her life fortune of $480 in June to two "nice-talking women" who promised to bless her money and have it bring good health, good luck and good fortune.

Arthur H. Clements, 24, is now in jail for one to three years. Earlier this year, he sold houses here to gullible customers on no more than his word that he had houses to sell. He made several thousand dollars before he was caught.

Dewey Visits Mich. Farmer But Nobody Visits Dewey

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Owosso, Mich., July 28.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, No. 1 contender for the Republican Presidential nomination, went back to some of his boyhood haunts today.

He visited the old swimming hole in the Shiawassee River, now dirty and polluted.

He also rode out to the 180-acre farm of Earl Putman, a few miles beyond Owosso. Here he worked as a boy of 16. It was during the days of World War I when farmers were appealing for volunteer farm hands.

"What do you think of your old farm hand?" A reporter asked Putman as he and Dewey sat on a fence.

"Well," said Putman, "he seems to be doing better than I've done."

Governor Dewey is staying here at the home of his widowed mother, Mrs. George M. Dewey, whom he addresses in Latin as "Mater." She accompanied him on his motor trip today. So did the Governor's wife and their two boys.

There has been some comment over the fct that Republican leaders of Michigan have not started to trek to Owosso to see Governor Dewey, as did GOP leaders in other States. The Dewey aides, however, see no reason for comment. They realize that the political hero in Michigan is Senator Arthur Vandenburg, and they say that this is as it should be. Governor Dewey himself is lavish in his praise for Vandenberg, and refers to him as "a world figure."

The Dewey strategists expect that Senator Vandenberg will be Michigan's favorite son candidate at the Philadelphia convention next June. They will be content if State Chairman John Wagner's statement of yesterday is fulfilled, and Dewey is the Michigan delegation's second choice.

The other was forwarded by the Lavale Civic Improvement Association an dsigned by 131 persons.

Production Of Flour Cut as Strike Spreads

Buffalo, N. Y., July 28 (U.P.).—A spreading strike of flour mill workers today reduced production in the world's largest flour milling center to a trickle.

The two-week old walkout by Local 21021, Flour Mill Workers Union (AFL), was extended to include the Russell Miller Milling Co., when 400 employes joined the movement today.

The strike, which began July 14 at the General Mills and Pillsbury plants, left only the George Urban Milling Co. in operation. Some 2000 workers in all have been idled.

Negotiations between the union, which seeks a 15 per cent wage increase, and the affected concerns were scheduled to be resumed tomorrow at a meeting with United States Conciliator O. W. Rider.

New Contract Signed

Camden, N. J., July 26 (AP).—John Green, president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (CIO) today announced he had signed a new contract with the Todd Shipyard Corp., covering 24,000 employes in Brooklyn, Hoboken, N. J., and New Orleans yards.

Green said the agreement, which will remain in effect until June 23, 1948, provides a 12-cent-an-hour increase in salaries, improved vacations, and extension of the old contract establishing working conditions with certain minor modifications. The rate of pay, under the new contract, will be $1.50 an hour.

In announcing the first major settlement in the five-week-old strike of shipyard workers on the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts, Green said work would be resumed in the Brooklyn yard starting with the second shift today.

He hailed the new contracts as "an outstanding victory for the union since the settlement is with the second largest employer in the industry." Previously, Green had voiced the hope that a settlement with Todd would lead to an agreement with employers of the 19 other yards where the union is on strike.

Accept Wage Agreement

New York, July 28 (INS).—By a virtually unanimous vote workers of the Remington-Rand Corp. in five cities voted today to accept a wage agreement which settled the 41-day-old strike of 9500 workers.

The CIO United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America said only a few scattered votes were registered against the settlement. The workers will return to work starting tomorrow.

The wage settlement provides for a general wage increase of 8 cents an hour and six paid holidays, plus arbitration of the balance of the union's original demand for a 15-cent-an-hour "wage package."

RationingEnds For Industrial Sugar Users

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The last of the wartime food rationing orders was ended yesterday, when the Department of Agriculture halted sugar rationing for industrial and institutional users.

Price controls will be retained, the order said. In place of rationing, industrial users, such as candy-makers, bakers, soft drink bottlers, etc., will be subject to inventory controls.

Sugar rationing for household users was stopped seven weeks ago.

Inventory controls were placed on industrial users, the department said, to avert any "mad scramble" by such users for sugar.

After household use of sugar was lifted, sugar deliveries jumped to the rate of 10 million tons a year for June—far above normal. For the week ended July 19 they had about returned to normal, or 173,849 tons for that week.

Yesterday's order was forced, the department said, by Congress' failure to "appropriate the necessary funds." Because of lack of money, the department said, the Sugar Rationing Administration is being liquidated immediately.

"Most of the employes are being dismissed today without the usual 30-day notices of dismissal since sufficient funds have not been made available to continue paying their salaries," the department said.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson asked Congress for $710,000 to administer rationing and price controls until October 31. This was cut to $210,000.

The new inventory controls will limit the amount industrial users may kept on hand to 140 per cent of the amount they used during two corresponding months a year ago. Wholesalers and retailers are limited to the amount sold the preceding months. A general limit of 2000 pounds is placed for any person, other than a household user.

Foley Designated To Head Federal Unified Housing

By The Associated Press

Raymond M. Foley, now top man over Federal housing activities, has been named by President Truman to serve as temporary head of the new, unified housing agency, it was reported last night.

Foley is now administrator of the National Housing Agency and controls the various housing agencies which were unified during the war.

A peacetime reorganization plan in which Congress concurred, will continue the unification under the designation—Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Foley also holds the post of commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration.

This place is to be filled temporarily, it was reported, by Franklin D. Richards, who has been assistant commissioner.

There was no official announcement of the change.

Instigated by Horan

The probe was instigated by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the Appropriations District Subcommittee, and was approved by Taber.

A Senate resolution for a full and complete examinations of law enforcement and administration of the various police departments here was blocked last week by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.). Previously, it had been aproved by the Senate District Committee and Rules Committee.

The resolution was introduced by Senators J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) and John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) after The Washington Post disclosed polise had hidden 600 robbery complaints during 11 months of last fiscal year. These were in addition to the 761 officially recorded.

No Vacation for Crime, Police Reports Show

There was no vacation for crime last week.

Felonies reported on the police teletype jumped from 149 to 172 after two weeks of steady slump. Robberies climbed from 21 to 33.

Since the phenomenal increase in felonies from 104 to 191 during the week of June 30 to July 6 in which The Washington Post disclosed the hiding of crime complaints, the weekly statistics slumped to 157 and then 149.

During the week of the expose, robberies reported jumped from 9 to 43. Then they slumped in subsequent weeks to 27 and 21.

mingling with people. Get out and do a lot of it."

May Cross Taft's Path

If the President starts his "inspections" in September, he may viewed in some quarters as the cross the trail of Senator Taft, Administration's favorite for the Republican nomination. Truman picked Taft as the target of his first open clash with the Republican Congress.

Taft will attend the American Bar Association meeting in Santa Cruz, Calif., September 12 and 13, and will address the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco on September 19. Then Taft plans to travel eastward across the country, making speeches at Reno, Nev., and other stops.

Eisenhower Says 2-World Concept Seems Inevitable

Billings, Mont., July 28 (AP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that "It looks more and more as though the United States will have to accept a two-world concept when we have been working for a one-world plan."

The Army Chief of Staff made the statement to a reporter during a refueling stop here en route to Alaska to inspect military posts.

He conferred with Tom Campbell, Hardin, Mont., "wheat king," who told him that Big Horn County would have the biggest wheat crop in history this year.

Eisenhower commented that "food is th number one step in the Marshall Plan.

"Food will give Europe the chance at the degree of stability needed to work out its problems," he said.

Nurse Shortage Bars 400 From Hospital

New Orleans, July 28 (AP).—Supersisor O. P. Daly said today that because of a shortage of nurses Charity Hospital has been placed on an immediate emergency basis.

Dr. Daly said only accident and emergency surgery cases are being admitted. About 400 persons were denied admission to the huge multi-storied institution over the last weekend, Dr. Daly said.

AAA Resumes Signing Up Farmers for Soil Program

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department gave its far-flung AAA field services the word today to "resume operations" in signing up farmers to carry out its 265-million-dollar soil conservation program for 1947.

Under the Agricultural Adjustment Agency program, farmers receive cash and materials—principally lime and fertilizers—for carrying out approved soil and water conservation practices. With its setup of more than 100,000 farmer committeemen, the project was inaugurated in the early days of the New Deal. It was halted two months ago when the House voted to appropriate only 165 million dollars for it this year and to end it altogether next year.

Fulfills Original Plans

The AAA had worked out a 300-million-dollar program and President Truman had recommended that amount in his budget report to Congress.

Congress finally voted 265 million dollars for this year. Although this is lower than the sum asked, the soil program is being resumed on the same basis as originally planned. Officials say most of the country AAA officers will be able to keep present staffs. Under the appropriation bill first passed by the House, they faced sharp curtailment.

Although the amount appropriated for administrative expenses this year is about 18 per cent less than last, the bulk of the reduction in personnel and other expenses will be absorbed in Washington and in State offices.

Sharp Cut in 1948

The administrative fund is in addition to the 265 million dollars, which will go for payments to farmers.

A farmer may sign up for any number of approved practices but he is promised only a certain amount of money, with the provision that he will get additional payments if any money is left after all farmers have been paid their minimum guarantees.

Officials say the minimum amount promised all farmers is expected to total about 265 million dollars, the sum Congress voted.

The program will be cut sharply next year. At the insistence of the Senate, the House agreed to go along with an appropriation of 150 million dollars for 1948.

Credit Controls to Stay

By The Associated Press

Officials said yesterday the Federal Reserve Board proposed to continue in effect until November 1 the remaining consumer credit controls—restrictions on installment buying of a dozen durable goods items.

Previously, Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles had said all controls would be dropped shortly after Congress adjourned unless Congress granted the board's request for permanent authority to regulate credit on retail buying. The present controls were put on under temporary, wartime authority.

Congress, however, specified that the control authority should end November 1, and the board, officials said, considers that as a directive to carry the controls on to November 1 and drop them then.

In general, the regulations require a cash down payment of one third of the purchase price and full payment within 15 months for such goods as automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, and household furnishings.

Security By Pieces

Defense Secretary Forrestal did not exaggerate Monday when, at his first press conference as overseer of all our armed forces, he termed unification "the most decisive and definite step in the formulation of a national military policy since the formation of the republic." Integration of our military arm is fundamental but it is only the first step in the broad national security pattern that we must put together. It would be the height of folly to conclude that the job is now done and that we may relax. That would be like building only the cellar of a house. Security is never fully realized. But several obvious deficiencies expose our security even in its preliminary phases. One such essential is an adequate foreign information program, or propaganda arm. Although Congress by no means did its duty in this respect, it did leave the State Department program in operation, if only by a thread. A second essential is universal military training. On this Congress took no action at all.

UMT cannot be considered a substitute for a trained, mobile Army, Navy and Air Force ready for instantaneous retaliation against attack. In this respect we shall have to revise our old concepts of what constitutes an adequate striking force. The War Department figures, for instance, that we shall need a standing Army of 875,000 even with UMT. What military training will do is make possible a degree of security that otherwise would require a Regular Army of twice the size. By providing a National Guard and Reserve of basically trained men as a backstop, UMT will cut mobilization time and will enable the regular forces to take the initiative rapidly in an emergency.

Moreover, the civil defense advantages of UMT cannot be ignored in an age when any city may become a battleground. Nor can we afford to overlook the force for peace that UMT would be in giving weight to our words. We hope that between now and January Congressmen will absorb some of the sentiment of the country on this subject. We also hope that everyone concerned with plugging the gaps in our national security will help expose the phobias and misconceptions that surround UMT and will press it upon Congress with as much vigor as that which helped make unification a reality.

Who Represents Whom

Edmund Burke once said: "I am not a member for Bath. I am a member of Parliament." That forgotten utterance should be called to the attention of a member of the present British Parliament, Mr. W. J. Brown, who recently defended his right to make an agreement with a union—the Civil Service Clerical Association—to follow its instructions when civil service matters came before Parliament. Indeed, Mr. Brown went even further; he insisted that the contract protected his political liberty and his parliamentary freedom, presumably because it was entered into with the understanding that no attempt would be made to control his activities except in a limited field.

The House of Commons thought otherwise and agreed to a motion declaring it "inconsistent with the dignity of the House or a member's duty to his constituents to enter into a contractual agreement with an outside body controlling or limiting his freedom of action in Parliament." However, nobody rose to protest the trade-union practice of sponsoring and financing candidates for election to Parliament, or to denounce members whose salaries are supplemented by payments made to them by trade unions. Such arrangements have, according to one Labor member, "grown up by custom and should not be interfered with." Mr. Brown's offense, it appears, lay in his pledging himself to follow a certain line of conduct in accordance with union instructions. If he had avoided that pitfall, he might have acted as the paid agent of a union and faithfully followed the union line without attracting unpleasant publicity.

It is hard for Americans to understand how the British can tolerate a system of this kind. Our Corrupt Practices Act is especially designed to protect the country from financial tie-ups between our legislators and outside interests that would tend to make them special pleaders for those interests instead of representatives of the people who elect them to office. Of course we do not succeed very well in our untiring efforts to divorce politics from business or labor interests. For without violating the provisions of the Corrupt Practices Act many of our legislators maintain outside connections that in effect impair their ability to act as free agents of a lawmaking body representing the people. But at least we try to divorce our politicians from entangling alliances.

The British practice applies to a society radically different from our own, and because of those differences probably gives rise to lesser evils there than it would here. Nevertheless, it points to a fissure in the system of representative government as we conceive it, and substitution of the principle of special or class representation, thus savoring strongly of the corporative or guild state system set up by the late unlamented Benito Mussolini.

Sour Sugar

The bill reenacting the Sugar Act of 1937, with certain important changes, was approved last Friday by the Senate in the form in which it passed the House. Its action results in retention of a provision empowering the Secretary of State to instruct the Secretary of Agriculture to withhold or withdraw the increased benefits accorded any country under the terms of the bill, if that country "denies fair and equitable treatment to the nationals of the United States." Spelled out, that means that the increased sugar quotas allowed Cuba for the time being may be withdrawn as a means of forcing payment by the Cuban government of the private claims of American creditors.

As we have already pointed out, this reversion to the practice of flourishing "the big stick" makes a mockery of the good neighbor policy. Senator Chavez minced no words in bringing this to senatorial attention. "In a few days," he said, "the President of this body (Senator Vandenberg) and the Senator from Texas will go forth on a noble mission to Brazil to try to spread doctrines we have been preaching—good will and the good neighbor policy. Imagine the look on the faces of the representatives of small countries, such as Cuba and others, when they see the Senator from Texas and the Senator from Michigan, representing the leading country of the world, coming among them after the enactment of such a bill as this." He might have added that maybe the President of the United States will join the senatorial twain. Certainly this section of the sugar bill to which Senator Chavez referred will not make Mr. Truman's good neighbor oratory palatable to his audience or to himself.

However, many of the Senators swallowed hard over this piece of intimidation. And an amendment sponsored by Senator Chavez to delete the offending and offensive section was lost by a bare majority of two votes. The narrowness of the margin is significant. It suggests that only the wish to avoid an eleventh hour conference stalemate induced the Senate to vote for a proposal that is as unwise as it is unfair.

Latin-American fear of the exercise of arbitrary power by our Government as a debt collector will be strengthened by the knowledge that the debt-collection item was initiated and approved in its present form by the Department of State. Time after time Senator Milliken defended the questionable section with this reminder. There remains the hope that the department will refrain from use of the discretionary powers given it under the bill when the President, as is expected, attaches his signature to it. That would palliate the damage. Unfortunately, however, irreparable mischief has already been done by resorting to threats as a means of prodding delinquent debtors instead of relying on the conciliation machinery suggested by Cuba in accordance with the procedure agreed to in common at successive inter-American conferences.

The Cubans have another justified grievance because of the failure to consult them in advance about our postwar sugar program. While they are given some valuable concessions in respect of sugar quotas, these concessions have been granted as a favor by act of Congress, whereas we think Cuba has earned the right to be made a party to an international agreement that seeks to provide much better protection of her long-time interests.

The only bit of consolation to be derived from the Senate's hurried action in accepting the House bill without amendments is that it led to the dropping of a Senate provision that would have denied to the workers in our best fields the protection of regulatory provisions requiring payment of fair wages by growers in order to make them eligible for Government subsidies. Congress has at least recognized an obligation to protect the Mexicans who work in our beet fields from exploitation, even though the desire to avoid a conference stalemate may have been the chief reason for the Senate's action.

Administration

Congress has ordered another try at economical and efficient organization of the Government. For the last two decades it has been perturbed over the wasted efforts, the duplication of services and the lack of system in the executive branch. But Congress itself has never been able to prescribe an effective remedy. And it has found little satisfaction in the reorganizations effected by the President under the broad powers delegated to him in this sphere in recent years. So it is trying a new approach—a study in which both houses, both parties, both the executive and legislative branches, and both officials and nonofficials will join.

The study commission is composed of 12 members, 4 appointed by each of three officials: the President, the Speaker and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate. The names have now been made public. Each nominator divided his appointments between the two major parties and between officials and nonofficials. He did his work with an eye on the high importance of the undertaking. Mr. Hoover is included in Speaker Martin's list and will doubtless be chairman. The President's choices included Messrs. Forrestal and Acheson, both of whom unite an intimate knowledge of the workings of our modern government and a consuming interest in improving its administration. Mr. Forrestal in particular has ranged far and wide in his reading and in first-hand investigation on this vital subject. Altogether, the commission is both eminent and expert and, therefore, will command respect and attention for its findings.

This is one of the outstanding evidences of the desire of the Eightieth Congress for enlightenment as the basis for action. We heartily commended this plan when it was first proposed by Senator Lodge and Representative Clarence Brown. Undoubtedly it is the most feasible means of seeking greater efficiency and economy in government at present. But it would be a mistake to expect miracles to result from it. The Government of the United States has become so big and so complicated that at best only a reasonable evolution toward the ideals set forth in the Brown-Lodge Act can be anticipated.

Business Leadership

Time was when the heads of our great industrial corporations would have considered all the terms of a contract with its employes a private affair with which the public had no concern. But if wartime regimentation and regulation has accomplished nothing more, it has impressed leaders of industry with a sense of obligation to the public as well as to the stockholders whom they serve and whose interests they are paid to protect. That changed attitude is indicated by the issuance of a statement by the United States Steel Corp. explaining in great detail the nature of the new labor contract in the bituminous coal industry to which it was a party.

It is significant that the company appreciates the need for defending the concessions made to the miners in the recent contract by minimizing its inflationary effects. Opinions as to the increased cost of coal mining resulting from the agreement differ widely, and we doubt whether the somewhat involved argument demonstrating that the wage pattern is not different from that followed in other cases will carry conviction. Nevertheless, the attempt to dissipate fears that the new contract may inaugurate another inflationary spiral reveals a real concern for the effects of the contract on general business. It tacitly acknowledges a responsibility of management to follow a course of action that will tend to stabilize the economy.

Concern for the public is even more emphatically demonstrated by the emphasis put on the disastrous effects that would have ensued in the event of failure to reach an agreement with the UMW. "It is conceivable," the statement says, "that a collapse in our domestic economy at this time could have a very serious effect upon this country's foreign program and upon its influence and prestige abroad." The decision of the coal operators to enter into the new contract was based upon much broader considerations than their own selfish interests. They followed a course which in their judgment should have a stabilizing effect upon the national economy.

Under a system of free enterprise, voluntary adjustment of wages and prices are the result of countless individual decisions. Unless those decisions are taken with some thought for their effects on the community as a whole, that system is likely to be discredited. It is encouraging to know that progressive business executives are aware of the danger and are showing an increased susceptibility to appeals made in the public interest for cooperation in making free enterprise work.

Robert J. Watt

Death overtook Robert J. Watt at sea as he was returning from a Geneva meeting of the International Labor Organization on which he had represented American labor since 1936. A labor leader who had come up from the ranks, who had shared in the early struggles to give wage earners strength through union, he understood better, perhaps, than any of his colleagues the importance of international efforts to raise the standards of labor all over the world. Only through lifting labor to comparable levels, of course, can international trade enlarging employment opportunities be promoted without endangering wages and working conditions in advanced countries.

Mr. Watt was one of the policy makers of the American Federation of Labor, a man who had earned the accolade of labor statesmanship. He was above the petty quarrels of union politics; and the regard in which he was held was shared by the CIO as well as the AFL. During the war, he served as an alternate member of the War Labor Board and contributed much to the orderly adjudication of industrial disputes. His good humor and breadth of outlook will be missed in all the councils dealing with labor problems at home and abroad alike.

IF THIS BE TRUE

Among the roses by the wall
Swoops down the evening cardinal,
And I must pause to see this thing:
Scarlet in scarlet fluttering.
But, since the night has come too close
For staring man and bird and rose,
The bright remembered red has gone
Away with the remembered sun,
And honest eyes must soon confess
Feather and petal colorless.
And then I think: if this be true,
It will be sad for us who knew
Those scarlet raptures of the mind
Across our morning—sad to find
How faint grow love and love's delight
Upon the edges of our night—
But good to wait until the gleam
Of morning shatters death and dream,
And good to hope that rested men
May wake to scarlet wings again.

Sudeten Germans

Johann Rudolph Klinger's appeal of July 23 for "justice" for himself and the other expelled Sudeten Germans is a sad commentary on the mental processes of numerous of his fellow countrymen who continue to look upon themselves as an unduly persecuted, innocent nation. His plea for sympathy seems to be based upon the hope that Americans forget very easily and are willing to be misled by half-truths.

Here are some facts Mr. Klinger somehow overlooked. The concept of "Sudeten Germans" came into being only after the advent of Hitler in Germany, but a handful of Czechs of German descent refused to accept that label. Prior to the findings of the farcical Runciman inquiry (which ignored the national sovereignty of Czechoslovakia) over 90 per cent of these Germans had indicated their wish to become part of the Greater Reich. When the Germans occupied the remainder of Czechoslovakia, the Sudetens did very little to endear themselves to the Czechs. The Czechs were forcibly moved from areas they had occupied many centuries longer than these Sudeten Germans. Not only were they moved, but entire Czech communities were wiped off the face of the countryside. Lidice was just one of the many.

Mr. Klinger complains about the unsurpassed cruelty of the expulsion. Neutral observers reported that the Czechoslovak authorities were to be praised for their humane handling of a nasty situation, and that the Czechs were surprisingly fair in their treatment of the Germans. Contrary to popular belief, not all Germans were expelled; Czechs of German ancestry who had been loyal to the Czech government were allowed to remain. As for unsurpassed cruelty, Mr. Klinger has a conveniently short memory. Were the German concentration camps figments of the imagination? What of the present DP camps? Did the Germans use silk gloves in Poland, Russia, Yugoslavia and Greece where they were responsible for the deaths of millions of innocent people? Were the slave laborers forcibly torn from their homes given a small fraction of the benefits the Czech government afforded the Sudetens?

An appeal for justice by one of Mr. Klinger's mental ilk is a travesty upon the meaning of the word.

German Industry

According to reports, the American and British governments contemplate a drastic revision upward of the level of industry plan for Germany in the immediate future. If true, this is a most serious development and the Society for the Prevention of World War III registers its protest in strongest terms against such action. Such revision is in direct violation of our pledges and commitments made at Potsdam to eliminate Germany's industrial war potential. It is also in direct violation of our agreement with the other occupying powers to abide by the level of industry plan for Germany as established March 28, 1946. It would be contrary to the recommendations made by our Foreign Economic Administration, staffed by outstanding economic experts on the problem, who conclusively proved that Germany's peace economy could function satisfactorily with about five million tons of steel per year.

Therefore, the raising of German steel production to about 12 million tons as reported and the increase of her production of metals machinery and chemicals to about 90 per cent of her 1936 production will inevitably lead to the reestablishment of Germany's economic mastery over Europe. Rebuilding of Germany's industrial war potential is neither a method of aiding the recovery of Europe nor of establishing a basis for a lasting peace. We believe that the rehabilitation of Germany's victims must come first and can be accomplished by increasing the coal export from Germany so that her neighbors can begin to establish their own industries.

The revival of Germany's industrial might would be a devastating blow to the aspirations of Germany's victims, who, although not receiving the promised reparations in capital goods and coal from Germany, are valiantly struggling to rebuild their shattered economies free from the fear of a resurgent Germany. It is our deepest conviction that far from enhancing our prestige and security, the rebirth of Germany's industrial power would undermine all our efforts in this direction.

European Refugees

As an occasional reader of your newspaper I wish to comment on the admitting of European refugees into this country.

I definitely think we already have enough of such people over here. Why should we admit these people into the United States in the first place? From any point of view it would certainly be unsatisfactory to the average American citizen. At least it wouldn't accomplish a great deal.

Therefore, if your paper could refrain from carrying such articles on the front and editorial pages, we would all be much happier.

Marshall Plan

I am cheered by each editorial and article you publish backing the Marshall Plan, I am heart and soul in favor of it and all that it entails of greater, instead of smaller taxes. I pray that the majority of Congress may have the far-seeing statesmanship to support it.

I am strongly in favor of admitting our share of the DP's of Europe. Two of the arguments of the opposition are, that there are not jobs available for these unfortunates, that they should go to Canada or South America, where there are still frontiers to be developed; and that there is no way to screen those among them who might be Communists and, therefore, opposed to our form of government.

As to jobs not being available, that is certainly not the case in this country. We have such a shortage of labor that we haven't been able to get a man to even work a few hours a day in our vegetable garden. As to frontiers to develop, certainly in Virginia (and I expect in all other States of this Union) one sees thousands of acres of untilled land that would yield much to the intensive, terraced farming I have seen in European countries. And as to the Communist element, I think Russia must have most of them at large and at work spreading her ideas, and not in DP camps.

I keenly regret that the appropriations for the "Voice of America" have been reduced. With Russian propaganda reiterating endless lies about the United States and its aims, we need to fight this repetition of falsehood by spreading the truth.

Surely we must shoulder our responsibilities abroad, or we shall suffer for it here at home; we can not have chaos and misery in one part of this world and peace and plenty in another. For our own protection, we must accept Russia's challenge in Europe today, or our children will be faced with that challenge some day on our own soil.

Price Control Post-Mortem

In 1920, 15 months after World War I, the cost of living had risen 126 per cent above the prewar level. On June 30, 1946 when price control died, it had risen only 51 per cent over 1939—and only 10 per cent of that during price control. Since that fateful day it has risen 31 per cent and it is still climbing.

And why? For the selfish interests, the heads of the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Retail Dry Goods Association with all the phony propaganda with which they were seeking to cash in on the apparel shortage, those real estate lobbies and the packers' lobby, the textile lobby and the dairy lobby.

What were their arguments?

They screamed that price control hampered production and created unemployment. Yet civilian production was 70 per cent higher than in 1939. Higher than any time in the history of the Nation. Agriculture production was 25 per cent higher than before the war—and was done with less labor. Total employment was over 58 million. Never in the history of this country had there been so many people at work in the factories and stores.

In 1945, 423,000 new firms started business. These firms were producing and selling. Retail sales were twice as high in volume as they were in 1939. All under price control. They cried that their profits were too low. Yet even the most conservative business journals admitted profits ranging from 100 to 1000 per cent over 1939. They shouted that price control created the black market. Yet when price control died, the black market was not abolished. It was merely legalized. The boiled ham that is now selling for $1.15 a pound could be bought for only 95 cents on the black market.

Why, then, if we had all this production and employment did we have shortages? The main and most gratifying reason, is that more people are buying more than ever before. The consumer spendable income has doubled since 1939 from 70 billion to 158 billion dollars. People want to buy more. In addition millions have savings they want to spend. But they should be permitted to buy at fair prices. Our shortages were not due to production failures. They were due to distribution failures.

How were we to get rid of these shortages? We were told that we should kill price control. Proponents of that theory were warned that prices would go up. They were shown that when prices rose people would have to buy less. Consumers would be forced to spend all their money, but with higher prices, they would get less for it. Yes—inflation followed by recession and depression was their method of aleviating the shortages.

But there was a better way. We could have kept price control and held prices at levels which more people could afford to pay. If prices remain stable, most families can buy larger quantities of goods—and continue to buy them. The markets of our businessmen are large and profits remain steady. Dealers keep orders flowing to the factories. Factories are kept filling these orders and producing more goods until there is enough to fill our demands.

The public and its Congress could have cooperated with price and rent control. We could have supported the regulations and helped make them work. Instead, by indifference, we condoned the violations and this contributed to a black market.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Marshall's Novitiate

SIX MONTHS ago, George C. Marshall became Secretary of State to the accompaniment of such salvos of praises as are rarely accorded any public figure. As Chief of Staff during the war, he had won a towering reputation.

Having completed his temporary assignment in China, General Marshall's desire was to retire to his country home at Leesburg, Va. He was 66 years old. He looked forward to well-earned peace and quiet in his later years.

At President Truman's urging, he accepted the new task. Some of us were fearful, at the time of his appointment, that the salvos of praise were too extravagant. To make him sound like a miracle-worker, in view of what he faced, was a disservice.

But after six months of stress and strain, of trial and testing, Marshall's reputation still looms large. It has been a crowded six months with events pressing one upon the other, beginning with the Moscow Conference.

Secretary Marshall has not by any magic altered the fundamental relationships that existed before he took office. Those who understood the realities of the Soviet-United States position never believed that he could bring about an overnight change.

WHAT HE has done in six months is to present the world with an alternative to chaos and catastrophe. The consequences of Marshall's Harvard University speech have been astonishing.

It is not merely that representatives of 16 European nations are meeting in Paris to try to agree on a plan for European reconstruction. Equally important is the fact that it has spurred the Soviet Union to compete in kind. Just as British-Soviet trade negotiations seemed about to end in complete failure, there was a change of heart in Moscow and the British have now been promised a million tons of wheat from Russia.

The Marshall Plan may fail. It may fail because the competition between East and West settles into a competition for bigger and better armaments. Or it may fail more immediately, because of the the division in the Government in Washington between Republicans and Democrats, and the deeper feud between those who believe we must play a part in the world and those who believe our only security is in isolation. But failure will not be the fault of the author of the plan. It will come out of circumstances beyond the control of any individual.

HAVING MORE modesty than most public figures, Marshall does not claim all the credit for what has been achieved. His new planning staff, headed by George F. Kennan, has had a lot to do with shaping the Marshall plan. The fact remains, however, that it was Marshall who instituted the planning staff and manned it with some of the ablest men in his department.

One of the few critical attacks on Marshall followed his return from Moscow. An inspired news story said he had held himself too aloof at the Moscow Conference and had not called on the other members of the delegation for their help and counsel. Those who watched him at close range refute this charge. While he is naturally reserved, he made every effort to include his colleagues in all important discussions.

Almost inevitably, with politics to the fore on the eve of a presidential contest, Marshall's preeminent position is recorded with a certain jealousy in the books of the Republican opposition. He is by all odds President Truman's greatest single asset.

For his own part, Secretary Marshall has done everything he could from the beginning to keep politics out. He considers himself a nonpolitical agent of all the American people.

The position he occupies today is not unlike that which Cordell Hull held as Secretary of State under President Roosevelt. Like Hull, Marshall is the repository of enormous public confidence. There is one sure way to take the Secretary of State out of politics. That is for the Republican candidate next year to declare that if he is elected, he will keep Marshall in his present office. That is also the best way to insure the continuity of a bipartisan foreign policy.

"Loyalty Test"

Referring to your cartoon of July 24 entitled "Loyalty Test," the casual, unbiased reader gets the impression that loyalty to Uncle Sam is an ordeal like unto walking over hot coals with bare feet.

I believe that the average Government employe and American citizen would welcome a test of his loyalty if it be for the protection of the country. It is a small thing to ask compared to the sacrifices asked of citizens in the armed forces in time of war for the defense of our country.

This cartoon is an example of some of the distorted thinking in regard to the duties and responsibilities of all of us as American citizens which appears in print too often. Rights and privileges imply corresponding obligations for the public good, and if a Government employe objects to acting for the country's good, he is not subject to involuntary servitude—he can resign, and should.

The United States is being attacked by totalitarian propaganda from within and without by those who seek the downfall of our free institutions. Such cartoons, with the apparent approval of your paper, are no help to those who serve our country in places of responsibility . . .

French Security

By Sumner Welles

Fear Vs. Need For German Industry

THE PARIS conference upon the Marshall Plan set up committees to prepare a balance sheet of available resources and to fix the economic needs of the 16 participating countries.

The countries taking part in the conference have few surplus resources that could be contributed to a common European pool. The Kremlin's opposition will, presumably, deprive them of the surpluses of Polish coal and of the food purchased in Eastern Europe.

When the 16 countries present this Government with their balance sheet and their appraisal of the additional resources they need to start the machinery of production working again, it will be shown that the assistance required will be very considerable. The amount of the American contribution could be reduced if western Germany were enabled to produce greater quantities of coal and steel.

A few days ago the State, War and Navy Departments issued a directive to our military commander in Germany to carry out a new plan that would raise industrial capacity in the American and British occupation zones far above the limits set by the Potsdam agreement. It was only after the French government had protested vehemently, and after the British had indicated their reluctance, that the State Department had instructed General Clay to postpone enforcement of the industrial plan until the Paris conference had rendered its final report.

THE RESULTS of our failure before the close of the war to secure a four-power agreement upon a long-range German policy becomes more disastrous every day. They have been highlighted by the Politbureau's refusal to cooperate in European reconstruction. The lack of any detailed understanding upon the essentials of such a policy now threatens to divide even the western powers.

The nightmare of the French people is the fear that their allies may revert to the policies of the English-speaking powers after the first World War which, by encouraging and facilitating the rapid construction of a strong Germany, destroyed France's security.

The Communists have avidly seized the issue Washington has handed them. They are causing the French to forget Mr. Molotov's insistence last year upon the unification of Germany under a strong central government. In the posters with which they have plastered Paris, the French Communists are telling their compatriots that "Anglo-Saxon capitalists want to rebuild Germany first just as after the first World War." Their press declares that the Marshall Plan will subject France to a fourth German invasion and is designed to destroy the Fourth Republic.

But the bitterness of the reaction to Washington's new plans for Germany permeates every element of the French people. Newspapers which reflect the opinions of the Foreign Office insist that, if the United States intends "to make Germany the nucleus of European reconstruction," and wishes to rebuild a powerful Germany, Europe should have no further part in the Marshall Plan.

AMERICAN POLICY toward Germany between 1919 and 1933 and the loans American banks and industry pressed upon the Reich played no small part in making the second World War possible.

The same influences responsible for such policies are again making themselves felt in Washington. The industrialists who believed we could "do business with Hitler" up to Pearl Harbor once more see future profits for themselves in a strong and highly industrialized Germany. The reactionaries who saw no danger in nazism are again demanding a powerful and centralized Germany as a buffer against communism.

German propagandists, and the sob-brothers who are more distressed by the present plight of the Germans than by the tragedies the Germans have inflicted on the rest of the world, once more complain of France's "policy of vengeance" and of French "intransigeance." They have been joined by our occupation authorities, who are apparently unaware that our policies in Germany involve any issues outside of the occupation zones, and by those members of Congress who would reduce our present expenditures no matter what the ultimate cost of such a penny-wise pound-foolish reduction may represent.

If these influences prevail in the determination of our policy we will sacrifice our basic objective of creating a world order under which we can safely live.

FRANCE IS THE KEY to European reconstruction. History has shown that France was right in 1919 when she demanded adequate guaranties against a resurgence of German might, and that the English-speaking powers were blind to their own vital interests when they refused to provide her with such guaranties. If we once more adopt a German policy that endangers French security, we will again lose our chance of helping to bring about European reconstruction and a lasting peace.

As our recent directive stated, Germany must become "stable and productive." The resources of western Germany must certainly become an integral part of Europe's economy. But the only safe way to achieve these objectives is through the permanent international control of the Ruhr, and through the subordination of Germany's reconstruction to the needs of the whole of Western Europe.

It is almost incredible that the directive to General Clay should have been issued without prior agreement with France and before the Government knew what the economic needs of western Europe might be. It is still not too late for the United States to reach a friendly understanding with France upon a long-range German policy, and, in particular, upon a German level of industry which will afford the French people full assurance of their future safety.

Wedemeyer Mission

By Barnet Nover

A Marshall Plan For China?

THE MISSION which Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer is carrying out in China at the behest of President Truman is a good deal more than the fact-finding expedition it is supposed to be.

NOVER

The United States Government is not troubled by any lack of data regarding the state of China. Facts about that country's economic and political situation pour into the State Department in an unceasing flood. They tell a very unpleasant story of administrative incompetence, great corruption and spreading civil war.

The Chinese picture is, indeed, so black that many have come to the conclusion that the situation is hopeless, that the United States has no choice but to wash its hands of China.

IT MUST BE admitted that the temptation to do just that is very great. Yet such a course would be self-defeating. The war has placed this country in the very front rank of Far Eastern powers and regardless of her internal situation, China is a vital part of the Far East.

But what can we do in China and for China more than we have already done? Unrestricted aid to that country would mean pouring the American taxpayers' dollars down a bottomless well. Instead of helping the Chinese people such aid might, if diverted (as so easily happens in China), only do them injury by increasing the power of the reactionaries.

It might, by providing Chiang Kai-shek with additional resources, lead to an intensification of the civil war.

SUCH UNRESTRICTED aid has been ruled out and, we can assume, will continue to be ruled out so far as American policy in China is concerned.

But what else is there for the United States to do?

An answer is to be found in the proposal made by General Marshall regarding European rehabilitation. That calls, first of all, for self-help and mutual assistance by the various European countries. Once they have demonstrated their readiness and capacity to carry out such a program, the United States will be prepared to move in to provide that additional aid which may be needed to put Europe on the high road to recovery.

THE REAL INTENT behind the Wedemeyer mission is to hold out to China a similar promise of assistance, contingent on China putting her own house in order.

In his very first statement, following his arrival at Nanking, General Wedemeyer, while emphasizing that his survey was being undertaken "without prejudgment or commitment of any kind," went on to say that he would make an appraisal of the over-all situation in China and Korea and their capabilities "with regard to rehabilitation in the foreseeable future."

"We are interested particularly," he added, "in learning and seeing something of the efficacy of the measures taken by the Chinese government looking toward Chinese recovery."

At Shanghai, a few days later, Wedemeyer said that his initial statement has "struck a sympathetic chord in the hearts and minds of many selfless and patriotic Chinese."

THRERE ARE REASONS to believe that, until recently, Generalissimo Chiang and his government assumed that since the United States had no choice but to help China, all they had to do to secure that aid was to make a few gestures of reform.

Now they are under notice that while the United States does not intend to wash its hands of China, the extent of the aid we may be willing to grant China will depend on the extent of China's readiness to help herself.

Wedemeyer is right. There are "selfless and patriotic" Chinese. Some of them are in the government although they are outnumbered there by corrupt and incompetent time-servers belonging to the die-hard wing of the Kuomintang.

The more honest liberals are brought into the regime and given positions of power the speedier China will recover and the easier it will be for the United States to help.

General Wedemeyer has the advantage of having lived in China and has learned to know her leaders and her ways. He never himself harbored the once-prevalent illusions that the prime essential war the creation of a coalition government that would include the Communists. Nor did he regard the latter as merely advanced agrarians who, unaccountably, called themselves Communists.

It is doubtful whether any coalition would have worked better in China than it has worked anywhere else. Yet only if an honest, progressive government comes into being in China can the ground be cut from under the feet of the Chinese Reds.

In his talks with Chinese leaders, General Wedemeyer has undoubtedly made clear the conditions under which American aid will be given. The first and foremost of these conditions is that Chiang Kai-shek clean house. Steps in that direction have been taken. Much more needs to be done.

Clark Sends 2 More Aides To Kansas City

Attorney General Clark announced yesterday he has assigned two special assistants to work with the Kansas City grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the 1946 primary election in the Fifth Missouri Congressional District.

One is William A. Paisley, who successfully prosecuted former Congressman Andrew J. May and the Garsson brothers, in a bribe conspiracy, and former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston for mail fraud. The other is Eric Broome, a war frauds specialist in the Department of Justice for four years.

Paisley and Broome will assist Special Prosecutor Richard Phelps, named by the Attorney General in June to prosecute any Federal law violations which the investigation at Knsas City might disclose. Phelps is a former United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri.

Kem Demanded Phobe

The new assignments to the Kansas City case were announced by Clark a day after adjournment of the Senate, where Senator Kem (R., Mo.) led an unsuccessful fight for investigation of Department of Justice actions in connection with the vote inquiry. Kem accused the Attorney General of carrying out a "whitewash" in the case in which Clark at one time reported there was no proof of Federal law violation.

The Missouri Senator declared the scope of the early inquiry by the Federal Bureau of Investigation was limited, and that Clark did not order an all-out investigation until after a State grand jury had returned indictments. Since that time five persons have been indicted by a Federal grand jury in Kansas City.

Truman Man Defeated

In the primary former Representative Slaughter (D., Mo.) was defeated by Enos Axtell, who ran with the indorsement of President Truman. Axtell then lost in the general election to Albert Reeves, jr., Republican.

Clark said the two special assistants were selected following a "request from Mr. Phelps for two Department of Justice lawyers to assist him."

Paisley, a former assistant United States attorney at Jacksonville, Fla., is now chief of the general crimes section in the Justice Department.

"If Mr. Phelps needs any more men, he can have them," a Justice Department official said. "All available facilities of the Department of Justice are at his command. The Attorney General has always wanted a complete investigation."

Rep. Almond Expects Postoffice Probe Job

Washington, July 28 (AP).—Representative Almond (D., Va.) said today he probably would work about two months in an in-between-sessions investigation of postoffice operations.

Almond told a reported he expected to be called on as a member of the House Postoffice Committee to help make field studies to determine if expenses can be cut.

Almond contended during the session just ended that operating costs should be cut, if possible, before Congress considered increasing postoffice rates to offset the department's yearly deficit.

House Seeks Recognition in Foreign Affairs

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) last night demanded Administration recognition of the House as a "full-fledged partner" in foreign affairs.

In a speech over a radio network, Halleck called for advance consultation of the House, as well as the Senate, on foreign policy programs before they are announced.

In effect he served notice that the Administration can expect bipartisan backing on foreign policy moves in the future only if Congress is let in on the ground floor.

"We Republicans are not going along blindly on foreign policy," Halleck said in a prepared text released through the Republican National Committee.

"We are doing our own thinking on the problems in fulfilling our responsibilities. There must be complete cooperation and consultation between the Executive and Legislative branches on policies before they are announced."

Even as Halleck stressed the rise of the House in foreign affairs influence, with the sharp world shift to economic problems, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., was preparing to name a 19-man House committee to go to Europe for first hand data on the Marshall Plan and related issues.

In related developments:

1. A five-man Senate coomittee headed by Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) and a five-man House group led by Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) decided to work closely together in what amounted to a joint investigation of the needs and effectiveness of the State Department's information services.

2. The House Foreign Affairs Committee, empowered in the closing days of Congress to make studies abroad, failed to map a definite itinerary at an afternoon session. It was announced, however, that the committee will send subcommittees to most of the world's troubled areas.

3. The socalled Herter Committee, which Martin will name today, is expected to leave for Europe within a month to study conditions for a check against Marshall Plan requests. House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) will probably head this group, with Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) vice chairman.

"We are mindful of the Constitutional provision that lodges in the Executive the duty to negotiate treaties," Halleck said in his speech last night. "But we are mindful also of the fact that all treaties are subject to ratification by the Senate.

"Now our problems in foreign affairs are turning to questions of finance and economic matters. That means that the executive branch must recognize the House of Representatives, where tariff and money bills originate, as a full-fledged partner in foreign affairs."

Halleck said the House is sending the Herter committee to Europe to study needs of stricken nations and how we can help, in order "to enable the House to meet its responsibilities, and to reach its own conclusions on foreign policy."

"A part of the problem of foreign relief is the impact upon our country of exporting huge amounts of food, machinery, building materials and of countless other items out of our already short supplies," he said.

"Ill-timed and reckless Government buying for shipment abroad, with too little regard for the needs of our own people, or even for the needs of those we wish to help, has been an important factor in keeping the cost of living in our country high."

To conduct the Senate end of the separate foreign information investigation, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) yesterday named these members: Smith, chairman; Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.), Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) and Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.).

The House foreign information investigation group will comprise Mundt, Lawrence H. Smith (R., Wis.), John Davis Lodge (R., Conn.), Pete Jarman (D., Ala.) and Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.).

Smith and Mundt agreed yesterday to study the work of the information service in the United States in the immediate future to get background for a continuing study abroad.

In a joint statement, they said: "It is utterly absurd for this country to be spending billions of dollars for relief of the devastated countries of the world, only to have Russia and her satellite countries interpret it as this country having imperialistic designs."

Smith and Mundt said they are mailing a standardized report form and questionaire to every member of Congress planning trips overseas, with such questions as the following:

"1. What evidence is there that the people and policies of the United States are misunderstood or are being deliberately misrepresented by other countries?

"2. What propaganda is being carried out by Britain, Russia, France and other countries outside of their own boundaries? How do their information facilities and their activities compare with those of the United States? To what extent is this information being directed against the United States?

"3. To what extent is the United State Information Service doing a good job abroad? . . ."

UAW Asks No-Penalty Clause In Ford Company Contract

Detroit, July 28 (U.P.).—The CIO United Auto Workers Union disclosed today that it has asked the Ford Motor Co. for a no-penalty clause to absolve 108,000 production workers of legal liability under the Taft-Hartley Act for contract violations.

The disclosure was made by UAW Vice President Richard T. Leonard as the union continued negotiations with Ford on pension plan details of a new contract.

Leonard said the company had not yet granted the demand for a so-called John L. Lewis clause which sidesteps the Taft-Hartley law by referring union contract violations to normal redress machinery.

"This is a very important demand, Leonard said, indicating the powerful union would delay its agreement with the Ford company. He is head of the Ford department of the UAW.

Leonard's demand would implement announced UAW policy of seeking no-penalty provisions in all its future contracts.

The union and company came to an agreement June 27 providing a seven cents hourly wage increase and a revolutionary new pension plan. It was estimated the pension plan would cost Ford 200 million dollars to cover past benefits of workers and 15 million dollars yearly to maintain.

Hartley Plans to Retire

By the United Press

Representative Fred A. Hartley (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Labor Committee and coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, said yesterday that he will retire at the end of the next session of Congress.

Before completing his present term, he said, he will devote his time to remedying "inadequacies" of the act—including its failure to restrict industry-wide bargaining. A House provision banning nation-wide negotiations was killed in the Senate.

"I believe that this Congress has finally started down the road to truly adequate labor laws," Hartley said. "I am proud to have played a part in the difficult task of reform and I believe that it is time I retire."

He plans to go to his New Jersey farm where he can rest. During the past several years he has devoted all his spare time to the farm, where he breeds prize Guernsey cattle. This is his tenth term in Congress.

Murdock in Dark

By The Associated Press

Former Senator Abe Murdock, Utah Democrat, said yesterday he has no knowledge of what the President intends to do since the Senate failed to act on his and other nominations to the new National Labor Relations Board.

"Now that I have gone this far, I would consider an interim appointment if the President wanted to give it to me," Murdock told a reporter.

The Senate Labor Committee, by a 10-3 vote, recommended confirmation of Murdock's appointment after hearing a vigorous objection from Senator Watkins (R., Utah) who defeated Murdock for the Senatorship last fall and an attack on Murdock's labor views by Senator Ball (R., Minn.).

The President had nominated the three present board members, Murdock and J. Copeland Gray, a Buffalo labor relations consultant.

Tobey Heads Unit Of Senators for Housing Probe

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) yesterday was named chairman of the seven Senate members of the joint committee to investigate housing this summer.

The other Senators are McCarthy (R., Wis.), Wagner (D., N. Y.), Flanders (R., Vt.), Cain (R., Wash.), Taylor (D., Idaho), and Sparkman (D., Ala.). Speaker Martin is expected to name the seven House members of the committee today.

The committee has until March 15 to report, but Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) urged the group yesterday to have a report ready for action when Congress comes back January 6. Javits said housing is the first problem of the Nation and ought to have top priority.

Angler Breaks Leg Landing 40-Inch Pike

Menomonie, Wis., July 28 (AP).—Theodore Olecho of Chicago landed a 40-inch northern pike—but had to leave the scene of his conquest in an ambulance.

Olechno, attempted to drag his prize to the shore of the Red Cedar River, was jerked off his feet by the struggle and fractured his left leg on a log. Unable to get up, he continued to play the fish and landed it eventually without assistance.

Neighborhood Radio Broadcasters Warned

Persons setting up miniature broadcasting stations for the benefit of their neighbors were warned by the Federal Communications Commission yesterday that they may be violating Federal laws.

This type of broadcasting may be done by so-called "wired-wireless," a low-powered gadget that imposes a radio signal on an ordinary power line. Manufacturers are said to be selling the devices with the claim that the FCC has no jurisdiction over their use. A spokesman said that such operation could result in serious interference to other types of broadcasting.

Truman Took Old Seat On Les Biffle's Dare

By Drew Pearson

The world knew what President Truman said when he walked onto the Senate floor the other day and occupied his old seat, but not many people knew what happened in Leslie Biffle's office just before the President decided to take this unprecedented step.

Biffle

Once before, on the day of his inauguration, Biffle, who is head of the Democratic Policy Committee, had talked Truman out of appearing on the Senate floor. But this time it was Biffle who dared him to do it.

Nothing sensational occurred at the luncheon which preceded the President's nostalgic return to the Senate floor. After some good-natured ribbing by Illinois' lanky Scott Lucas about Truman's red-white-and-blue bow tie with handkerchief to match, which Kentucky's Barkley said was not as good as his, Biffle dared the President to step across from the private luncheon and take his former Senate seat.

"You wouldn't let me do it last time," childed Truman, and almost immediately marched out onto the Senate floor.

After he finished speaking and was leaving the Senate, Tom Connally of Texas bounced after him.

"Harry! Harry!" shouted Connally as the President walked briskly out the door and down the corridor.

A flustered doorman, taking in the situation, leaped from his seat and shouted: "Hey, Harry! Tom Connally wants to see you!"

Truman wheeled around, the doorkeeper flushed crimson, and Senator Connally was able to pay his respects to the President.

Who Was Who In Congress

Now that the smoke of congressional battle has cleared away, it's possible to look back and do a little sizing up as to who did the good jobs and who did the bad ones among congressional newcomers. Not for years has Congress seen such a bumper crop of freshmen, and the voters who elected them deserve to know how they rated.

So here is the Merry-Go-Round score card on the first-termers in the House of Representatives:

James T. Patterson, Connecticut—A 38-year-old former Marine officer, courageous, intelligent, doesn't hesitate to buck the leaders when he thinks they're wrong. A-1 record.

John A. Blatnik, Minnesota Democrat—A former major who three times parachuted behind Tito's lines during and war and operated a fifth column there against the Germans. Just as tough in congressional battles as in European battle.

Frank Karsten, Missouri Democrat—Learned the congressional ropes as aide to former Congressman Jack Cochran of Missouri; knows more about Congress than many old-timers, is respected by both parties.

Jake Javits, New York Republican—Progressive and independent, gets in the leaders' hair but one of the best operators in Congress.

Robert E. Jones, Alabama Democrat—Successor to the House seat of Senator John Sparkman a former Navy gunnery officer, and a chip off the old block.

John Davis Lodge, Connecticut Republican—Scholarly, conservative, Harvard, former movie actor, brother of Senator Cabot Lodge. Ranks high with House leaders because he votes regular, is frank to admit his political career has been aided by a beautiful Italo-American wife who stumped with him in the 1946 campaign.

George Smathers, Florida Democrat—Lanky, 33-year-old progressive, a Marine Corps hero, and a real comer.

Katharine St. George, New York Republican—This lady has brains and charm and might go places if she quit following the voting cues of her predecessor and political tutor, isolationist Ham Fish.

Carl Albert, Oklahoma Democrat—A 33-year-old Rhodes scholar, who served five tough years in the Army, rising from buck private to lieutenant colonel. Shows promise in Congress.

Donald Jackson, California Republican—A personable, hard-working young former Marine, with an intelligent interest in world affairs, though needs more grooming.

John A. Carroll, Colorado Democrat—46-year-old former Denver district attorney and two-war vet; courageous, far-sighted; is developing into a fine public servant. A-1 rating.

Omar Burleson, 41-year-old Texas Democrat, has earned the respect of Democratic leaders for his drive and sincerity, though not always for his voting record.

Thurston B. Morton, Kentucky Republican—Hard-working, far-sighted, fair-minded, is accounted a comer by party chiefs.

John Kennedy, Massachusetts Democrat and son of the former United States Ambassador to Great Britain, shows the same brilliance as his father, though steadier. Should have a great future.

Glenn R. Davis, Wisconsin Republican, a 32-year-old war vet with nine battle stars, has established himself as a savvy legislator.

On the Other Side

Now, let's take a look at the other side of the ledger—the unpromising freshmen. Since more new Republicans than Democrats were elected to the House in the 1946 GOP landslide, the "deadwood" in GOP ranks is proportionately higher. However, the Democrats have at least two freshmen they have no reason to shout about: John Bell Williams of Mississippi, and J. Frank Wilson of Texas, 46-year-old former president of the Dallas Bar Association.

Chief Republican aspirant to the "dud" freshman class is Charles K. Fletcher of San Diego, who has won distinction as representing the real estate lobby much more than the Twenty-third District of California. Other Republicans in the dud class are:

Edward Jenison, Thomas Owens and Richard Vail, all of Illinois; Caleb Boggs of Delaware; John Sanborn of Idaho; Herbert Meyer and Wint Smith of Kansas; Edward T. Miller of Maryland; Parke Banta and Albert Reeves, both of Missouri; William J. Crow, Paul Dague, Franklin Maloney, Robert McGarvey and George Sarbacher, all of Pennsylvania.

Unless these boys perk up and get wise to things, the sooner they're retired to the sidelines the better.

MINDING YOUR BUSINESS

A Step Toward Stability

TO ME, the significant thing about the President's midyear economic report was not what was in it, but that it came out. Here was a systematic analysis of the country's economic balance sheet and income account, to see where we had been and where we might be going. That, all by itself, is a technological advance in the fight against booms and busts.

No, the report doesn't contain all the answers. Sometimes, it goes into political excursions—as when it told you sos about OPA and price control. Sometimes, it seems to understate facts of importance—as when it soft-pedaled the cost of the recent coal wage increase. As in all reports, there are biases and emphases of a political, social and economic character. But that doesn't destroy the main point: The report came out.

Livingston

It made the front pages in major cities throughout the country. Even the casual headline reader would have realized that the President had his reservations about the Nation's current unprecedented prosperity. He called attention to (1) the improbability of long continued high exports of goods; (2) the slowness of the construction industry; (3) the squeeze on consumers from rising prices, and (4) the danger of sharply advancing farm prices.

THE REPORT will not be a best seller—with circulation in the millions. But professional economists will eat it up—especially those associated with business enterprises and labor unions. And they unquestionably will make summaries for the heads of their organizations—with varying degrees of personal emphasis and bias. But again, what they say and how they say it is not as important as that they say it. And that their bosses read it.

The midyear report marks a major change from the hit-and-miss 20s and 30s. The sudden, sad awakenings of 1929 and 1937 have left their legacies. Man is an adaptive animal. He does learn after all. From now on, President Truman can be expected to make two reports to the Nation each year. One in January, as required by the Employment Act of 1946; the other at midyear on his own initiative. Let's hope the other Presidents will accept the precedent.

Reports on the Nation's economic health are not unknown in the United States. But they have not been regular, systematic, or evaluative. The authors have hesitated to go into the forecasting business; to project the present into the future. When Herbert Hoover was Secretary of Commerce he sometimes issued year-end reports on business conditions. The annual reports of the Federal Reserve Board customarily review what had happened to the country's banking and commercial institutions. But they were historical rather than projective.

DURING THE Roosevelt regime, the National Resources Planning Board and its forerunners prepared analyses on specific subjects such as the problems of the South or the adequacy of the Nation's steel capacity. There was even an internal confidential report on the country's economic health. But that was for the use of the President and his Cabinet. And there was no statutory regularity about the reports.

During the war, the War Production Board prepared confidential surveys on the state of the war effort. As production problems became so tough that only the understanding initiative of the entire populace could lick them, they were published broadside. This work of keeping the public informed was carried on later by former Justice Byrnes when he was head of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, then by Justice Vinson, then Secretary Snyder, then John Steelman. And that was statute—by order of Congress, under the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act.

Thus, the Economic Report is neither sudden nor spontaneous. It's an evolutionary response to a need. The report tends to focus attention of business men, labor leaders, farmers, and consumers on the economic problems that lie ahead. It is sufficiently specific to make business and labor organizations and individuals see red as well as green lights. Consequently, it can help to promote economic stability. Though it makes no flat forecasts, it does note problems and dangers.

IT NOW REMAINS for Congress to do its part. The Joint Committee on the Economic Report has the responsibility for examining the recommendations and findings of the President and trying to fit them into a comprehensive, uncharacteristic legislative program. One example: A tax bill that's written without regard to its impact on production, prices, and employment is like giving a patient an aspirin without first finding out whether he has a fever.

Perhaps such coordination and integration are coming. The Joint Committee will be at work during the recess. When the President submits his report next January, the committee ought to be ready to make its analysis to Congress. Thus, slowly but surely we're developing a technique to fit legislation to our economic needs. We learn as well as live.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—A sharp increase in the supply of wheat at major terminals, with large quantities continuing to roll in from the wheat-producing states, today caused wheat to tumble for losses extending to more than 3 cents.

Corn and oats also closed lower. At one time corn experienced a rally on buying from cash houses, prices going above the preceding close, but the upturn could not be held. Good corn-growing weather in the Midwest caused selling in both feed grains.

At the close wheat was 2½ to 3½ lower, September 2.31¼@2.31, corn was 1¼ to 1¾ lower, September 2.07⅞@2.07⅞, and oats were 1⅞ to 2¾ lower, September 91⅛@90⅞.

D. C. League's Home Loans Mount 10%

By S. Oliver Goodman

Home loans of the 27 member associations of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League increased 10 per cent in the first six months this year, according to F. Willson Camp, league secretary.

The total was $58,488,268, against $53,200,000 in the first half of 1946. Number of loans approximated 7000, Camp added, and the bulk of the gain was accounted for by construction loans.

First mortgage loans held by the associations now aggregate a record $262,164,000.

Camp's report also revealed that combined assets of the associations advanced to another high of $304,180,000, up $33,179,626 for the 12 months ended June 30. The 158,000 savings members added about 26 million dollars to their accounts during the year, making share investments about $258,425,000.

One On the Aisle—

'Colony' Isn't Lost

All Hands Pitch In After Fire

By Richard L. Coe

ROANOKE ISLAND, North Carolina's home of "The Lost Colony," is buzzing with round-the-clock activity to resume Paul Green's play tomorrow night after last Thursday's fire . . . The blaze, which broke out in the women's dressing room, did between 50 and 75 thousand dollars' damage, only part of which is covered by insurance . . . quick action by Costumer Irene Smart saved most of the costumes and days of labor . . . People from Manteo, Elizabeth City, Nags Head and from miles around have brought in lumber, laid a new stage floor, rebuilt the stage chapel and cabins . . . At the air base where the company is quartered, volunteers are working with cloth, wood and glue to replace over 500 properties destroyed in the blaze . . . The Tarheels are sticking proudly to the show-must-go-on adage and one of them reminds us of the historian's words in the second act: "The buildings were repaired, roads were cleared, the field was plowed again, and within a few days Fort Raleigh looked like a permanent settlement." . . . Prophetic words about the old fort which is now the setting for one of the most beautiful outdoor theaters on our fair earth.

E STREET: Only Sunday we were remarking on the likelihood of few touring musicals next season . . . So along comes "The Red Mill," which will succeed "Oklahoma!" at the National on Monday, August 18 . . . Since "The Chocolate Soldier" is set for the week of September 8, that sorta makes us look like a monkey, but you wait . . . Our dire prediction will come true yet! . . . "The Red Mill" is Paula Stone's production of her father Fred's old hit of 40 years ago . . . This new version of the Victor Herbert operetta stayed in New York for 531 performances at the Ziegfeld and wandered on to a three-month stay at Chicago's 3700-seat Opera House . . . Jack Whiting, Odette Myrtil, Buster West and Sara Ann McCabe have the leads along with another Stone daughter, Dorothy, and her husband, Charles Collins.

DISTRICT BUILDING: The drastically upped fee for theater lincenses in the District will not affect ticket prices . . . so, at least, vows A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of metropolitan Washington . . . The license fee for theaters using stage sets (the National, Capitol and Howard) now is $450 a year, as opposed to $50, previously; film houses, instead of paying $30, now will pay $75, regardless of the size of the house, a detail Brylawski did his best to change in proportion to the size of the house . . . But the theater people are united: They'll not raise their prices.

FIFTEENTH STREET: Hardie Meakin, long manager of RKO-Keith's, is back at the old homestead, a sure sign for fireworks and dancing in the streets, for Meakin really belongs here . . . He's back in the double capacity of special Washington representative of RKO-Keith theaters and resident manager of the chain's cozy theater . . . Manager Sol Sorkin has moved up nawth to Keith's Flushing, Long Island's gain . . . Official Washington knows Meakin best for his split-second time tabling of celebrities for the Roosevelt Birthday Balls, a chore that raised train dispatching to the realm of ambassodorial tact . . . But old-timer that he is, Meakin's a newcomer in one respect: He's looking for a place to live.

OLNEY: The resident company's juvenile, James Karen, will be doing double duty tonight . . . He's the lead in "Journey Into Medicine," topping the three documentary shorts on The Washington Post-District of Columbia Public Library series in the Interior Auditorium . . . This is a film report on what's new in medicine. (Also on the bill are William S. Hart in "The Fugitive" and Canada's "A City Sings") . . . Jim's "in person" job will keep him from 18th st., though, for tonight's the opening of Leatrice Joy and "The Vinegar Tree" out at Olney.

ROSY RIDGE, MO.: From Howard Dietz, in an uninsured envelope, comes forty bucks to prepare us for Metro's forthcoming "The Romance of Rosy Ridge" . . . Raised eyebrows? . . . Money for reviewers? . . . Alas, not quite . . . It's the Confederate stuff they use, Dietz swears, down thar: "They still pass the stuff on to each other as legal tender and if the dambankee won't take it, why suh, they just shoot the payin' teller" . . . Dietz is the guy who dreamed up the idea of giving those land grants, with legal notary public seals, for the "Sea of Grass" Land Project.

ARLINGTON, VA.: Things are still in a stew out at station WEAM . . . Because a pretty little weamer, Jean Wagner, is keeping extra busy these days—playing in the Cross Roads Theater's "Foolish Notion," which goes into its final week tonight.

Seven Cameras Film a Chase

Burbank, Calif.,—Chase sequence recently staged for Warner Bros.' drama, "Silver River," required seven motion picture cameras in simultaneous operation. Four were mounted on trucks, three were stationary at strategic points and one, with a 24-inch telephoto lens, was anchored on a hilltop.

The scene involved the burning of a covered wagon while it was being drawn at full speed by a six-horse team, with Confederate soldiers in full pursuit and Union cavalry galloping to the rescue. The action was climaxed when the driver of the burning vehicle leaped from the seat to the back of one of his steeds to cut the traces as the wagon overturned.

"Silver River," from the adventure novel by Stephen Longstreet, stars Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan, and is under the direction of Raoul Walsh.

Cool for Esther

Unusual Painting Shows Her Crying

Hollywood. — When Merle Oberon entertained her fellow actors in RKO Radio's "Memory of Love" at dinner in her home she had to explain why an oil painting of her shows a tear coursing down her cheek.

She was posing for the portrait when the present Duke of Windsor abdicated his throne. She began to cry sentimentally when the news came in over the radio and the artist decided to add the teardrop to the painting.

Cuts Own Rank

Hollywood.—A heavy schedule of screen commitments has forced Wayne Morris, aerial war hero and Warner Bros. star, to resign as commanding officer of Navy Reserve Fighter Squadron 63. Morris, who will make his postwar debut in "Deep Valley," will continue to fly with the group, but not as its leader.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A YEAR FROM TODAY the 1948 Olympic games are scheduled to open in London and for the well-fed United States track team it threatens to be a hollow victory—over the hollow stomachs of the British and European athletes.

POVICH

The other day the London Evening Standard took cognizance of the unfair conditions prevailing, with the British, on an emaciation diet, asked to compete against the steak-filled American athletes. The newspaper went so far as to suggest that foreign athletes be prohibited from competing against the English for two years.

Ironically, the British position is near that of a nation fed-up—but with the defeats of their golfers, tennis players, crew racers and boxers who have been deprived of the sinew-building foods by England's rigid diet rations. Americans have swept every competition with the English since the war's end.

The British, who have taken their beatings uncomplainingly, have never indicated they are not going through with the Olympics, but the situation is deserving of the consideration of the American Olympic Committee meeting this week in New York.

THE AMERICAN OLYMPIC Committee already is making tentative plans to transport thousands of pounds of meats and fats that are not available in England to provide top sustenance for the United States athletes, but any American triumph under those circumstances would be sheer mockery.

Consider the plight of British trackmen, hurdlers, weight throwers and jumpers who are asked to meet the well-fed American athletes. The weekly meat ration in England, according to the British Information Service, is 27 cents worth per person. In terms of the ordinary American diet, that reduces the maximum meat intake by a British athlete each week to two hamburgers.

The British athlete gets three ounces of butter per week, three ounces of margarine, one ounce of cooking fat, two ounces of cheese and one egg per week, unless he is an infant under five years who can make special application to the local food office. The two ounces of bacon the Briton gets per week wouldn't satisfy a husky American as a side order with his eggs on any given morning.

THE LEAST THE UNITED STATES Olympic Committee should do, in a sense of fairness, is to forget its plan to transport tons of food to England for its athletes and observe the limits to which the British restrict visitors. At this point of its rationing, the British permit each traveler only 25 pounds gross weight, provided no one rationed item exceeds five pounds.

Undoubtedly the British could be prevailed upon to make exception to those restrictions in the case of incoming Olympic teams, but to ask it would be at least unseemly if not unfair in the light of the low-caloried diet of the Britons.

The alternative for the American Olympic people would be to make equal distribution of their food to the athletes of all contending countries, with the exception of those teams from Switzerland and the Scandinavian nations which are equipped to provide sufficient food for their own. That would be the magnanimous gesture, and for America not top big an undertaking.

IT WOULD MEAN THE FEEDING of only about 4000 athletes for 16 days during the duration of the games, and perhaps a couple of weeks in advance while they are in training. On that basis, the American Olympic Committee, which soon will set about raising the $500,000 or more that it will ask to defray expenses, could justifiably ask and gain greater contributions.

Americans are traditionally the best in the track and field events, as they have demonstrated in the prewar years when the other nations had no such dire food problems, but it would be an empty triumph next August if the games were won at the expense of underfed competition.

The best-fed athletes don't always win, but the underfed never do. There is more to the proposition of making American food available to the other competing athletes than merely assuring fair conditions of play. These are different times in world affairs, we know.

At a time when America is trying to build friendships and weld into new effort the reconstruction struggle of a wartorn Europe, the spectacle of smug and well-fed American athletes walking off with most of the honors could engender a resentment that would destroy the sale of American goodwill.

'Biff' Jones' Job Will Go To Broshous

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Col. Charles Russell Broshous will succeed Col. Lawrence McC. "Biff" Jones as graduate manager of athletics at West Point next spring, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Jones will return to Washington, his boyhood home, to "sit out on the farm and whittle," associates said. Jones attended Central High School here 35 years ago.

Jones has been at the United States Military Academy in his present capacity since 1942. During this time, the Army developed its greatest teams under Coach Earl Blaik, going through the last three seasons without a defeat.

Head Coach in 1926

Jones also was associated with another superb Army team, back in 1926. He was head coach of the Cadet eleven that tied Navy, 21-21, in Chicago, in one of the most memorable games of the service series.

Prior to his current term of service at West Point, Jones coached at Louisiana State, Oklahoma and Nebraska universities, but his friends said he has no intention of returning to coaching ranks.

Broshous, from Atchison, Kans., has been serving as assistant to Jones the past year. He graduated from West Point in 1933 and was a dropkicking star in football.

A New Backfield Coach

During World War II, Broshous was in the advance service echelon in the European invasion.

It also was learned yesterday that Maj. Joel B. Stephens has been appointed assistant backfield coach at West Point.

Stephens played halfback on Blaik's first Army team in 1941 and graduated from the Academy in 1942.

Stephens was an artillery officer with the late Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army in Germany.

Before enrolling at West Point, Stephens attended Riverside Military Academy, Gainsville, Ga., and Vanderbilt University, where he played football in the 1937 season.

Stephens will fill a vacancy on the Army staff created by the transfer of Lieut. Harvey "Jabo" Jablonsky to Japan. He will report to West Point August 1. His home is Nashville, Tenn.

Tami-Lesnevich Bout Not to Be Broadcast

New York, July 28 (AP).—Boxing fans who want to see or hear the Tami Maurielo-Gus Lesnevich bout at Ebbets Field Wednesday night will have to be there in person.

Promoter Andy Neiderreiter said today there will be no radio or television broadcasts of the fight.

Scarborough Faces Browns Here Tonight

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Ray Scarborough, who when last seen was pitching a six-hit shutout against the Tigers, will attempt tonight to solidify his new role as a starting pitcher with the Browns as his opposition.

The resurgence of Scarborough, who was handicapped in the earlier weeks of the season with a lame wrist and demoted to relief duty, is in full swing—Manager Ossie Bluege hopes.

"There wasn't a better pitcher in the league, unless it was Bob Feller, before Scarborough left us to go into the Navy," Bluege said, "If the job he did against the Tigers last week means he's right again, it's a big lift to our club."

Nats Have Edge on Foe

The Browns will have in their lineup tonight at least one, perhaps both of the colored players who have been with the club for the past ten days. Outfielder Willard Brown has been playing right field with regularity, and Second Baseman Henry Thompson has been used chiefly as a pinch hitter.

The Browns are one of the clubs over which the Nats show an edge this season, having won seven of the 13 games between the teams.

Manager Bluege, still smarting at the 2-1 victory of the Indians on Sunday which snapped the Nats' five-game winning streak and dropped them out of fifth place, declared he has not censured Stan Spence whose tardy throw permitted the winning run to score.

"One of Those Things"

"It was one of those things," said Bluege. "Maybe Spence should have thrown Metkovich out at the plate, but he says he didn't have a good grip on the ball when he threw. I don't get mad with hustling ballplayers."

An item of comfort to Bluege, however, is the recent hitting of Sherry Robertson, who banged out six hits in the three games with the Indians and raised his batting figure from below .200 to .233.

"Robertson is going to stay in left field as long as he keeps hitting," said Bluege. "He's a little ragged yet on fly balls, but so far he's made all the catches and we can use this hitting if he keeps it up. I'm not going to make any changes except when we face left-handed pitching."

Bums Score All in Ninth To Beat Cubs

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Joe Hatten, a Chicago Cub-tamer from way back, hurled three-hit shoutball today to stretch the Brooklyn Dodger's winning streak to 10 games, longest of the season in the National League, by a 4-0 triumph over the stumbling Bruins.

Not since July 11, 1946, have the Cubs beaten Hatten who has beaten them eight times over the stretch, six times during the current season.

It was a beautiful pitchers' battle between Hatten and Johnny Schmitz, a pair of lefthanders, for eight scoreless innings until the Brooks broke loose with four in the ninth. Schmitz lost his control, his shutout and his 13th game.

Jackie Robinson, first up in the ninth, reached second base without hitting the ball when Schmitz' fourth ball was a wild pitch.

Pete Reiser also walked and all hands were safe when Carl Rurillo beat out a bunt for a single. Schmitz fielded Gurilio's tap down the third base line but couldn't make a play.

With the bases full and none out, first baseman Phil Cavarretta fumbled Dixie Walker's slow trickler for a nerror, permitting Robinson to score.

That was all for Schmitz who was replaced by Emil Kush. Bruce Edwards' single to center drove home Reiser and Furillo and Pee Wee Reese scored Walker with a single to left.

The Brooks thus headed toward St. Louis and an important series with their lead intact and a record of five errorless ball games in succession.

Civic Clubs, Press Booming Cecil Travis Day Program

Cecil Travis Day, scheduled at Griffith Stadium on the night of August 15, when the Nats play the Athletics, gained impetus yesterday when representatives of Washington civic clubs, newspapers and radio stations planned the program in honor of the Nats' veteran shortstop.

John Bartow of the Reciprocity Club, originator of the special day to be set aside in tribute to Travis, was elected chairman of the committee. Representatives of the Lions Club, Kiwanis, Civitan, Executive, Chatter Box and Optimist clubs also attended.

Arch McDonald was named head of the radio men's committee, and his office in Room 801 of the Earle Building was designated as Travis Day Committee headquarters where donations by Travis fans will be received. Burton Hawkins was named head of the baseball writers' subcommittee.

President Clark Griffith of the Nats will make a special gift to Travis as the club's contribution. Second Baseman Gerry Priddy was named to head the ball players' committee which also will participate with a gift to Travis.

Washington fans will be invited to contribute to the Travis Day gifts at special booths to be erected at the entrances to Griffith Stadium within the next few days. All contributors will sign a scroll to be presented the player at home plate ceremonies August 15.

Travis, who joined the Washington club late in the season of 1933, will also be given a citation by the commanding officer of the Infantry division with which he served in the Battle of the Bulge, where he suffered frozen feet that handicapped his return to baseball last year.

Jap Third Sacker Injured, Sorry, Dead

Tokyo, July 28.—Evidence that the occupation has scarcely scratched the surface of age-old Japanese customs was seen in a story published tonight by the newspaper "Mimpo."

Nobuo Iwama, 17, who plays third base on the Oginachi Commercial School baseball team, injured a leg in a tournament game, with the result that his team was defeated.

Iwama, therefore, committed suicide by taking potassium cyanide. He left a note saying, "I am deeply sorry I lost the game. Please form a new winning team next year."

Washington Team Wins Skeet Title

Hot Springs, Va., July 28 (AP).—The National Capitol Rebels of Washington won the team championship at the Clark Challenge Trophy Skeet Shoot on Homestead Field here today.

The Rebels' individual scores were: George Deyoe, 98; R. M. Watson, 96; C. S. Hottel, 95; Gene Day, 97, and Vic Frank, 96, for a team total of 482 out of 500.

George Deyoe won the Class AA, .410 gauge and .20 gauge individual championships.

Boudreau Tops At Bat Again; Ted Takes 3d

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Lou Boudreau, Cleveland shortstop and manager, has regained the American League batting lead from Jolting Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees.

In games through Sunday, Boudreau had made 100 hits for an average of .341, a climb of four points during the week. DiMaggio had slumped one point to .338.

Following in line were Ted Williams, Boston, .330; George Kell, Detroit, .327; George McQuinn, New York, .313; Barney McCoskey, Philadelphia, also .313; Bob Dillinger, St. Louis, .310; Johnny Pesky, Boston, and Luke Appling, Chicago, each .309, and Dick Wakefield, Detroit, .296.

Pesky led in hits, with 119. His teammate, Ted Williams, led in runs, with 76, and runs batted in, with 71, and also led in homers, with 28. Boudreau had clouted the most doubles—27. Dave Philley, Chicago rookie, and Mickie Vernon of Washington, the 1946 batting leader, had the most triples—9 apiece.

Dillinger stole no bases during the week but held his lead in that department with 23

Mel Harder, Cleveland hurling veteran, continued to hold the lead in pitching with an average of .857 on six victories and one defeat. Bob Feller, his fireballing teammate, had five more strikeouts during the week to boost his league-leading total to 129.

'Lost' Gold Cup Found in Bushes

Freeport, N. Y., July 28 (AP).—The Harmsworth Gold Cup, national high-speed motorboat racing trophy, was stolen from a restaurant here today but recovered several hours later when police, acting on a tip, found it hidden in a clump of bushes in nearby Old Westbury.

The cup, won by orchestra leader Guy Lombardo in Detroit last year, was stolen just two weeks before the 1947 championship races.

Nassau County Inspector Finnell reported an anonymous caller telephoned him and said that he believed the trophy was hidden in some bushes in Old Westbury, giving directions.

Prior to its recovery, Lombardo announced that he would try to have a replica of the cup made before the annual races August 10 at Rockaway Inlet, near here.

6 Blues Place On All-Stars

Columbus, Ohio, July 28 (AP).—The American Association unveiled its 1947 all-star squad today and 10 of the 20 places fell to two teams—league-leading Kansas City Blues and the Milwaukee Brewers.

The association's annual all-star contest has been canceled this season, so the dream team will remain strictly on paper, but presentations of awards have been planned by individual clubs.

Kansas City placed its entire outfield for a total of six, with the Brewers of Milwaukee contributing four.

Outfielder Cliff Mapes of Kansas City, Shortstop Alvin Dark of Milwaukee and Catcher Wes Westrum of Minneapolis, were unanimous choices of the American Association baseball writers, who made the selections by ballot.

Only Toledo, currently wallowing in the league cellar, failed to place a player on the squad.

Columbus, the other Ohio club, placed two men—Third Baseman Don Land and Pitcher Charles Stanceau.

The roster:

Paul Campbell, Louisville, first base; Danny Murtaugh, Milwaukee, second base; Lang, Columbus, third base; Dark, Milwaukee, shortstop; Robert Rhawn, Minneapolis, and Charles Koney, Louisville, utility infielders; Mapes, Edward Stewart and Henry Bauer, Kansas City; Eric Tipton, St. Paul, and Albert Rosenberg, Milwaukee, outfielders; Wesley Westrum, Minneapolis; John Riddle, Indianapolis, and Gus Niarhos, Kansas City, catchers; and the following pitchers:

Fred Bradley, Kansas City; Phil Haugstad, St. Paul; Clem Dreisewerd, Louisville; Stanceu, Columbus; Glenn Elliott, Milwaukee, and Frank Hilley, Kansas City.

District Girl Top Swimmer Like Father

LIKE father like son, the old saying goes, but some daughters fit the rule as well.

One who does is 14-year-old Wilhelmina Orme, who is becoming one of the outstanding swimmers in this area.

Wilhelmina started swimming at the age of five; and her teacher was her dad, Jimmy Orme. Jimmy was a tophotch back stroker in the early thirties as a member of the famous YMCA medley relay team.

Wilhelmina entered her first competitive meet at 12 with the Columbia Country Club team.

She did so well she attracted the attention of Bill Armstrong, coach of the Ambassador Club team, and last September joined the club.

A strep throat handicapped her last winter, but she recovered and six weeks after she resumed training, she captured the Women's Senior AAU 50-yard freestyle championship and was a member of the winning Senior medley relay team.

These feats impressed swimming enthusiasts, as she is believed to be the youngest enior titleholder in the Ditrict's swimming history.

Wilhelmina is a tall blonde with an ideal build for swimming. Armstrong believes she has great prospects in national competition.

At her present rate, Wilhelmina Orme someday may challenge the best in the Nation, just as her daddy used to do.

Heurich Ties Naimans, 4-4

The Heurich Brewers and Naiman's Disc Shop played to a nine-inning 4-4 deadlock in a Post Industrial League game on the Ellipse. The game was called on account of darkness and will be replayed at some future date.

America May Fly Athletes To Olympics

New York, July 28 (AP).—America will participate in the 1948 Olympic Games nearly 500 strong, possibly using the airways to transport many of the competitors, the American Olympic Committee decided today.

Difficulty in obtaining assurances of a ship led to the unprecedented decision to explore air lanes, with the proviso that no athlete would be compelled to go by plane to the XIV Olympiad in London, July 29-August 13.

In a day-long session the Olympic Association, later meeting as the executive committee, recommended that American food be sent abroad for the athletes; approved the 1948 uniform; rounded out preparations for the winter games; decided to select one American city to present a strong bid for the 1956 games; and gingerly referred back to the governing bodies in individual sports the problem of allowing spouses to accompany married competitors.

Plans Made for 1952 Bid

The decision to send over food was based on the present shortages in Europe and it was recommended that the complete menu be shipped.

Five United States cities bid for the 1952 games before the international Olympic committee, and, said Avery Brundage, Olympic Association president, came close collectively to having a majority.

They were Detroit, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, Los Angeles and Chicago. The association decided each should present its case in the next 90 days—plus any other cities which might enter the lists—and one would be selected to carry the full American endorsement when the site of the 1956 games is chosen. Helsinki won the 1952 games.

The question of allowing husbands or wives of athletes to accompany their spouses on the team is one, said Brundage. "That each sports committee should decide now." Several college athletic directors pointed out this is a post-war development that could cost the team some athletes unless a clear-cut ruling is made well in advance of leaving for Europe.

Financial Outlook Good

Despite the huge cost of the 1948 team—upwards of $475,000—the general financial outlook appeared bright. The basketball committee reported its final tournament in Madison Square Garden next March 27, 29, and 31 might net the committee $30,000, and the track and field final trials are being held in Chicago next July 9 and 10 under a flat guarantee of $50,000.

A 69-man track and field team will be sent, three above the total in this sport in the 1936 games in Berlin, the last before the war. The N.C.A.A. meet next June 18 and 19, and the A.A.U. meet June 25 and 26 will be considered as semifinal trials, with nine men in each event from each meet to qualify for the Chicago finals.

McCreary Boots 4 Winners Home In Succession

New York, July 28 (AP).—Conn McCreary, the mighty mite who rode Stymie to victory in the International Gold Cup, booted home four straight winners, three of them for Trainer Hirsch Jacobs, on the Saratoga-at-Jamaica program today.

Beginning with the fourth race, McCreary won on Dear Mom, $14.50; Jimmie, $8.30; Best Dress, $5.70; and Remember Us, $4.20. All except Jimmie were saddled by Jacobs.

Favorites Climb At Southampton

Southampton, N. Y., July 28 (AP). Favorites advanced without difficulty through the opening round of the fifty-seventh annual men's invitation tennis tournament today at the Meadow Club.

Bill Talbert of Wilmington, Del., ranked sixth in the Nation and seeded second to defending champion Gardnar Mulloy in this tournament, had little trouble with Roy Grimse of Los Angeles, winning 6—3, 6—0.

Fifth-seeded Francisco Segura of Ecuador whipped Leonard Steiner of Brooklyn, a Cornell player who is the No. 1 junior of the East, 6—2, 6—3. Gardner Larned of Chicago, seeded eighth, advanced at the expense of a home club netman, Clifford Michel, 6—4, 6—2.

Passeau Hospitalized With Wrist Infection

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Claude Passeau, veteran Chicago Cub pitcher, was confined to the Illinois Masonic Hospital today with a minor infection of his left wrist. He is expected to be back in uniform within a day or two, club officials said. The infection, a periodic occurrance, resulted from an old gun wound.

Gracie Lenczyk's Golf Feats Pay Dividend

Brothers Defray Costs of Her Play

NEWINGTON, Conn., July 28 (AP).—The boys in Gracie Lenczyk's family who pay her golf turney expenses declared a dividend today.

Dr. Ted Lenczyk, Newington dentist, and Ensign Dudy Lenczyk of the Coast Guard surprised their shy sister, one of the country's finest golfers, by telling her this afternoon that sufficient funds were available for her to compete in the Western Women's Amateur, the Canadian Women's Open, and the National Women's Amateur.

"And Gracie," they added, "you can return to college this fall; we'll see you through."

The dividend, they explained, was "a reward for the way she has been playing."

The 19-year-old lassie was "thrilled no end" by the news from Ted and Rudy, who get a big kick out of the "kid sister."

She plans to compete in these tourneys and transfer in September from Arnold College at Milford, which she left midway through her sophomore year several months ago, to John B. Stetson University at De Land, Fla.

The boys would prefer soft-pedaling the info about how they've been chipping in 'to give Grace a chance to play in the big tournaments," but their sister feels "it's silly to keep it a secret."

"If it wasn't for them, I never would be able to play the golf I do," says blonde, bronze 125-pound Grace, recent victor in the Women's All-American Golf at Tam O'Shanter, Chicago; finalist in the Women's National Collegiates at Columbus, Ohio, and medalist in the Women's Western Open at Atlanta, Ga. 'In fact," she emphasizes, "Ted taught me the game."

Grace was accompanied to the All-American Open and Collegiates by the dentist, who this year spent his vacation with her. He plays in the low 70's.

About a year ago, after Grace won the State title, her first important tournament, Ted, then a Navy lieutenant commander, told her he had saved $1000 to defray the expenses of a few trips.

When Rudy heard about it, he insisted on chipping in too, saying, "It belongs to the corporation."

They'll never forget the high-spot of 1946, the day when Grace defeated Babe Didrickson Zaharias. The Babe, British women's champ, hasn't been beaten since.

Recent Wins Earn Three More Trips

Grace has her sights set on the National Amateur crown. She is a mighty hitter from the tee, driving with a wide, slightly closed stance. Her iron play is quite accurate, especially with the longer irons, but she cannot be classed a top-notch putter yet. Unlike most women golfers, she is a rather fast swinger. On her, it looks good.

Ted and Rudy—Grace also has another brother and two sisters—are confident that Grace soon will realize her goal.

Maryland Back In N. B. A. Fold

Baltimore, Md., July 28.—Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, announced at a dinner here tonight that Maryland had rejoined the NBA.

Maryland withdrew from the association nearly 10 years ago as the result of a controversy involving a bout between Harry Jeffra of Baltimore and the then featherweight champion, Joey Archibald.

Dead Heat Launches Two-Way Daily Double Payoff at Bel Air

Bennings

At Bel Air.

DEAR FOLKS:

When Worthowning, the 12-year-old, set a track record here on last Saturday's program it was nothing new in the life of the old fellow. In his time he has set 10 records and 7 of them are on the books. In addition to his Bel Air mark, he holds three at Pascoag, one at Hagerstown, one at Wheeling and another at Northampton. Worthowning gained a measure of fame some years back when George Allen, then District Commissioner, came out against racing for D. C. while he owned Worthowning. Allen, however, laughed it off by saying he traded a goat for the horse. Regardless of opinion to the contrary, Sammy Palumbo is the best rider on minor tracks hereabouts. He has stepped out with eight winners on the first four programs here and tops the saddle parade. Johnny Tammaro and Stanley Austin have four each and Mike Sarno and Jimmy Baird have visited the winner's circle three times. J. Gilbert Haus, racing secretary at Delaware Park, has been named steward at Hagerstown. Alan Clark, former big league pitcher, is being claimed out of the horse business. He started the year with five horses in training and lost Gallant Doc, Silver Sting and Walter Haight via the claiming route. He has Over Gold and Good Pasture left in his barn. Bel Air, once a half-mile track, has since been upped to six furlongs. Now there is a rumor efforts will be made to include it on the mile circuit. See you on the rail—BILL.

Va. Duck Season May Be Cut Third

Norfolk, Va., July 28 (AP).—Two recommendations, one lopping nearly a third from Virginia's duck-hunting season and another cutting the bag limit on migratory birds, will be handed to the U. S. Fish and Wild Life Service for approval this week.

The suggestions were drawn up by the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries which met here.

Commission Chairman Stras of Tazewell said the Federal agency had given permission for a 28-day duck-hunting season and the commission agreed to schedule it from December 7 through January 6. Last winter's season was 45 days.

The commission also recommended a daily bag limit of four ducks and one goose, with a possession limit of eight ducks.

Alarosa, Dora-N-Tops Inseparable

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., July 28.—Tight racing here, marked by many a photo finish, reached the dead-heat stage today when Joseph Nechamkin's Dora-N-Tops and Mrs. H. S. Grinder's Alarosa could not be separated either by the judges or the camera.

Dora-N-Tops had the lead approaching the stretch but Alarosa joined her and the pair were head and head from that point to the wire.

So obvious was the dead heat that several of the press box boys, roused from sound asleep by the thriller, called it an all-even ending. There was no argument about Mrs. F. C. Rompel's Riot Squad being third in the field of 10.

Mutuel Divided

In the split win mutuel pay-off, Dora-N-Tops, ridden by Jockey George Cardoza, paid $19.20 and Alarosa, with apprentice Bob Shirey up, returned $4.40.

When W. C. Hammond's Nella Jones, beaten off recently, awoke with a bang in the second race there was plenty of money for the lucky daily doublers. Nella Jones paid $28.20 in the singular betting and the Dora-N-Tops combination returned $645.20 while the Alarosa duo paid $104.80.

Pay-off prices, for the most part, returned to normalcy as the program progressed. The featured Churchill Purse went to Emanuel L. Rankin's Dover Road at a mere $8.20. The daughter of Identify went to the front easily and stayed there, turning in time of 1:45 3-5 for the mile and a sixteenth. J. Braglio's Patty Knot, installed the favorite, due to the appearance of Sammy Palumbo in the saddle, was second, and H. W. Schaeffers' St. Lo was third in the field of seven.

Jockey Stanley Austin, who also rode Nella Jones, was aboard Dover Road and gave the 4-year-old, saddled by Miss Judy Johnson of Washington, a hustling ride all the way.

The day's steeplechase went the way of most jumping events here—to a favorite ridden by Jockey F. D. Adams. The winner, by oodles of length, was S. R. Fry's Valdina Scamp. The winner paid $4.40.

Some Windows You Shouldn't Break . . .

Newton, Iowa, July 28 (AP).—Firemen Dave Jones and Robert Hubler were practicing pitching when a toss got away from them and crashed through a window.

Hubler, a former glass worker, and Jones lost little time repairing the window.

Jones Bids For Title Bout

A maneuver in the direction of a lightweight championship bout for Herbie (Biff) Jones, D. C. favorite who tangles with Chicago's Honeyboy Bratton at Griffith Stadium on Monday, yesterday was made by Jones' managers.

Lou Jamison, comanager with Trainer Harry Groves, announced he would turn over a $2500 check, showing good faith, to Commission Chairman Heinie Miller for a bout with the winner of the Ike Williams-Bob Montgomery title scrap in Philadelphia, also on Monday.

The Philadelphia battle is expected to clear up conflicting crown claims supported by the N. B. A. (Williams) and New York and Pennsylvania commissions (Montgomery).

Jones' claim to a championship fight rests on his record of nine unbeaten outings this year, including six knockouts.

Meanwhile Bratton, the Nation's fifth ranking lightweight, also had his eye on a September or October bout in Chicago with the winner of the Williams-Montgomery scrap. He was scheduled to undergo a public workout at Turner's Arena at 2 p. m. today.

Cards Win in 9th on Pinch Hit; Vander Meer Blanks Giants

Johnny Silences Home Run Bats, 5-0

Cincinnati, July 28 (AP).—Cincinnati's Johnny Vander Meer, beaten in five previous July outings, regained his old-time touch long enough to shut out the New York Giants today, 5-0, the third time the homerun-hitting Giants have been blanked all season.

Cincinnati got to Mort Cooper for a run in the first inning on a single by Frankie Baumholtz, a walk, an outfield fly and Bert Haas' single but it was a tight duel between Vandy and Cooper up to the fifth when the Reds scored twice.

Garagola's Single Beats Braves, 8-7

St. Louis, July 28 (AP).—Two Cardinal catchers, Joe Garagiola and Del Rice, sparked the St. Louis club to an 8-7 triumph over the Boston Braves today in a slugging contest before 7986.

The youthful Garagiola's pinch-single sent Enos Slaughter home with the decisive run after two were out in the ninth. Rice's three-run homer in the eighth had tied the score.

Ted Wilks, the fifth Cardinal hurler, was credited with the victory and the veteran Si Johnson who went in after Warren Spahn had been lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth was charged with the loss.

The Braves scored six of their runs with a fourth-inning uprising that included two-run homers by Earl Torgeson and Tommy Holmes and doubles by Phil Masi, Connie Ryan and Johnny Hopp.

Out Fishing...

By Jack Bell

ST. MICHAELS, MD., July 28.—Two years ago while here on a striped bass fishing trip we learned of some old mill ponds containing large-mouth black bass.

Locating one near Trappe, Md., we fished it with "Junie" Longfellow, tavern proprietor, here in St. Michaels, and George Quinn, Washington, D. C.

To make a long story short, we had the surprise of our life, and so did farmers living by the pond. We caught and released a large number of bass, keeping only a few for evidence; fish that weighed up to seven pounds.

* * * *

Plagued by muddy water in the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers, causing black bass fishing to be a hit or miss proposition and a short season, we recently decided to explore the Eastern Shore for new fishing grounds convenient for the weekend.

* * * *

INQUIRY about the old mill pond near Trappe, disclosed that a flood last fall washed the old dam out. Now there remains only a swamp with the headwaters of Miles Creek flowing through. The creek should be full of bass and we will know, soon as we can get a boat in it.

Traveling the back roads we located another pond 6 miles below Federalsburg. Fishing with Ben Ault, Washington, D. C., Longfellow and Quinn, who found the Eastern Shore to his liking and now makes his home here in St. Michaels, we caught many fine pickerel and a few black bass.

We found the bass not to be in a striking mood. The natives tell us a few anglers fish the pond, however. Local fishermen prefer nearby salt-water fishing and fish.

* * * *

BECAUSE OF APPARENT laxity of enforcement of haul seining regulations, local sportsmen are incensed and have petitioned Maryland's Tidewater Fisheries Commission for stricter enforcement.

We learned how haul seiners ruined a banner fishing day for a group of Washington and Baltimore sports fishermen on the Chester River.

According to Ed Winters, Baltimer, he and two companions located a school of big stripers. Soon they succeeded in catching 12 weighing from 6 to 14 pounds.

Suddenly a fast motorboat cut in between their boat and shore, dropping a seine and hauled a big load of fish in. Winters estimated the haul to be between 8 and 10 tons.

Soviet Demands Blamed for Trade Failure

London, July 28 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps told Parliament today that Russian demands for revision of a 1941 loan agreement brought about the collapse of British-Russian trade treaty negotiations in Moscow last week.

The president of the Board of Trade said British negotiators offered a number of concessions, but "we could not go the whole way the Soviet government demanded as a condition of an agreement."

Further Hope Expressed

Russia owes Britain over 220 million dollars under terms of the 1941 agreement. The Moscow radio said the talks broke down because Britain would not guarantee some deliveries of capital goods and because credit terms could not be reconciled.

The British delegation, headed by J. Harold Wilson, returned from Moscow Friday after five weeks of intensive negotiations. The British had hoped for wheat, timber and canned fish. The Russians wanted heavy machinery, rails and pipes.

Cripps said that before the talks broke down, the Russians offered to supply "really substantial quantities of cereals over the next four years," beginning with one million tons of the 1947 harvest.

Declaring the British Labor government wished to expand trade with Russia, Cripps said he hoped the failure of the Moscow talks was only "temporary."

Russian Demands Outlined

Indicating that success had almost been in sight when the talks collapsed on Soviet credit demands, Cripps said the negotiators had reached agreement "on all matters within the trade field." He also explained that the contract for cereals was drawn up "and practically ready for signature" when the talks collapsed.

In connection with the 1941 loan agreement, the Russians, Cripps said, specifically "asked for a reduction in the rate of interest to a half of 1 per cent, a waiving of the obligation to pay 40 per cent cash payment in respect to all contracts not yet signed and for an adjustment in the terms of the repayment of the credit so as to spread the payments over 12 annual installments instead of 5."

The British negotiators, he said, were willing to meet the Russian request for reducing the interest rate and to waive the 40 per cent cash payment provision. They also were willing to "go some way, at heavy cost, toward meeting the Soviet request for lengthening the periods of repayment of all advances," he said, but added that the British "could not go the whole way" on this point.

Some of them expressed relief when the talks broke down, reasoning that if the Soviet Union sold Britain large amounts of grain this might cut into the total they hoped to get.

If Russia was in a position to offer Britain one million tons of grain this year, it was believed she probably was equipped to furnish grain to Finland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia, Romania, Hungary, Albania, Bulgaria and perhaps France, Norway and Austria.

It was also of interest to the Soviet people that, from the tone of the communique, the Soviet Union apparently desired to do business with Britain. They reasoned from this that the door definitely was still open to western European nations and even to the United States for strict country-to-country business deals despite Russia's refusal to participate in the Marshall proposal.

Russia Wheat Crop Reported Excellent

Moscow, July 28 (AP)—A Tass communique presenting the Soviet side of the recently halted British-Russian trade talks gave the Russian people today the first authoritative published news that this year's wheat crop in the Soviet Union generally is excellent.

The Soviet news agency's report said the USSR could have sold Britain one million tons out of this year's harvest and 1,500,000 tons out of the 1948 crop.

The communique also brought good news to the people of eastern European nations who hope to buy or trade grain with the Soviet Union this year.

Representatives of several countries watched the British-Soviet trade talks as closely as they could.

Man and Wife, Estranged, Found Shot to Death

A District man and his estranged wife were found shot to death yesterday at their home at 1915 Gales st. ne.

The couple, Franklin M. Young, 38, a Senate Office Building employe, and his wife, Vivian, 37, who worked at St. Elizabeths Hospital, had quarreled two months ago.

Neighbors heard three shots and a woman's scream about 4:30 p. m. Mrs. Young was found lying at the foot of the stairs, her husband five feet away.

Police said Young apparently shot his wife through the head, and then turned the .38 caliber revolver on himself.

44 ways To get "Something for Nothing"

The railroads have received 44 "rules" demands from the leaders of the operating unions, representing engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen. They say they are seeking only changes in working conditions—NOT a wage increase.

More Money For Less Work

But what kind of rules are being asked for? Twenty-eight of them would compel railroads to pay more money for the same, or less work; 7 would require additional and unnecessary men to do the same work; the rest would bring about changes in operating practices at increased cost.

For Instance:

The Union leaders demand additional train and engine crews on Diesel-powered trains—one full crew for every power unit in the locomotive. A freight train hauled by a 4-unit Diesel would have to carry 4 engineers, 4 firemen, 4 conductors, and at least 8 brakemen, or a total of 20 men instead of 5.

"Made Work"—Sheer Waste

The Union leaders demand that full-length freight trains be cut to about half their length, even though such trains are most efficient for low-cost service to you. This rule would call for twice as many locomotives, would double the number of trains, and make accidents more likely.

Additional equipment, yards, and other facilities required to take care of these short trains would cost hundreds of millions. What the Union leaders really want is to make more jobs.

The Union leaders demand that when a crew in one class of service perform incidental service of another class, they will be paid not less than a day's pay for each class, even though all service is performed as a part of the same day's work. The crew would get at least two days' pay for one day's work.

The Union leaders demand that the present basic day for passenger conductors and trainmen be reduced from 150 to 100 miles, which would have the effect of increasing their pay 50%. Such a run often takes only two or three hours!

You Can't Afford This Waste

Demands like these are against the interests of the whole American people, who depend on railroad service for nearly everything they eat, wear and use.

These rules would cost A BILLION DOLLARS annually—a gigantic waste which neither the railroads nor the country can afford.

Railroad workers are good citizens and good employes, with pride in their calling. Their record during the war was outstanding. We do not believe they fully understand the "featherbed" rules which the Union leaders are demanding. We do not believe they understand the harmful results which these rules would have to the railroad industry, to the millions of men and women dependent on railroads for their livelihood, and to the shipping and consuming public.

The great strength of America is in production—an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

For only through greater production can we hope to stop the steady upward surge of living costs.

Surely, if ever there was a time in our history when we needed to work, not waste, this is it.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, JULY 29, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

ABRUPT: At 12:45 p. m. yesterday 500 of the 650 employes in Agriculture's Sugar Rationing Administration were told that they were fired as of that moment. The employes were given no on-the-job notice whatever.

Kluttz

It was another instance of Uncle Sam turning back the clock 50 years in the treatment of his employes.

But the Congress, and not Agriculture, is to be blamed. At the last minute, Congress failed to appropriate funds to liquidate properly the industrial rationing program and to treat the 650 employes like human beings by giving them a reasonable lay-off notice.

Irvin L. Rice, the sugar chief, did all he could to get the money and to protect what few rights Federal workers have. He deplored the abrupt and arbitrary action as much as anyone. In fact, at a meeting early yesterday with his employes, he was asked: "What kind of a deal will career employes and veterans get?"

Rice answered in one word. And that word was "raw."

It's now planned to transfer only one employe to the sugar branch in Production and Marketing Administration to administer sugar prices.

About 165 of the sugar employes are in Washington. The remainder are in field offices the country over.

JOBS: Civil Service yesterday announced competitive examinations for Internal Revenue agents. The jobs are open in revenue offices here and these nearby States: Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, West Virginia, and Delaware.

Starting salaries range from $2644 to $4902. For the $2644 jobs, applicants must have at least two years' experience in commercial accounting and auditing practices, and at least six years' experience for the $4902 jobs. However, education can be substituted for experience. Applications must be filed on or before August 11 with the Board of Examiners at Internal Revenue.

COMING UP: Early next month the Civil Service Commission will announce an examination for coal mine inspector jobs in the Bureau of Mines. Salaries will range from $4149 to $4902. No written test will be required . . . Also to be announced soon is a test for engineering aid jobs in the War, Navy, Interior, Agriculture and Federal Works Agency here at salaries from $3021 to $3397. Applicants will be rated on education and experience.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: Federal agencies must now hire through Civil Service to fill these jobs: junior administrative technician, medical officer, operating engineer, veterinarian, engineer, physicist, chemist, and mathematician. Lists of eligibles from recent examinations for these jobs have been set up.

STORY: Shortly before the congressional recess, GOP Leader Wallace White of Maine was talking with Senator James Kem of Missouri about his resolution to investigate the Kansas City vote fraud. A colleague who had retained his sense of humor during that hectic period broke in to ask:

"Will the Kansas City affair be WHITE-washed or KEM-toned?"

NOTES: Congress gave the 12-man commission to study reorganization of the Federal Government $750,000 to build up a staff. . . .

In various appropriation bills, Congress reduced the rate Federal agencies can pay for expert consultants from $50 to $35 a day. The $50-a-day rate can only be paid if it's approved in advance by the Budget Director.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics was given $100,000 additional by Congress for its Washington staff.

BILLS: This is what Congress did on some of the important Federal worker bills: It did not pass the Stevenson retirement bill. The bill was stymied by GOP Leader Taft, and Senator Langer threatens to tell Federal workers to vote the Democratic ticket next year.

It did pass the Jones bill to allow anyone with less than 10 years of service to withdraw his money from the Civil Service retirement fund.

It did pass the Gold Star Mother bill—the measure to give veterans preference to the widowed mothers of men who died in the military service.

It did not pass the bill to permit the Census Bureau to make a business census, a program that would have cost 14 million dollars and would have compelled Census to add between 4000 and 5000 new employes. The bill did pass the House but two House members killed it late Saturday. A bill to allow the agency to make a fat and oil census did pass.

It did pass the bill to make the decisions of the Civil Service Commission on appeals from employes who are ordered fired and downgraded binding on Federal agencies.

CAPITOL HILL: Representative Cannon (D., Mo.) took this parting shot at the GOP administration of the legislative branch:

"We have spent money like drunken sailors. We have today the greatest army of supernumeraries here in the Capitol ever mobilized. We are paying them the highest salaries ever paid a clerical force; salaries unparalleled in private business."

But up until the last, the Congress continued to take pot-shots at defenseless employes in the executive branch, cutting their salaries and forcing their dismissal with absolutely no notice.

Young Wants Sales Levy To Replace Income Tax

Commissioner Sees Present Plan 'Big Load for Small Number to Carry'

By James Ficken
Post Reporter

Commissioner John Russell Young came out yesterday in favor of repeal of the District income tax "if we have a sales tax to produce sufficient revenue."

He said the present income tax made "a pretty big load for a small number of people to carry." Approximately 200,000 persons in the District pay Federal income taxes, he pointed out, but only about 88,000 of them pay taxes to the District.

Additional revenue will be needed, he said, "if we're to keep the city running the way the people want it run."

"We still need many capital improvements, which were postponed during the war," he declared, "and our institutions must be brought up to standard." He said he didn't "see any other better way" than a sales tax to obtain the necessary money.

Young made these statements while commenting on the bill Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) introduced in the Senate Saturday to repeal the five-million-dollar District income tax. It was not acted upon.

"I haven't talked to our tax experts yet," Young said, "but on the surface, I think he's got something there."

Senator Cain's bill would have ended District income tax liability as of next December 31, wiping out the income tax law of 1947 signed by President Truman July 16.

Orsinger, Aquarium Head, Noted for Humor, to Resign

By Charles J. Yarbrough
Post Reporter

Fred G. Orsinger, whose riotous humor has given aquarium fish more personality than people, is packing up.

He once tried to sell two Russian ichthyologists on the idea of rearing furbearing trout for cold, Siberian waters—and produced a Maine trout in panther skin to argue the feasibility.

Orsinger, white-maned at 70, but as tough and wiry as one of his domesticated gars, will resign Thursday as director of the Commerce Department's aquarium. He came here in May of 1932 "for a month" to get the aquarium started.

Chuckles Way Out

Never one to hide his fish under a rock, Orsinger was chuckling his way out yesterday. "I've been feeding mice to catfish and meat to the dog-fish—sort of a last meal from me to them," he grinned.

His gags, usually for publicity purposes, have not only helped give fish that personality, but have helped him through what most people consider a dull subject.

"If scientists would mix a little humor with their treatises, the public might be better acquainted with fish lore," he advised.

He once collaborated on an interview which had to do with why fish with a certain shaped mouth fed only at the top of the water. "D'you think there was any comment on that?" he scoffed.

Letters Pour In

But letters poured in when he dryly commented to a visiting newsman that he had loaned an alligator to a friend to help clean out a clogged drain.

"I told him the alligators came in three sizes and when placed in a drain could only go forward—they couldn't back up. To this day I don't know whether an alligator can go backward."

A friend of every newspaper in Washington, Orsinger couldn't

The Washington Post

imagine how they learned he was pulling a pickerel's impacted wisdom tooth when photographers arrived.

In Orsinger, the embarrassed, harrassed April Fool victim found comfort. Their calls to the aquarium for a "Mr. Pike" or "Mr. Bass," found the director in rare fettle to let them down easy.

"There is so much distrust and worry in our world today," he once said, "that one ought to be kind whenever it is possible."

With his wife, Orsinger plans an extensive trip through the mid-West, but in his mind, he's fashioning the last word in aquaria—and may have three chances to develop it. They live at 5607 1st st. ne.

Orsinger's successor will be 45-year-old John C. Pearson, of Beaufort, N. C., who has been with the Fish and Wildlife Service since 1924, most of it in the Division of Fishery Biology.

10 Are Injured As Ambulance Skids Off Road

Army Vehicle Crashes Into Trees Near Fairfax Station

D. C. Traffic Accidents Prove Costly

District traffic accidents during the first six months of 1947 cost motorists and their families $1,557,400, the Department of Vehicles and Traffic estimated yesterday.

The 29 traffic deaths here during the period cost $333,500; the 1762 personal injury accidents, $792,900; and the 3448 property damage accidents $431,000, the department reported

Traffic officials said they based these estimates on property damage costs, hospital and doctor bills, and loss of wages involved in "thousands" of accidents.

Safety experts have found the average economic loss suffered in a traffic death is $11,500; personal injury accident, $450, and a property damage accident, $125, they said.

Court of Appeals Affirms Clainos Jail Sentence

The conviction of George A. Clainos, 29, on three White Slave Act charges, was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals here.

Clainos has been sentenced to serve from 16 months to four years in prison. He was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Edward Molenof.

In affirming the conviction, the Appeals Court said, "evidence of his guilt under the counts under which he was convicted was conclusive, the testimony of the principal complaining witness being corroborated not only by other witnesses but by portions of the testimony of the defendant himself."

The plaintiff was Heddy Croxton, 29-year-old widow of a sailor. She maintained she was induced to be a prostitute here by Clainos' threats and by his promises to marry her.

The Appeals Court held that there was an error in the case but that it was not enough to cause a reversal.

D. C. License Fees Jump On October 1

100 to 1900 Per Cent Hikes Hit Produce Brokers and Legit Theaters Heaviest

Fees for 15 types of District licenses will be hiked 100 to 1900 per cent October 1, the Commissioners ruled yesterday.

The Commissioners approved the higher schedule recommended by the District Licensing Committee to make fees meet the cost of District license inspections.

Largest annual fee boosts will affect produce brokers, $5 to $100, and theaters producing stage attractions, $50 to $450. Only theaters in this class, committeemen said, are the Capitol, the National and the Howard.

Circuses, which now pay $2 a day for each car or wagon load of equipment up to $250, will be charged $6 a day a load, the maximum charge not to exceed $500 per day.

Other hikes: drugstores, $12 to $25; auctioneers, $5 to $10; public baths, $5 to $12; groceries, $5 to $15; public halls, $8 to $30; marine products wholesalers, $30 to $75; massage establishments, $5 to $12; motion picture theaters, $30 to $75; restaurants, $15 to $25; shooting galleries, $10 to $20; public swimming pools, $15 to $50; and carnivals, $35 per day to $50 per day.

The boost will not affect the owners of Griffith Stadium, who will continue to pay an annual license fee of only $5, C. T. Nottingham, assistant license superintendent, revealed.

The new rate schedule was prepared by a special committee appointed more than a year ago by the commissioners. Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise headed the committee, which also included Edward E. Bailey, jr., superintendent of licenses; Traffic Director George E. Keneipp; Police Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly; Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts; and Assistant Budget Officer D. P. Herman.

A 1932 act of Congress gives the commissioners power to raise or lower the license fees to match inspection costs. A public hearing on the higher schedule was held May 9.

Judge Prettyman Scolds FPC in Fuel Rate Case

The Federal Power Commission was scolded yesterday by Justice E. Barrett Prettyman of the United States Court of Appeals.

Justice Prettyman accused the FPC of using a "favorite cliche" of administrative bodies who are challenging court reviews of cases. The cliche, as recited by the jurist is, "The Court, unlike the Commission, is not an expert body."

The case involved an FPC ruling adverse to the Mississippi River Fuel Corp., which felt that it was entitled to a higher rate return than allowed by the FPC.

Justice Prettyman said, "The Commission seems to contend that the court must examine the rate, per set, as an abstraction, or as a naked economic fact, divorced from the elements of which it is composed and regardless of its effects, and if it appears fair and reasonable upon such examination, it must stand.

Baby Deer Missing

Baltimore, July 28 (AP).—Wanted: One floppy-eared baby deer, 10-days old.

Zoo Director Felix A. Leser said it was stolen yesterday from the Druid Hill Park Zoo. He urged the kidnaper not to eat the animal. Worth $100 to the zoo, the long-eared deer is valued at $5 a pound.

Even 60-cent hamburger would taste better, Leser said. . . . . .

Bandit, Eyes Ringed in Black, Robs Downtown Safe of $2000

The Washington Post

FOUR HELD AT BAY—Hank Borden, manager of the Capital Garage, examines the safe from which a holdup man got nearly $2000 after working on the combination 15 minutes, while holding three garage employes and a taxicab driver at gunpoint.

A bandit whose only disguise was painted circles under his eyes held four men at gunpoint and looted the safe in the downtown Capital Garage of about $2000 at 3 a. m. yesterday.

The man entered the garage, at 1320 New York ave. nw., forced the four men to lie on the floor and then calmly used 15 minutes opening the safe with the combination. He scooped the money, which the general manager said comprised the day's receipts, into a large paper bag and walked out.

Elsewhere on the crime front, less stealthy thieves took 12 small radios from one store and 113 bottles of whisky from another after smashing display windows.

Arthur Lee Bennett, 48, of 6116 Osborn rd., Columbia Heights, Md., night manager of the Capital Garage, two attendants and a taxi driver were forced to the floor with their hands under the heads while the bandit rifled the safe.

The two attendants were William H. Baldwin, 703 Erie ave., Takoma Park, Md., and Lee Welsh, 1006 G st. se. The taxi driver was James W. Lewis, 5807 40th ave., Hyattsville, Md.

They described the gunman as between 25 and 30 years old, of stock build, 5 feet 8 inches tall, wearing a light slouch hat, gray checked suit coat, dark trousers and a light shirt. The circles under his eyes, they said, appeared to have been painted on with mascara. The four saw him cross New York ave. and get into a dark sedan on H st., but were unable to get an accurate description of the car.

Victims in the window-smashing robberies were Mrs. Minnie Fielderman of the Phillips Radio & Appliance Co., 817 H st. ne., where 12 small radios valued at $409 were taken, and Hyman Avrumin, owner of the Riverside Liquor Store, 2117 E st. nw. The 113 bottles of whisky were valued at $300, police said.

Markham's Story

City Engineer Blamed in Resignation

Col. Edward M. Markham, jr., said yesterday that he resigned July 20 as Alexandria's assistant city engineer because of "lack of cooperation from my immediate superior."

Markham, who returned to the city Saturday night after 12 days' absence, made the following statement to The Washington Post:

"After five months of working with an honest desire to improve and modernize the positions assigned to me by the City Engineer and, because of the difficulty of overcoming the inertia and lack of cooperation by my immediate superior, I decided within conscience to the taxpayers that I would submit my resignation."

No Quarrel With Council

His immediate superior is C. Luckett Watkins, city engineer. Markham said he had no quarrel with the city council.

Markham's resignation was followed in rapid succession by those of Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., and Police Chief Col. John S Arnold. Both officials said they resigned because of conflicts with the council.

Specifically, Markham said that during his four and a half months as sanitation and maintenance engineer all his efforts, from trying to make needed improvements in the city garage to obtaining a typewriter for his work, had met delay and indecision.

Scores "Disorganization"

Markham also criticized "disorganization in the city government." He scored the broken chain of command resulting from the fact that some city officials are appointed by the city manager and others by the City Council. He felt that one or the other should be the administrative head of city government.

Markham said he plans to talk the matter over with City Manager Carl Budwesky, but stated that he will not resume hi sposition under the existing setup in the engineering department. Budwesky had stated that he hoped Markham would reconsider.

Budwesky had not returned from a weekend trip to Pennsylvania last night and could not be reached for comment. During his absence, the City Council meeting in closed session Saturday ordered him to submit a 'complete and satisfactory report" by August 12 on the facts concerning the resignations of three key city officials or resign.

Middle Name Pays Off

James Leon Singletary, 25, 918 O st. nw., was content with his own middle name after his appearance in Municipal Court before Judge Ellen K. Raedy.

Brought in on an assault warrant addressed to "James L. Singletary," and made out by Mrs. Jennie Wells, 37, 1717 Seaton st. nw., he discovered that the man in question was actually James Luther Singletary. The latter is the common-law husband of Mrs. Wells,. charged .with .assaulting their 14-year-old son, Horace, on July 7.

D. C. Will Get 'Some' Rent Boosts Due To Tax Rise

Cogswell Rejects Landlords' Plea For Hikes Based On Own Figures

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday revealed he would grant "some" rent increases to compensate landlords for increased taxation.

He announced his intention in turning down a proposal by organized landlords for an immediate and general increase. The landlords sought blanket approval of rent raises based on their own sworn statements of increased costs.

The Building Owners and Managers Association last week proposed that landlords be permitted to pass on higher costs to tenants five days after filing statements of cost increases with the Rent Control Administration. The proposal asked that such applications, on sworn statements of cost increases, become effective automatically at the end of five days if no action is taken on them by Rent Control Administration.

Concedes Tax Increase

Cogswell said he could not accept landlords' figures which indicated a minimum tax and water rent increase of 14 2/7 per cent since the rent freeze. He said he was conducting his own investigation and would confer with District tax and assessment officials to learn the "true" increases.

He conceded that there have been "sizeable" tax increases and that landlords are entitled to relief, where justified, by increased rental authorizations.

In Virginia, where rents are under Federal control, I. Chance Buchanan, director of the Alexandria-Arlington area rent control office, said last night it was "too early" to determine the extent of leasing under the new Federal law.

The law, recently enacted, provides that tenants and landlords can voluntarily agree to 18-month leases at 15 per cent raises over present rates. Such agreements must be made between July 1 and Dcember 31, this year. The leases would insure tenants against greater rent boosts after February 28, 1948, when Federal rent control is scheduled to end.

Investigates Complaint

Buchanan said his office had received but 380 such new leases to date. He said the total "indicates nothing," pointing out that the leases could not be signed before July 1 and that landlords have 15 days in which to send copies to the rent control office.

The rent control director said that lease solicitations being made at Arlington Village and Colonial Village, with a total of over 1600 apartment units, are marked effective August 1 and, consequently, his office has received none of them.

Buchanan said he was investigating a "telephoned complaint" tht one large Alexandria unfurnished apartments' development was offering new tenants furnished apartments at greatly increased rentals. The practice is illegal, he said, since such changes must be made through application to and approval by the rent control office.

In the reported instance, one-and two-bedroom apartments, unfurnished, rent at $65 and $75. The complaint alleged the management is asking $100 and $125, with scant furnishings.

Teen-Age Cadets Get Taste of Air Forces Life at Andrews Field

"PRE-PREFLIGHTERS"—About 45 teen-age Civil Air Patrol cadets from the Washington area are getting a sample of what Army Air Forces life is like during a two-week encampment at Andrews Field. Above, with P-80 "Shooting Stars" in the background, a group of the cadets get preflight training from an instructor

INSIDE LOOKING OUT—Cadet Pvt. Ruml DeDoskey, 17, of 3814 10th st. nw., emerges from the jet opening of a P-80 to chat with Lieut. H. A. Stuhles. Cadets attend daily classes in principles of flight, traffic control, and engine repair

HUP, TWO, THREE, FOUR—Cadets get a touch of the infantryman's life as they march to tents after drawing bedding and gear. Their military day runs from 6:30 a. m. until 6:30 p. m., when they are free to visit the PX, the service club or go to the movies. Six boys live in each tent. Many will join the Air Forces after they complete high school

Doctors Going on Air On Prepayment Plans

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—The Medical Society of Virginia announced plans today for a series of five radio programs explaining and appraising voluntary prepayment medical care and hospitalization plans now organized in Virginia.

The programs, to be broadcast over a network of about 10 stations, will begin on August 4 and continue through August 8.

Plans call for interviews with individual subscribers to the hospitalization plans, participating doctors, hospital administrators in institutions cooperating in the systems, and employers whose company workers are covered by the plans.

The society said approximately 328,000 Virginians now are enrolled in hospitalization plans, and some 151,000 are covered for medical care.

Wheat Yield Is High

Winchester, Va., July 28.—Wheat has been pouring into the Winchester Milling Co. at an average of 2000 bushels a day, most of it bringing top price of $2.25. The profit grain farmers are obtaining will tend to offset the lesser returns from fruit, it was stated.

Despite a period of wet weather that held up threshing, there has been no damage to wheat and the quality is said to be good with the yields running up to 41 bushels an acre reported. "It's the best grain year I have seen for 10 years," Ralph Beaver, a Clarke County thresherman, commented.

Advanced School Opens

Annapolis, Md., July 28 (AP).—A new term opened today at the Navy postgraduate school and 290 officers were enrolled for six courses. Of the enrollment, 166 were just beginning studies of advanced subjects and 124 were back to continue courses already started. Capt. Herman Spanagel heads the school.

School Plans Drawn

Winchester, Va., July 28.—Preliminary plans for a proposed consolidated Frederick County high school have been prepared by Dixon & Norman, Richmond architects, and will be explained by a member of the firm at a special board meeting Thursday.

The plans call for a two-story colonial style building containing 30 classrooms in addition to laboratories, home economics unit, three shop rooms, a library, cafeteria, 700-seat auditorium and a 64-foot gymnasium.

A site for the proposed school has been purchased on Route 50, just west of the city limits. If the plans are approved, the next steps will be to apply for a literary fund loan and ask for bids, County Superintendent Leslie D. Kline said.

Woman Dies After Fall

Elkton, Md., July 28 (AP).—Union Memorial Hospital authorities reporte the death today of Mrs. Isabel Andrien, 35, West Chester, Pa., of fractured skull suffered when she fell down a 20-foot embankment at Blairs Shore on the Elk River.

The hospital reported Mrs. Andrien was brought there unconscious by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Griffiths, with whom she had been visiting. The Griffiths said Mrs. Andrien tripped and fell over a wire stretched for support between two trees.

VJ-Day Parade Slated

Cambridge, Md., July 28 (AP).—A street parade with at least 35 floats will feature the second anniversary of VJ-Day here August 14. Prizes totaling $785 will be offered to competing units from the Delmarva Peninsula, Wilmington, Baltimore, and Washington.

Ice Cream Output Drops

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—Ice cream production in Virginia in June amounted to 1,060,000 gallons and was 28 per cent less than in the same month last year, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service announced today.

The figure, however, was 7 per cent above the five-year June 1941-June 1945 average.

Lane Asks Ober To Explain Police Fund Solicitation

Annapolis, Md., July 28 (AP).—Governor Lane said today he not only declined to contribute to a recruiting program by the Maryland State Police, but that he asked Superintendent Beverly Ober for a report on the Statewide solicitation.

The Governor said he was informed of a letter asking for a donation up to $250 while he was on vacation in Chicago.

The superintendent said last week he was unaware the solicitation had begun, adding he was out of the city when police stationery was provided a citizens' committee directing a recruiting appeal. The committee had sought $15,000 in contributions.

While the solicitation campaign was spiked, the recruiting campaign apparently went over. The police have 1500 applications for 35 vacant posts.

Kelley quoted Chandler as saying that he remembered "shooting at something—I don't know what" while on a frog hunting expedition with Shifflett along the James River Saturday night, and that he found out he had shot Shifflett when "he hollered and staggered."

Kelley said Chandler claimed that after the shooting his mind went blank and he remembered nothing until Sunday afternoon.

Twins Separated For 18 Years Meet

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—Twenty-year-old Bill Hooper grew up in Richmond. For all he knew he was the son of Florist E. G. Hooper and Mrs. Hooper. His life included all those things that made up the lives of his playmates—outings, school and church.

Several years ago, when Bill was about to go away to war, Mrs. Hooper said: "Son, if you run into a boy who looks exactly like you do, ask him his name. His name may not be the same as yours, but the boy still may be your twin. You had a twin brother, but he was separated from you as a baby—18 years ago."

Today, Bill and his twin—Ed Matthews—met for the first time. The meeting was arranged finally after their adopted mothers traced each other from 20-year-old records.

Hagerstown Man Found Shot to Death

Hagerstown, Md., July 28 (Spl.).—A 52-year-old local man was found shot to death near here early today and reportedly robbed of about $3500.

The dead man, Charles Taylor, was found lying along the Williamsport Pike, 6 miles south of here, with $31 in his pocket. It was believed, however, that he had left a Martinsburg, W. Va., gambling spot shortly before last midnight with another man, and with the $3500 in his pocket.

Police have recovered a gun thought to be the murder weapon, and a used clip of ammunition.

State's Attorney Martin Ingram said Taylor's car later was found parked in the rear of the South Potomac Junion High School here. The front seat was blood-soaked, he said. State Police Sergeant J. J. Cassidy is studying the vehicle for clews.

Police found a .45-caliber Colt automatic pistol about a block from the home of the victim. A 15-year-old boy noticed the weapon in an alleyway between two houses. Before the gun reached the police, about six persons were said to have handled it, however, so that little hope was held for fingerprint clews.

A half-block farther on, a clip with one unused bullet remaining was found along the pike, which enters this town from Martinsburg.

During the day, three men were arrested on suspicion, but were later released by police. The search concentrated on a man reported riding with Taylor when he crossed the Potomac River toll bridge at Williamsport. The collector told police he remembered Taylor driving across with a companion.

Model Flees His Mother, Says Student

Baltimore, Md., July 28 (U.P.).—Police launched a 12-State search tonight for a beautiful, red-haired Astoria, Long Island, model who has been missing since Saturday, and her disheartened fiance attributed her disappearance to his mother's opposition to their forthcoming marriage.

As he canceled plans for a gala church wedding Saturday, Nathan Winslow, a 21-year-old University of Maryland student, said he was convinced that Marrion Lynn Sorrenson, his bride-to-be, had fled to Stevenson, Wash., her former home.

"I am convinced that Marrion is alive and well, and is merely running away from a bad situation," he told newsmen. But he has informed police his beautiful 21-yearlold fiancee suffered a head accident last year, and might be suffering from amnesia.

Mrs. Katona Services Held; Probers Busy

Mrs. Julia Katona, 35, of Tall Timbers, Md., was buried in Arlington Cemetery yesterday as St. Marys County Police continued their investigation of her slaying.

Mrs. John Waska, her mother, fainted at the services. The gray-haired woman, garbed in a simple black dress, was weeping as she walked toward the funeral canopy. A few yards from the casket she collapsed.

Other relatives and Navy men from the United States Naval Air Station at Patuxent River helped revive her and carried her to the shade of a nearby tree. Lieut. Comdr. James Kelly, senior chaplain at the station, conducted the service

Services At Ft. Myer

Lieut. Frank Katona, husband of the victim, a flight engineer at the station, wept throughout the brief ceremony. A handful of relatives from both sides of the family were joined by a 20-man detachment from the station, consisting of friends of the popular lieutenant.

Chaplain Kelly said the eight-year-old Katona twins, Barry and Bonnie Joy, were at home and still have not been told of the death of their mother.

A large floral display shaped into a flier's wings emblem was at the front of the chapel and a similar one was placed alongside the casket at the grave.

Suspect's Wife Grieving

Meanwhile in Leonardtown, Mrs. Marjorie Brouillette, wife of another station sailor charged with the murder of Mrs. Katona, was reported "almost prostrate" with grief and worry about her husband, Seaman 1/c Joseph Daniel Brouillette, whose statements about events on the fatal night are still being investigated.

She arrived here Saturday night and has made several visits to her husband in St. Marys County jail.

State Senator Paul J. Bailey, defense counsel, said yesterday that the realization of what has happened since the strangulation death of Mrs. Katona is beginning to tell on Brouillette.

Debut of Ice Cream Soda

The first ice cream soda was served by Dolly Madison in the White House in 1813. Since that time ice cream has so increased in popularity that last year alone more than 700 million gallons were consumed in the United States.

Soda fountains, where most ice cream beverages are dispensed, have come a long way in the past few decades in developing sanitary service. One of the main reasons for the growing public favor of these establishments has been their appreciation of the need for sanitation. For instance, today nearly every popular soda fountain uses individually wrapped drinking straws, which protect the health of patrons.

Food Shower

A near-neighbor to the kitchen utensil shower for the bride is a shower of foods for the emergency shelf. She might be given an attractive little cabinet or wall shelf laden with a variety of packaged foods which a good home manager keeps on hand "just in case." The emergency shelf habit is a good one to cultivate. It provides menu insurance for those days when there isn't a moment to go to the grocer's or when the unexpected guest drops in.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Spinster, 39, Youngest of 11 Children, Has Marriage Proposal From Widower, A Childhood Chum, Whom She Loves; But Family Is Opposed

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 39, the youngest of 11 children, and since I finished high school at 16 I've stayed home, helping with our dairy farm and taking care of my parents and an aunt.

The older children went to college, but there wasn't enough money to send the two youngest—my brother and I; and he also stayed home to help out. Two of my older sisters married. The others stayed single, but they all have good jobs and come home for vacations.

Also my nieces and nephews spend their summers and vacations with me, and as I love children, cats and dogs, we've had enjoyable times. However, my mother died some months ago, at 79, after a long illness; and since then the place doesn't seem like home to me any more.

Now I am longing for a home of my own. Dad is 83 and Aunty is 75, and I think it's time for some of the other children to step in and relieve me. I am in love with a man, 42, whose wife died three years ago. He has three children—two now grown and a daughter, 3.

Man Sought Her Out a Year Ago

WE KNEW and liked each other as kids, but his family moved to a large city and we lost track of each other. On a business trip through here a year ago he learned from a friend that I was still single, living at home, and he came to see me. Since then he has been urging me to marry him. He says he's not rich but owns a nice home, car and business of his own and can afford to raise another family.

Although he is of a different faith and nationality he claims we could get along; or else he'll just join my church. Our family doctor says I'm in perfect health and could have children, but my folks think it's crazy to be in love at my age. They think I should stay home and remain single; but I feel I'd rather make a home with the man I love.

He is tall, lean, with very broad shoulders and I am small boned and slender. We are both brunettes and he, like everybody else, thinks I look 10 years younger than I am. Should I marry him or not? I don't want to make a wrong decision. E. S.

Family's Stand Seems Selfish

DEAR E. S.: In a sense, you spoke from the heart to me; and in deference to your candor, I've struck some of the more artless romantic passages from your letter;—but these revelations added to the general narrative indicate that this is probably a true-love match.

As for your folks' allegation that it's crazy to be in love at your age, the argument doesn't hold water. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was older—41, I think—when she married the illustrious poet Robert Browning: one of the greatest love-matches in history, which inspired her to write the spiritually lofty "Sonnets from the Portuguese."

Presumably your folks are interested in maintaining the status quo for their own convenience, not caring much—in a sympathetic foresighted way—about your happiness. I daresay they'd got in the habit of taking for granted you'd always be a spinster, running a summer hotel for them on the farm, hence are flabbergasted at the prospect of your getting married and going away.

Old Enough To Know Her Mind

IF RIDICULE is the only opposition they can offer, it's pretty thin. Furthermore, it must mean that the man's character and record are unassailable, because as a closely knit family doubtless they'd study him thoroughly when he started courting.

The fact that he is of a different faith and nationality might be a handicap to a happy union, especially if his young daughter is already assigned to his or his first wife's creed, contrary to yours,—but in view of "auld lang syne" acquaintance and mutual approbation dating back years, perhaps this isn't a serious hurdle.

However, put the question to searching examination now. Face it frankly, discuss it fully and weigh each other's views soberly, in order to reach clear agreement as to whether—and how—the difference can be harmoniously adjudicated if you marry him and bear children. If there is no problem here, why hesitate? You're old enough to know your own mind and marry whom you choose; and would be foolish, indeed, to let family joshing—and only that—clip your wings. M. H.

Young Set Likes New Moccasins

You can't keep teen-age youngsters off moccasins in summer any more than you can keep them off the ground. With cool summer suits in chambray and striped cotton prints, or with pastel play clothes, the leather-soled moccasin, our spies tell us, is a '47 favorite.

From shoe retailers come reports that active young people like the down-to-earthiness of the shoe, and appreciate the shape-retaining support and comfort that come from the flexible leather sole and upper. Sling-back moccasins are newcomers whose popularity increases. A monk style moc, with side buckle and prominent stitching on the leather sole, is gaining favor as an all-purpose shoe to go with every casual garment.

Biscuit Test

Recent tests showed that biscuits become more alkaline as the quantity of baking soda is increased and that much thiamine is lost when too much soda is used.

Chill for Flakier Crust

For a flakier pie crust, give pastry dough the "chill" treatment. Not only should shortening be cold and water ice cold, but chill the dough before baking.

They Sew Not, Neither Do They Gain

By Ida Jean Kain

ARE YOU having any fun with your reducing? A group of women up in Maine are . . . They've changed their sewing circle into a streamlining club, and drop inches instead of stitches. Let's call their meeting to order and look in on them through this wonderful report.

"We thought you would like a report about our slimming club. Recently a group of us, all mothers in our early thirties, formed a club. We meet once a week, take exercises, discuss nutrition and calories and read your column.

"At the first meeting we set a 'goal' for ourselves, both in weight and in measurements. We check each week, keeping a record. We have a secretary and treasurer. When all members have reached their goals, we are going to celebrate with the money.

"You will be amused to know that we used to think we would go somewhere and have a 'big feed' to celebrate. There isn't one of us could be hired to do that!

"We have all shown great improvement. Some of us have lost as much as 16 pounds. I doubt if this could have happened in any other way, but knowing that we are going to be 'checked in' each week in front of everyone else keeps us right on our toes. We serve low calorie refreshments, and occasionally have an all day meeting, serving a well planned, low calorie luncheon.

"We really have a wonderful time and wish that others could be inspired to form these clubs."

How I'd like to know those club members! They have spirit and spunk . . . They refuse to settle for the middle age spread. Their psychology is right. They know that it's overeating that takes all the joy out of life, so they get together and make slimming and right eating a picnic! These women will stay young all through the middle years because they have fun keeping slim and mentally alert.

Small Parties Feature Calendar

WITH so many Washingtonians vacationing in cooler climes, Capital social activities are in the doldrums and large parties are few and far between. The small, informal gathering, however, has come into its own and is the favorite form of midsummer entertainment.

Last evening the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo were hosts at dinner at "Twin Oaks" in honor of the Chinese Consul from Boston, K. S. Wang, and Mrs. Wang. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Yuan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koo, Mr. and Mrs. Fu An, Mrs. Victor Kwong and Miss Esme Chu.

A. M. Gailani, Second Secretary of the Iraq Embassy, was honored at a farewell party given yesterday by Embassy Attache and Mme. Pachachi at their apartment. About 35 guests dropped by for cocktails between 5:30 and 7:30. This was the last of a series of farewells for Mr. Gailani, who leaves today for his new post as second secretary at his country's embassy in London.

The hostess' mother, Mmé. Jawdat, wife of the Iraq Ambassador, was among the guests, although the Ambassador was unable to attend. Others present included the First Secretary of the British Embassy, T. E. Bromley; the Syrian Counselor, Husni A. Sawwaf; the Syrian Attache and Mme. Tomeh; Syrian Atache Sirri al-Kaltakji; the Egyptian Third Secretary, Anwar Niazi; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Frank, and Archibald Roosevelt of the State Department.

Dance to Be Given For 'Dambusters'

THE contingent of RAF officers known as the "Dambusters," will be entertained Saturday night at a dance at the Officers' Service Club of the United Nations, 1644 23d st. nw. The group is now touring the United States on a goodwill flight.

The planes will visit Detroit, Omaha, California and Texas before going to Canada and will return to England early in September. During their stay here, the 617th Squadron (heavy bombers) will be based at Andrews Field.

The group received its nickname because of its success in bombing two dams in the Ruhr Valley. Its leader, Wing Commander Guy Gibson, received the Victoria Cross and was later killed in action.

Ring Out, Wild Bells

Holly Festoons Georgetown on Midsummer Day

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

OVER THE HOT weekend, Georgetown residents blessed with imaginations in good working order were braced by a bit of Christmassy coolth.

The Baptist church at 26th and P sts. has a brand new carillon. The carillonist, taking no chances, conscientiously has started preparing for the holiday season. Bright and very early, the bells, still a trifle quavery, started ringing out, "Come All Ye Faithful." Over and over, at intervals during the day and well into the evening, the Christmas hymn was repeated. Finally, like a mirage, the tired brain could think only of snow-filled streets and reindeer pattering on the roof.

Personnel Problem

The sergeant, a privileged character of many years' service, is devoted to his boss and his sentiments are warmly reciprocated. So before the public knew the five-star general was quitting the Army for the presidency of Columbia University, Eisenhower broke the news to his driver.

The sergeant stared bug-eyed, his jaw sagging in comical consternation. "! ! @ ! !" he ripped out in amazement." And just as I've gone and reenlisted for three years!"

Gentle Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the retiring Secretary of War, returned to Washington a week ago to pack her belongings. When her chores were polished off, she spent her last day doing what she wanted to do most. Mrs. Patterson went out to Walter Reed Hospital, walked through the wards, sat awhile at the bedsides of wounded soldiers, many of whom she has visited regularly since their return from overseas.

Mrs. Patterson's visit was a heart-warming gesture. With war's excitement over, too many have forgotten our wounded boys. Congresswoman Edith Rogers, who sponsors so much veteran legislation, can tell hard stories about her callous fellow Congressmen. One of her most interesting projects was obtaining specially built automobiles for paralyzed cases. Recently she's been cold-shouldered in an endeavor to get cars for the blind—so they can be driven to work.

Acheson Harnesses Up

ON BOSTON'S fashionable North Shore there was a pleasant Washington get-together over the weekend. Ray Atherton, our Ambassador to Canada, and his wife were down from Ottawa to see the Dean Achesons. With them came Mrs. Atherton's sister, Mrs. Franklin Mott Gunther, widow of our former Minister to Romania.

Mr. Acheson, who went afoot to the State Department and could walk faster than anyone in the Capital, will give his long legs a rest. The Achesons are leaving next week on a pack trip through the Canadian Rockies.

The Cabot Lodges, who usually summer on the North Shore, are sailing on the Queen Elizabeth's next trip. Mrs. Lodge and her sons will remain in France while the Senator, who's on the Foreign Relations Committee, will make a reportorial tour of Turkey and Greece.

Howard Hughes is such delectable headline meat these days that attention has been drawn away from his airline, Trans-World Airways. Like every other airline with an overseas concession, TWA had planned an ambitious expansion program. Recently its program seems to have done a flip-flop. Within the past few weeks most of the European branch offices have been given over to the "natives" to handle and all the complicated desk work will be done at the main office in Kansas City.

This shuffle means that the Constantine Stackelbergs (he's been in charge of the Madrid office) will soon return to Washington. Before Staino and his handsome wife, Garnett, leave Europe, they'll go to Germany to see his sister and Baroness Stackelberg, his mother.

Headlines in History

NOW THAT Princess Elizabeth is about to provide Britain with a prince consort, it's fascinating to read Theodore Martin's four-volume history of Victoria's consort, Prince Albert. The work was done at Queen Victoria's request and finished in the late 1870s at Bryntysidio, near Llangollen (Langollen, incidentally, is the name of Mrs. "Liz" Whitney's farm and stables at Upperville, Va.).

The third volume, which deals with the period roundabout the Crimean War, starts off with a contemporary ring. "The advisers of the Emperor Nicholas, who told him that the fighting days of England were over and that her sons cared too much for money and their own ease to risk either in a European quarrel, must by this time have been dismayed to see how greatly they had been mistaken. A forty years' peace had not changed the character of the people but they were as ready as of yore to confront the hazards of war at any sacrifice of blood and treasure.

"Chapter headings are only too sadly reminiscent of today's headlines: "The Eastern Question . . . State of Public Opinion in England as to Russian Policy in the East . . . Could War Have Been Avoided? . . . Ultimatum Sent to Russia by France and England . . . Russian Intrigues in Greece . . . Suppression of Rising There by French and English Troops . . . Expedition to Sevastopol Decided On . . . Negotiations with Austria . . . The Four Points . . . Vienna Conference Closed." Truly, the world is a discouraging place in which to live!

Norwegian Society Plans Picnic Aug. 9

Sally Butler Heads International BPW

By Genevieve Reynolds

JOLLY Sally Butler, a familar national figure in Capital's feminine clubdom, was elected president of the International Business and Professional Women at the concluding session of the organization's five-day Congress held last week in Paris.

Miss Sally Butler

As head of the National Professional and Business Women's Clubs, Inc., she darted in and out of Washington on frequent visits to the District of Columbia branch of the federation.

An Eastern European bloc opposed her candidacy at first, contending that Americans were dominating the federation. The post, however, was slated to go to an American woman because various European delegates opposed the potential nominees of Sweden. Another factor entering into the selection is the controlled currency in many countries. Some Europeans felt that if the money of the federation was tied up in a controlled currency country, there would be little opportunity of moving the organization's funds at will.

The problem was solved when the 250 delegates from 22 countries switched their votes to Miss Butler, and Mrs. Isabele Claridge Taylor of Philadelphia was re-elected treasurer.

Hail-fellow-well-met Miss Butler succeeds Dr. Lena Madesin Phillips, a New York lawyer, who founded the organization in 1930 and has been president ever since.

Protesting that she already had too much work as a lawyer and president of the national federation, it took some tall persuasion to get dynamic Sally to run for the international post. Eventually the 44 United States delegates from 16 States prevailed on her to accept.

Miss Butler, who has worked for 29 years with the United States Government, is now Indiana's State director of bond selling for the United States Treasury. In addition, she is a member of the State and Federal Bar Associations.

Shortly after the balloting, Miss Butler told a press conference that her organization is fighting against war and a revival of nazism. She also announced that London had bid for the convention three years hence.

Now holidaying in Italy, she will go to England for a short stay and will emplane for America about August 14.

DAR's Service Gardens Bloom in Pacific Areas

AMERICAN flowers are blooming in profusion this summer around Army and Marine Corps hospitals in the far-off Pacific area.

Convalescent servicemen, finding their way back to health in these hospitals, all the way from the Philippines to Japan, are the gardeners. The flower seeds, and vegetable seeds too, are supplied by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Reports just received by Mrs. Albert D. Gilmore of Yonkers, N. Y., chairman of the DAR War Service Gardens, and sent to President-General Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne at national headquarters here, show the garden project is an outstanding success.

Tiny packets of seeds have been distributed through War Department cooperation to the various Pacific areas. This year, 6734 packages of seeds have been sent to the hospitals. The grand total since the project was originated is over 50,000 packets.

The convalescent patients have their choice and may grow the varieties of flowers and vegetables which might be found in their own yard back home.

Started during the war, the project has been continued by the DAR because of the many requests from hospitals overseas. In many hospitals there is keen rivalry among the men in growing the flowers and vegetables. Medical officers reported that the war gardens have greatly aided patients in their recovery to health.

Mrs. Gilmore, who has served as chairman of War Service Gardens since 1943, when her original idea of sending flower and vegetable seeds to servicemen was adopted by the national society, has written Col. Philip L. Cook, chief surgeon of the Eighth Army Medical Corps in Japan, asking further suggestions in continuing the garden project.

School for Medical Secretaries Established

Establishment of the Anne McLaughlin School for Medical Secretaries at 1413 Park rd. nw. means the specialized training of young women seeking secretarial careers in a hospital, clinic or physician's office.

The school will open September 4, under the direction of Miss Anne D. McLaughlin, Ph. D., formerly dean of studies at Georgetown Visitation Junior College and director of the medical secretarial course at Visitation for the past nine years.

The course will be divided into two semesters of 18 weeks each and is of accredited college caliber.

Miss McLaughlin undertook the establishment of the school after consultation with many Washington physicians, who expressed the need for staff members with specialized training. In addition to the usual shorthand and typing, medical terminology, medical shorthand and medical science are included in the curriculum.

Miss McLaughlin will continue on the Visitation faculty. She is a graduate of Trinity College and received her master's degree and doctorate from Catholic University. She has done graduate work at Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Columbia, Fordham and Georgetown universities. In 1945 she served as guest professor at the Chemo-Medical Institute of Georgetown University and was visiting lecturer on the graduate faculty of the university for three years.

Active locally, Miss McLaughlin is now president of the Regional Association of Deans of Women and Advisers of Girls in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia. She is a past president of the Junior College Council for the Middle Atlantic States, and a past vice president of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

WITH outdoor eating at the height of its midsummer popularity, an idea from the airlines is invading the picnic grounds. That's an airplane pilot's box, filled with a complete picnic lunch, that Miss Mary Greenwade is buying from Miss Betty Holtzclaw at a local drive-in restaurant. A top fits snugly over the food and keeps it fresh until it reaches the picnic grounds. Then the opened box makes an individual tray from which to eat the meal

If It Cooks Good, Looks Good, Tastes Good—It's Borscht

Russian Borscht Romanoff is an exotic soup that's easy to make, beautiful to see, and delicious to eat. Here's the recipe:

1 bunch beets
1 medium-sized cucumber
2 medium-sized onions
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Wash and trim the beets and beet tops. Place both in kettle cover with 1 quart of cold water, and boil 1 hour or until beets are tender. Drain off the water and save 1 pint of it. Skin and dice beets. Peel and quarter cucumber, remove seeds, and cut in small squares. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and let stand 20 minutes. Add beets, cucumbers, sugar, and lemon juice to beet juice. Grind onions, wrap in cheesecloth, and squeeze onion juice into beet mixture. Add sour cream and chill.

To Give a Successful Party . . .

"A marvelous time was had by all!" That's the kind of report you'd love to hear about your parties, isn't it? Then see to it that your guests have FUN! Sounds like common sense yet so many parties flop because the hostess doesn't provide enough to do.

Games are the answer! Couple Relay, illustrated, is guaranteed to get any party off to a rollicking start. Have three or more couples on each team At "GO!" couples of opposing teams "race" to a goal 15 or 20 feet away.

But this is how they "race"! Arms linked, each couple walks, then skips, then hops on one foot, and finishes by walking backward to the goal. If any steps are omitted or done in the wrong order, the couple must start over. First complete team to finish is the winnah!

Our Reader Service booklet No. 60 has games for all occasions, Ice-breakers, team games, active and quiet games, pencil and paper games, romantic games, fortune-telling stunts, children's games. Also menus and prizes.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

(1) How can I remove stains on wallpaper made by rain blowing in the window and running down the paper under the window sill? (2) What can I use to remove rust marks (made by metal chairs) and other spots from the cement floor of our porch? D. D.

(1) One or two poultice treatments with Fuller's Earth will usually remove water stains of the type you describe. Make a paste of Fuller's Earth and carbon tetrachloride. Apply thickly to the spot and thin out at the edges beyond the soiled area. Let it dry overnight. Scrape off loose powder. Remove any remaining powder with a cloth dampened with cold water (if the wallpaper is washable) or with carbon tetrachloride. It's wise to test this treatment on an inconspicuous area first, as certain pigments run when carbon tetrachloride is applied.

(2) Scrubbing the cement floor with scouring powder and a solution of 4 ounces of trisodium phosphate to 1 gallon of hot water should get rid of a good many of the stains. If rust marks remain, try using the special cleanser that's sold for removing rust strains from bathtubs and the like.

Is it correct for the names of both divorced parents of the bride to appear on the invitation to her wedding? E. L.

Although the divorced parents of the bride sometimes send out her wedding invitations together these days, it's still considered in poor taste. Properly, the wedding announcement should be sent by the bride's mother. However, if the daughter lives with her father and he has shouldered all responsibility for her upbringing, the invitations are sent by him.

What is the procedure for lacquering decorative brass to keep it from tarnishing while on display? L. A. K.

First, remove all tarnish with a good quality metal polish, then wash the brass in soapy water. Rinse thoroughly in clear, hot running water, avoiding excessive handling. Apply denatured alcohol to the entire surface and let it dry. Then apply water-white transparent metal lacquer with a paint brush or spray to the entire surface.

Later, when the lacquer finish dulls, it can be removed with denatured alcohol and a fresh coat of lacquer applied.

How can I remove a spot made by fountain pen ink from a blue and white checked chambray dress without injuring the color? I. M. C.

First, rub glycerine into the spot to loosen the ink. Rinse out in clear water. Repeat the treatment as long as any ink comes from the stain. Then wash with soap and warm water.

If the stain still remains, resort to a bleach. Try it out first on the inside of a seam or some other inconspicuous place on the dress to be sure it won't damage the color. You can use a commercial ink remover, following the instructions on the package. Or you can soak the stain in an oxalic acid solution (3 tablespoons of oxalic acid crystals to 1 pint of water.) Soak 15 minutes, then rinse three times, adding a few drops of household ammonia to the last rinse water. Handle oxalic acid with care as it is poisonous.

(1) I have several large reproductions of oil paintings which I have cleaned by washing lightly with a mild soap. This has been a bit hard on the surface and I'd like to put a protective coating on the paintings. Is there a special varnish I should use, or do you recommend the shellac and egg white process mentioned previously in your column? (2) I have read of a product especially made for gluing loose chair rungs, etc., and have tried to buy it in a number of stores. Do you know where I could find it? C. R. C.

1. Special varnishes to protect oil paintings are sold in art supply and other paint stores. They are an excellent means of preserving such paintings. I believe the egg white process you mentioned is the one recommended only for use on paper prints to make them resemble oil paintings.

2. I have been unable, also, to find in local stores the specific product you described in your letter. However, a number of other glues recommended for repairing chairs are available. Plastic wood is also helpful in holding loose chair rungs firmly in place.

Can you tell me what precautions are necessary to minimize cracking and peeling of leatherette on a baby carriage? Should wax be used on it? T. J. F.

Wax is not recommended for use on leatherette, most of which is made of cotton fabric coated with nitro-cellulose. Frequent dusting with a soft, clean cloth is important to keep soil from accumulating. Wash occasionally with a cloth or sponge wrung out in mild, lukewarm soapsuds. Rinse with a clean cloth wrung out in clear lukewarm water. Dry thoroughly with a soft cloth.

Market Memo
By Lucia Brown

As colorful as a brand-new Persian carpet . . . that's the local vegetable market this week. Deep purple eggplant . . . blends into brighter purple of "red" cabbage. Carrots make a strip of flame . . . against a background of dark-green kale, turnip greens, and watercress. Pale yellow and white corn . . . cool beside rosy tomatoes, red radishes, and bright green peppers. It's the height of the fresh vegetable season here . . . and many prices are lower than last week.

Big, green Duchess apples have joined Yellow Transparents and Starrs on Washington fruit stands. Larger, more flavorable cantaloupes are coming in . . . and plenty of watermelons. The peach crop is nearing its peak . . . and Bartlett pears, grapes, and lemons are abundant.

Something new at the meat counters of a local grocery chain are "jiffy" steaks. They're small cuts of sirloin tip, round steak, and the like . . . tenderized by a "steak-making" machine. They sell for 15 to 20 cents less than choicer steaks . . . and are guaranteed to broil or fry in a hurry.

Must Tread Lightly

India's Lady Envoy Goes to Moscow

By Cynthia Lowry

A SARI-CLAD, delicate, little woman, incongruously carrying a heavy, overstuffed briefcase, was one of the outstanding personalities at the United Nations' General Assembly a few months ago.

Today Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit has stepped aside as head of India's U. N. delegation to become the British government's first Ambassador to Russia on behalf of India, and his Britannic Majesty's first woman Ambassador. Mrs. Pandit is faced with a touchy, gravely important job to be performed in the uneasy days of India's emergence to independence.

Always a Plugger

No political meteorite, this 47-year-old fighter for Indian independence has climbed steadily to the front and now belongs to a tiny sorority of world-famous women leaders.

One of her best friends is Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. The similarity of their backgrounds makes comparison inevitable.

Mrs. Pandit's father, a wealthy Indian lawyer named Motilal Nehru, was one of the early leaders in India's struggle for independence. Her brother, Jawaharal Nehru, is one of Indias' most powerful men, head of its interim government.

At the U. N. she ruled committees with an iron hand, marshaled her facts like a lawyer; avoided waste motion and used her small delegation to the best possible advantage.

Made Effective Speech

ONE veteran observer called her short address on the South African problem — involving the treatment of Indians there—the best speech given before the General Assembly.

"She stood up, gave her facts one, two, three, summed up with her conclusion and sat down," he said. "It was the most effective oratory we heard in a perfect welter of oratory."

Mrs. Pandit has been fighting for India and Indians, shoulder-to-shoulder with the rest of her family, for years. She was the first woman minister in any of the Indian governments—in the Congress ministry of the United Provinces from 1937 to 1939. She was Minister of Public Health and Local Self-Government.

Like many other Indian leaders, she spent time in prison—on two occasions. Even the two Pandit children, both girls, have been imprisoned.

Her appearance and her family background, however, seem to make her public life a paradox. Her family is of the very highest Indian caste — Kasmiri Brahmin and despite her concern for the underprivileged and underfed, Mrs. Pandit shows small evidences that she enjoys the luxuries of life. Her saris—the flowing silken garments of the Indian woman—are of rich color and fine material. Her silvery hair shows meticulous grooming and her small, quick hands are always perfectly manicured.

Enjoys Listening to Self

ASSOCIATES say that her cool logic in handling her public responsibilities shows a terrific amount of self-discipline. She is by nature fiery and temperamental. She is an accomplished speechmaker who enjoys her own oratory.

While Mrs. Pandit has been concerned with the broad problems of her country's freedom, among her deepest personal interests has been the fight for equal rights for Indian women. She also is vitally concerned with improving the public health of the vast subcontinent.

Before her, in her role of ambassador, is probably the most difficult job she ever has tackled. The shadow of Russia looms large to the north of her country, soon to be partitioned. The influence of Russia within her country cannot be measured exactly, but most observers think Russia has already achieved a foothold among the untouchables.

Mrs. Pandit, the Brahmin, will represent New Delhi interests in a cold Moscow with which she is far less familiar than she is with New York or San Francisco. But she goes there with the blessings of an empire government which has jailed her twice.

Professor Mary L. Sherrill To Receive Chemistry Award

The Francis P. Garvan Medal honoring women in chemistry will be presented to Professor Mary Lura Sherrill, head of the department of chemistry, Mount Holyoke College, at the 112th national meeting of the American Chemical Society, to be held in New York, September 15-19.

Professor Sherrill, who was cited for her achievements in both research and teaching, is the second Mount Holyoke scientist to win the Garvan award, which was established in 1938.

During World War II, Professor Sherrill directed the investigations of antimalarial compounds at Mount Holyoke for the Office of Scientific Research and Development.

Author of 20 Papers

At the college, she has conducted research in both organic and physical chemistry. She was active in group investigations of chemical compounds, called hydrocarbons, which extended the absorption spectra measurements far into the ultra-violet region. She is the author of more than 20 technical papers.

Born at Salisbury, N. C., July 14, 1888, Professor Sherrill is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, where she received the A. B. degree in 1909 and the M. A. in 1911. She pursued further advanced studies at the University of Chicago, where she earned her Ph. D. in 1923.

A member of the chemical faculty of Randolph-Macon from 1909 to 1916, she served as associate professor of chemistry in North Carolina College for Women, 1918-20. After a year as an associate with the Chemical Warfare Service at Edgewater Arsenal in Maryland, she joined the Mount Holyoke staff as an assistant professor in 1921, becoming associate professor in 1924 and full professor in 1931. She was named head of the department on the retirement of Professor Emma Carr in 1946, who was the other Holyoke winner of the award.

Earned Two Fellowships

Miss Sherrill has twice interrupted her teaching to study abroad. In 1928-29, she was appointed a Fellow for Advanced Study under the Commission for the Relief of Belgium Educational Foundation, and also Sarah Berliner Fellow of the American Association for University Women. She accepted the former fellowship and did research at the University of Brussels. In 1936, she studied at Brussels, Oxford University, and the University of Vienna.

Professor Sherrill was secretary of the Connecticut Valley Section of the American Chemical Society in 1925-27, and chairman in 1931-34. She was a member of the Society's National Council in 1940-43. She also is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Phi Beta Kappa, and Sigma Xi.

The Garvan Medal was founded by the late Francis P. Garvan of New York, president of the Chemical Foundation.

Bill Enables Canners to Pack '47 Crop

By The Associated Press

Representative Miller (R., Md.) said yesterday the Maryland congressional delegation's successful efforts in getting legislation for Federal purchase of surplus canned foods will enable canners to pack the 1947 fruit and vegetable crop.

Canners had informed an Agricultural subcommittee that many canning plants were closed because of lack of demand for canned food, and that they in turn would be unable to purchase this year's crop unless the Government could syphon off some of the surplus for use in foreign relief.

Miller said he was "jubilant" when House and Senate conferees adopted an amendment offered by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) to the Supplemental Appropriations bill.

The amendment, adopted on the last day of the session, provides that in "expenditure for foodstuffs from funds appropriated in this act for relief abroad, it is the sense of the Congress that preference be given to the purchase, within the United States, of products that can be purchased with benefit to the national economy, and that such purchases should include articles that are surplus where possible and practicable."

Man Returned to Jail He Fled 18 Years Ago

Pottsville, Pa., July 28 (AP).—John Homa is back in the Schuylkill County jail from which he escaped 18 years ago, glad that it is all over.

Homa, who had served 10 months of his 5 to 10 year sentence on a robbery charge, was brought back from Detroit, where he had been arrested on a larceny charge. County Detective Bruce Clayton said Homa told him he was tired of dodging the law and was "glad it was all over."

Jury Will Get Stabbing Case

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—A murder charge against Napoleon Williams, 22, of Richmond, accused in the fatal stabbing of Simon Aardemma, 45, of Hampton, has been certified to the August term of the Hustings Court grand jury.

Williams waived preliminary hearing Saturday before Police Justice Carlton Jewett. The Richmond man was arrested on July 19 after the death of Aardemma in a local hospital from knife wounds received during a fight the preceding day.

Detective Sergt. C. L. Brown, who made the arrest, said Williams claimed that he stabbed Aardemma when the Hampton man cursed him and attempted to assault him.

Unused Funds Kicked Back To Maryland

Baltimore, July 28 (AP).—Comptroller James J. Lacy reported today that State department agencies have returned $587,793.83 to the treasury this year. The amount is left over from allocations for the 1947 fiscal year ended June 30.

However, $265,722.50 of this amount is for bonuses for State employes which were discontinued after September 1 when a general pay raise was granted.

Last year, without the bonus return, the treasury got back $673,501.40 in unused allocations.

Aside from the bonus money, other large refunds to the treasury included the Ritchie Chronic Disease Hospital, $39,079.61; Department of Public Welfare, $63,954.51, and Crownsville State Hospital, $21,855.17.

The reversions ranged all the way down to 34 cents from the Maryland Agricultural Society. Many other departments not only expended their full allocations, but obtained additional money from the general emergency fund.

The emergency fund, which starts out with $500,000, ended the 1947 fiscal year with $47,176.02, Lacy reported. This sum also will be returned to the State treasury.

Negro Pastor Wins $25 in Jim Crow Suit

Roanoke, Va., July 28 (AP).—A Federal court jury today awarded a $25 judgment to a Negro minister, the Rev. William James Simmons, of Roanoke, against the Atlantic Greyhound Bus Company to set the stage for a court test of segregation of whites and Negroes on buses in Virginia and other Southern States.

Simmons, rather than move to the rear of the bus before it left the Roanoke terminal, got off and caught a night train to Salisbury, N. C., to attend a meeting of a Presbyterian Synod.

The jury first brought in a verdict for the bus company, holding that the Negro minister had not suffered any damages as a result of the incident.

Judge John Paul refused to accept the verdict and sent the jury back to bring in a verdict for a nominal sum. He said in finding "no damages" the jury in effect was saying the Negro's rights had not been violated.

Both sides have indicated the case may reach the Supreme Court.

Pantries Groan As Smith Island Welcomes Guests

Smith Island, Md., July 28 (AP).—Pantries groaned with whole baked hams, roast beef and frying chicken here today as Smith Island threw open its doors for a week of old-fashioned hospitality.

The island's normal population of 1000 was doubled for the annual Methodist camp meeting, and the natives were ready with a bounteous larder prepared weeks in advance.

"We never know whether one or 20 will come into our homes this week," declared Mrs. Martin Evans. "So we prepared for 20."

A church bell tolled cheerily at opening services yesterday in an open-air tabernacle on this outcropping of land in Tangier Sound off Chesapeake Bay.

Union Asks Vepco Wage Scale Review

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an AFL union, moved into the power rate reduction arena today with a request for reconstruction of wage scales established by company-union agreement for Virginia Electric & Power Co. employes.

J. C. McIntosh, international representative of the union, asked VEPCO's management to meet with IBEW representatives to review wage scales and "attempt to arrive at a determination of a fair and equitable wage rate" for groups of VEPCO employes represented by the union.

Three Teen-Age Girls Finish 'Terms of Office' in Virginia

Minnie Massie Betty Sullivan Nancy Morrision

Three Virginia teen-age girls have just finished terms of office as governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general in a mythical Old Dominion.

Mary Morrison, 609 Poplar dr., Falls Church; Betty Sullivan, Fredericksburg, and Minnie Massie, Lynchburg, assumed official posts in a "Virginia Girls' State" at Radford College.

Mary, as attorney general, carried a mock murder trial to the State Supreme Court and also won promise of support from Gov. William M. Tuck in the event that she should run for Congress.

Betty served as Governor, Minnie as Lieutenant Governor, in the week-long civic affair, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Tuck to Ask Scholarship Plan Revision

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—Governor Tuck said today that he would recommend to the next General Assembly changes in the State's teacher scholarship program to make the plan more attractive to college students.

The chief executive expressed disappointment at the small list of applicants for the $330,000 in scholarships made available by the General Assembly at its extra session last January.

Fewer than half of the 300 summer school scholarships, valued at a total of $30,000, found takers, and fewer than one-tenth of 1000 scholarships of $300 for the fall-winter term have been applied for to date.

Governor Tuck said he would discuss the matter with school authorities before framing a definite recommendation, but added that he now felt that the scholarships should be made available much earlier in a student's college career.

Many potential teachers, he said, never reach college for lack of funds and these might be reached by making scholarship available as early as the freshman year.

Maryland Fruit Yield Expected at 30-65% Normal

College Park, Md., July 28 (AP).—A prediction that Maryland's 1947 fruit crop will range between 30 and 65 per cent of normal was made today by A. F. Vierheller, extension horticulturist at the University of Maryland.

Vierheller said this year's short crop was a result of heavy May frost.

The Maryland Crop Reporting Service estimated a commercial apple crop of 670,000 bushels, as compared with a normal crop of 1,800,000 bushels and last year's 1,672,000 bushels.

Other estimates:

Peaches, 372,000 bushels, compared with a normal 700,000; pears, 36,000 bushels, compared with a 65,000-bushel average, and grapes, 300 tons, compared with a normal 350 tons.

Fatal Scooter Accident Is Held 'Unavoidable'

Winchester, Va., July 28 (AP).—The Frederick County coroner's office today said 15-year-old Stanley Leon Putnam of Stephens City was killed in an "unavoidable" collision of an automobile and scooter near here last night as he was returning to his home after attending a ball game.

At an inquest, witnesses testified that the boy's scooter sideswiped the auto and that the handle of the car door pierced Putnam's head.

O'Conor Vote Probe Goes On In Maryland

By The Associated Press

Congress is adjourned, but its senatorial election is still going on, Senator William Jenner reported investigation of Maryland's 1946 today.

Jenner is chairman of the subcommittee making a recount of the Free State's ballots. The election was contested by Republican D. John Markey, who lost to former Democratic Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor on the official returns.

Jenner reported his committee expected to reconvene in September to pass on disputed ballots. Investigators now are going over the ballots and laying aside those challenged by either of the contestants.

The investigators still have to canvass the ballots in three counties. When all ineligible ballots are eliminated, the recount proper will start.

Senator Jenner reported even then the job might not be finished. Markey also has alleged fraud as well as questioning the ballot count, and that charge also will be investigated after the recount.

5 Children Play Havoc With Dozen Army Vehicles

Portland, Me., July 28 (AP).—Army authorities reported five children aged 8 to 14 years smashed up a dozen military vehicles at Stevens Avenue Armory yesterday—by driving them knock-about fashion like "dodgem" cars in an amusement park.

Col. Elliott C. Goodwin, United States property and disbursing officer for Maine, estimated damage at more than $1500. He said four jeeps were put out of commission and eight other vehicles damaged.

All were National Guard equipment stored for summer training use at Camp Edwards, Mass.

Police said the youngsters entered the armory through a window and apparently wheeled the rugged vehicles around until fenders, headlights and bumpers gave way in collisions. None of the young drivers was hurt. Not a windshield cracked.

Jury Charges $75,000 Fraud to Life Raft Builder

Glen W Leyde, 37, formerly of Falls Church, was indicted by the District Grand Jury yesterday on charges that he attempted to swindle the Government out of $75,000 in a contract for constructing 561 life rafts.

The Justice Department said the United States Maritime Commission, which let the contract to Leyde for all-steel, self-righting life rafts, discovered the alleged fraud and deducted it from the contract price, approximately $700,000.

Leyde, now of Wayside, Md., controlled the firm of Leyde and Leyde, which completed 124 rafts before the agreement was terminated in 1945. The indictment charges Leyde padded costs of materials and labor.

44 Assistants Aid 11 Virginia Congressmen

By The Associated Press

Forty-four men and women help Virginia members of Congress in everything from obtaining baseball tickets to legislative research.

In the Senate, they are administrative assistants, secretaries and stenographers.

In the House, they are all just plain clerks—at least under official classification. There is only one official secretary on the House side—an assistant to the Speaker. In reality, however, the Representatives usually have one individual serving as a secretary.

Get Varying Amounts

Senators are allowed varying amounts, depending on State population, for salaries of secretaries and other office help in addition to the recently authorized $10,000 annually for an administrative assistant.

The allowance in the House is $9500 in basic salaries, of which a maximum of $5000 is permitted for any one person.

While much of the work of the office personnel is concerned with legislation and other public matters, there are many and varied requests daily from constituents.

Serving Senator Byrd are M. J. "Peachy" Menefee of Luray as secretary, and J. Heywood Bell of Newport News as legislative assistant.

Menefee aids in meeting requests and represents the Senator in greeting visitors and giving interviews. Byrd has not appointed an administrative assistant. Bell divides his time between the Senator's office and a nearby office in carrying on legislative research.

Others In Byrd's Office

Others in Byrd's office are Miss Meda Disk, Winchester; Mrs. Mildred Sime, Washington; Miss Martha Cropp, Charlottesville; Mrs. Doris Bradshaw, Arlington, and Mrs. Elizabeth Noland, Warrenton.

Serving Senator Robertson are J. Frank Stratton, native of Buena Vista, as secretary, and Warren A. McNeil, former Lynchburg and Richmond newspaper man, who is administrative assistant.

Miss Elizabeth Bond, Arlington, who served for a number of years as secretary of the House Special Committee on Wildlife Conservation headed by Robertson, transferred to Robertson's office when he became Senator.

Others in Robertson's office are Miss Delphine Beck of Martinsville, Miss Jeanne Rollison, Washington, and Miss Caroline Cannaday, Roanoke.

The Senators and the disbursing officer declined to give details of salaries.

Basic Salaries Given

Those serving the House members, together with their basic annual salaries, as shown in a recent House payroll, are:

Bland, First District—C. Conway Baker, native of Westmoreland County, secretary since 1921 after starting work at the age of 16, $3580; Miss Gladys R. Carroll of Washington, $3460, and Mrs. Frances E. Hoover, native of Westmoreland County, $2460.

Hardy, Second District—Thad S. Murray, Norfolk, youngest in seniority among Virginia secretaries, $2650; Mrs. Claire G. Salinger, Washington, $2250; Mrs. Eloise G. Menefee, Norfolk, $2250; Miss Ruth E. Miner, in Hardy's Norfolk office, $3350.

Ex-Soldier Waives Removal Hearing In 'Secrets' Case

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Ernest D. Wallis, 34, Chicago portrait photographer and former Army sergeant charged with removal of photographs and negatives containing atomic bomb secrets from the Los Alamos, N. Mex., bomb project, today waived a removal hearing.

Wallis appeared briefly before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and agreed to appear for trial in New Mexico when he should be summoned. His bond was reduced from $10,000 to $5000 at the request of Wallis' attorney, Jesse N. Brown, who said it was "out of proportion to the situation" and "a hardship."

The specific charge is taking and concealing Government property and records.

Also charged with removal of records from the Los Alamos project was Alexander von der Luft, 23, Princeton University student from Mount Lebanon, Pa., at liberty under $10,000 bond.

Burial Scheduled For Victim of Fire

Annapolis, Md., July 28 (AP).—Morris E. Brady, 57-year-old house painter of Woodlawn Beach, who died yesterday of second degree burns after his clothes caught fire, will be buried tomorrow in Mount Zion Methodist Church Cemetery.

Neighbors called Anne Arundel County police shortly after midnight Saturday after hearing Brady's shouts from a field near his Mayo rd. home. Police said his clothes had been in flames, but were unable to determine positively the cause.

Brady is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mattie C. Brady; two sons and three daughters.

Commodities Hit New High, Index Shows

New York, July 28 (AP).—Wholesale commodity prices as measured by the Associated Press weighted index of 35 basic items, hit a all-time high today.

The index, in which 1926 prices equal 100, reached 184.58, boosted by rising lumber, steel, coal, butter, hogs, corn and cattle quotations.

The previous high was 184.32 March 25. The highest index figure in 1946 was 169.72 December 24. This year's low was 164.05 January 25. The index, started in 1933, recorded its lowest point at 41.44, February 4 of that year.

The index stood at 183.45 Friday, 183.84 last Monday, 176.27 a month ago, and 143.54 a year ago.

Although most commodity futures prices tended lower on the exchanges, spot prices reflected the accumulative effect of rises in the last two weeks in grain, meat, coal and steel, and a $5.50 jump in lumber.

Scrap steel rose to an average of $39.16 a ton. Turpentine was up ½ cents, coffee advanced ½-cent, lard was up ¾ of a cent, butter up ½-cent to 68 cents a pound, hogs gained 75 cents a hundredweight, cattle were up 50 cents a hundredweight and corn jumped 3¾ cents a bushel.

Declines since Friday were noted in rubber, wheat, rye, cotton and wool.

Buick Boosts Price

Flint, Mich., July 28 (AP).—The Buick division of General Motors Corp. today announced a $100 increase in the list price of Buick station wagons effective immediately.

It brings the price of the model 59 wagon to $2522 and of the model 79 to $2970.

Steel Up $7 a Ton

Coatesville, Pa., July 28 (AP).—The Lukens Steel Co. announced an increase of $7 a ton in the price of carbon and alloy steel plates, effective on shipments on or after today.

The boost brings the price of carbon steel plates to $63 a ton and alloy plates to $90.

'Big Steel' Rise Seen

Pittsburgh, July 28 (AP).—Steel circles stirred withe speculation today that the Giant U. S. Steel Corp. might join other firms in announcing price advances when the board of directors meets tomorrow in New York to report on second quarter earnings and dividends.

"Big Steel's" competitors have raised prices on their products $5 to $10 a ton. Scrap dealers and pig iron producers also have tacked on boosts.

Crops Plowed Under

Freehold, N. J., July 28 (AP).—Many farmers in central and south Jersey are plowing under crops rather than harvest them at present prices—high as they are for the consumers—agricultural authorities said today.

The reports came from Mac Clark, Monmouth County agricultural extension agent; Edward Yeomans, divisional representative of the Farmers Union and Duke Renzuli, Vineland farmer.

Clark said farmers in his area have been forced to destroy large portions of their lettuce, spinach, beet and turnip crops. He blamed the situation on a combination of high wages, low commission merchant fees and other market costs.

Benning Bus Line Might Cost Less, PUC Expert Says

Fred A. Sager, chief Public Utilities Commission engineer, admitted yesterday that Capital Transit Co.'s Benning line bus substitution plan might cost 27 per cent less than he originally figured.

Sager testified last Thursday it would cost the company more than it figured to operate buses and less than it estimated to repair and operate the streetcar line. Sager said yesterday his cost estimates were based on full operation of buses 350 days per year.

Company officials pointed out traffic would be less on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Sugar conceded 27.4 per cent could be lopped off his cost estimates if full operation was limited to 254 days per year. G. K. Gravelle, CTC traffic engineer, said studies at Detroit and Chicago proved replacing of streetcars with buses bettered traffic conditions and cut accident rates.

The hearing resumes today.

Special Matoaka Buses Discontinued

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—Richmond Greyhound Lines, Inc., notified the State Conservation Commission today that it had discontinued special buses from Richmond and Norfolk to Lake Matoaka, scene of "The Common Glory," because of lack of patronage.

The cancellation affects buses which previously left here at 6 p. m. and Norfolk at 5:30 p. m., as well as buses on the return trip from the Lake Matoaka amphitheater. The company said, however, that it would continue to sell general admission tickets to the drama at Greyhound stations.

Grownups Muscle In—Kids Register Protest

This note was handed to me yesterday by an 11-year-old relative of mine named Walter.

"You write about your pet peeves—how about giving the kids a little attention?

"Whenever I'm sent to the store by my mother, it takes me a long time to get waited on. It's the same with the other boys in the neighborhood.

"When it's our turn, some grownup shoves in ahead of us, and the clerk just lets us stand there while he waits on the grownup.

"We wait and wait until everybody else has been taken care of. Then they get around to us. I don't think that's very fair. Everybody ought to be waited on in his proper turn."

Your spelling needed a little rearranging, Walter, but there's nothing wrong with the point you make.

SPOT REMOVER

Fourteen-year-old Charles Weir, jr., postcards:

"While on the subject of streets named for States, did you know there are two Californias? One terminates in the vicinity of Union Station, and the other is located just above Vernon st. nw. This is only fair, since California is the best State in the Union."

So you think you're going to put me on the spot with that provocative crack, eh Junior? Well, this'll fix you:

The opinions expressed in that postcard are those of Mr. Weir, and do not necessarily reflect those of this reporter, who is trying to get along in peace with the other 47 States, too.

SURRENDER

Sequel to our recent barb at dry cleaners who rivet identification tags to garments they handle:

Let's forget the whole thing and be friends again, fellows. I need you. I got caught in the rain yesterday.

HEADLINES

The Washington Post recently ran a little item about a Capitol elevator operator whose habit of wearing loud neckwear earned him admission to an organization known as "The Order of the Flaming Cravat."

Over this story our headline writer placed the words "Loud Ties Recognized."

An alert District Liner says we missed the boat. The headline should have been:

"The Tie That Blinds."

FOUR-FOR-THREE NOTE

Many Savings Bonds are bought as gifts to commemorate special occasions like birthdays and anniversaries.

But no date appears on the bonds, except the month in which they were issued.

Robert C. Morrow, of 1755 P st. nw., thinks the Treasury Department would sell more bonds if it would post-date them for gift givers. And the recipient would be less likely to cash in his bond prematurely, if it carried a date which had a special significance to him.

But when I took Bob's suggestion to Treasury officials, they explained:

"We'd have to change the stamps used by some 50,000 issuing agents, and that would cost a lot of money. But it's a good idea, and there's no reason why the individual agents can't write the date on the bond in ink."

Sky Writers Target of Anti-Adcraft

Hollywood — Skywriting is a popular form of advertising here. Religious groups, soft drink companies and night clubs are some of the sponsors employing aviators to write messages in the sky. Many of the local citizenry are distressed by this medium and plan to take counter-measures. Their lawyers have found no ordinance to prevent them from hiring their own skywriters to fly to the scene and write "Don't" before each message advising which cults to join or which products to buy. The civic-minded Arthur Gober, who prefers his skies clear, has his own plan. He's hiring a skywriter to go up and skywrite "Post No Bills."

Louis B. Mayer

Beside each desk of the top MGM executives is a large panelboard which looks like a short-wave sending machine or the pilot's panel in a DC-6. It is an intercommunication system, with push-buttons under card strips bearing the names of the executive linked to the interchain. One day Charles Lederer and Harry Kurnitz were in the office of Eddie Mannix, discussing a script they were writing, and they noticed the intercom. While Kurnitz engaged Mannix in conversation Lederer moved the name-card over the push-buttons. He moved them one space to the right and tore off the last name card.

They discussed the casting of the picture. "Let's ask Bill Grady, the casting director," said Mannix. He pressed the button under Grady's name. "Billy?" said Mannix. Then he heard the voice of L. B. Mayer responding to the call. The startled Mannix asked: "L. B. what are you doing in Grady's office?" L. B. hung up. Lederer and Kurnitz then distracted Mannix by discussing changes in the story. "Let's take it up with Bill Fadiman, the story editor," Mannix suggested, and pressed the button under Fadiman's name "Billy?" he asked. "No," was the roar he heard, for this was the line to L. B. Mayer's second intercom connection. Mannix turned to the writers and said: "L. B. is on a rampage. He's in everybody's office."

Norman Corwin is spending the summer here working on new radio projects. He still is editing the material he gathered during his round-the-world trip which was his prize for winning the One World award. It was in an Army plane flying from Fiji to Honolulu that Corwin received his first lesson in flying and navigation from the pilot. The young officer showed Corwin how to shoot the stars, how to measure time and distance, how to make the plane dip to the left and then to the right. Suddenly the pilot sneezed. "Gezundheit," said Corwin. "Roger" was the pilot's acknowledgment.

"This," sighed Mike Romanoff, surveying the roomful of eminent movie people in his restaurant, "is a city where everyone figuratively has a packed trunk ready in the basement, and in my own case," Romanoff added, "it's not figuratively. I really have a packed trunk ready. All dreams must end." He then philosophized on the change in him wrought by success. "When I was broke I was healthy," he sighed. "Now I'm sick 'cause I'm rich" . . . And also, Louis Calhern told him, "when you're rich you always associate with people who insist on sending you to doctors."

Jessel's new contract permits him to take time off to work in shows and night clubs. He soon will return East to appear in a number of cafes. When he was warned that the owners of some of these cafes are men with criminal records, Jessel shrugged, "I'll work with four old jokes and a steel vest." Otto Preminger, who directed and appeared in a number of Broadway plays, has no desire to work in the East again. "The theater," he complains, "is a business where backers want to get their money back. Art should not be measured by profit. In Europe I worked with Reinhardt. His backers never got a dime back."

Golf

The game of golf is played by all . . . Who do not mind a hike . . . The young and old, the strong and weak . . . The rich and poor alike . . . Some merely knock the ball around . . . And have a lot of fun . . . While some are never satisfied . . . Unless their score has won . . . The final outcome always ends . . . With 9 or 18 holes . . . Except inside the clubroom where . . . The conversation rolls . . . It is a healthy exercise . . . And quite a pleasant way . . . Of sewing up a business deal . . . That could have gone astray . . . And whether those who play the game . . . Are amateurs or pros . . . It surely tries their tempers out . . . And keeps them on their toes.
